Sen. George Is Leading Talmadge In Close Race

Camp, Whom Roosevelt Favored for Senate in Georgia, Concedes Defeat; Rivers Has Edge Over Howell.

By the Associated Press.

Atlanta, Sept. 14.—Senator Walter F. George and former Gov. Eugene Talmadge battled it out for the lead in the Georgia Senatorial primary late tonight after New Dealer Lawrence S. Camp, indorsed by President Roosevelt, had conceded his defeat.

George was put on the spot for political liquidation as a "conservative" by the President last month in a speech at Barnesville, Ga., in which he likewise rapped Talmadge, an Administration critics.

George gained ground in popular votes to head his two opponents with a total of 100,093 and a lead in 70 counties which could give him 204 county unit votes if they fall definitely in his column when the returns are complete.

Talmadge who ran second on popular votes with 75,931, led in 82 counties, which give him 188 county unit votes.

Camp had 53,265 popular votes with a lead in seven counties capable of giving him 18 unit votes.

Units Decide

[Nomination, equivalent to election, is not determined in Georgia on the plurality in the State-wide vote, but upon a county unit system. Six of the 159 counties have 8 unit votes each, 30 counties have 4 unit votes each, and the remaining counties each have 2 votes, based on the counties' representation in the Legislature. The candidate receiving a plurality in a county gets all of the county's unit votes. For nomination, 206 of the 410 unit votes are required. If no candidate receives a majority, there is a run-off primary between the two high candidates.—Editor's note.]

Rivers Ahead

Returns, unofficial, were complete from only 70 counties in the senatorial race. These showed 42 counties with 108 unit votes definitely in George's column, 25 counties with 84 unit votes definitely in Talmadge's column, and 3 counties with 8 unit votes definitely in Camp's column.

Expressing gratitude for the vote according him in running third in the three-way contest, Camp said:

"I regret that the fight has not succeeded at this time, but it is a fight that must win in the end. I am convinced that when the people realize the full meaning of the issues involved that they will demand liberal representation in the Senate."

He Bows to Electorate

Camp said he would "bow to the will of the electorate and I congratulate the nominee and pledge him my full support in the coming election." He did not hint who he believed the candidate would be.

In the race for Governor, Gov. E. D. Rivers, seeking an indorsement term on his "little New Deal" platform, was leading in popular votes with 111,885. He topped his opponents in 82 counties, which would give him 230 unit votes.

Hugh Howell, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee when Talmadge was Governor, had 95,164 popular votes and held at lead in 76 counties, which could give him 178 unit votes. Running third was J. J. Mangham, former chairman of the State highway

Major Brooke Gets Life for Wife's Murder

Federal Jury Returns First Degree Finding, but Spares Him the Death Sentence.

By the United Press.

Columbus, Ga., Sept. 14.—Maj. John R. Brooke, husky military tactics instructor, was found guilty tonight of murdering his wife, Elizabeth, in their home on the Fort Benning Reservation last June 8.

MAJ. BROOKE.

A U. S. district court jury, after 10 hours and 30 minutes deliberation, returned a verdict of guilty of first-degree murder, without capital punishment. The verdict made a life sentence mandatory.

Federal Judge Deaver imposed sentence immediately.

The Army officer, who had insisted he was innocent, was led from the court room by officers and his sister, Mrs. Alma Sanford, of San Antonio, who patted him on the back. Brooke's face twisted in a painful grimace, but he did not cry as he had done previously in the trial during testimony that his domestic life had been happ.

The prosecution had asked for the death penalty. The Government charged Brooke beat to death his wife in order to collect insurance on her life and recover gambling losses.

Brooke was charged with killing his second wife, with whom he had lived 14 years. They had four children three of whom are living.

Mrs. Brooke was the former Elizabeth Gerhart, of Washington, and met her husband when she was stationed at Walter Reed Hospital.

Farley Wires Senator Tydings Congratulations

Postmaster General Farley, chairman of the Democrtaic National Committee, sent a telegram of congratulations yesterday to Senator Tydings, of Maryland, on his renomination in the Democratic primary Monday. The congratulations came despite the fact that President Roosevelt threw all his influence against the Maryland Sentaor, whom he characterized as a "Tory Republican."

The bonds among the Senate conservative group were further cemented by a telegram received by Tydings from Senator Harrison, of Mississippi.

By his telegram Farley makes himself 100 per cent consistent in his idea that he and the national committee should support the winners in the Democratic primaries, whether conservative or liberal.

Civil War Raging

By Walter B. Kerr.
Special Cable to The Post.

Prague (Thursday) Sept. 15.—Fighting was intensified today on the western tip of the Czechoslovakian border at Eger where 23 persons were killed as Sudeten Germans battled police with machine guns and rifles, bringing the dead to 48 in two days.

Meanwhile, despite an official denial, it was apparent that the government was mobilizing troops at a rate which may place 800,000 to 900,000 men under arms by the end of the week.

Four hundred thousand men under arms already have been swelled by 200,000 to bring the armed forces up to 600,000 men. Thousands were being called hourly.

Railroad lines were jammed with troop trains, the various nationalities that go to make up the nation of Czechoslovakia sending their own men to the border.

A tour of the countryside revealed countless flat cars carrying 75-millimeter guns, tanks, armored cars, and fighting equipment. The government already has commandeered private automobiles and trucks along the border.

40 Police Captured

Sudeten Germans barricaded in the Victoria Hotel at Eger battled Czech police with machine guns and rifles in the latest of the clashes which have exploded for two days throughout the German-inhabited districts of the nation.

German storm troopers were firing across the border at Czech police at Breitensdorf last night and the Czechs were returning the fire.

At Schwaderback, on the German frontier, 40 Czech policemen and six custom officers were captured by Sudetens and transported across the frontier into Germany, where they still were prisoners today.

The battle at Eger came when two detachments of police using two armored cars laid siege to the Wenzel Hotel, the Sudeten headquarters, where the Czechs suspected a large quantity of arms had been stored. The Nazis returned the police fire from the hotel and were supported by machine-gun fire from the Victoria Hotel across the street. At 8 p. m. last night, after heavy firing, the police seized the

Philadelphians Picket Consulate For Czechs' Sake

Philadelphia, Sept. 14 (AP).—Twenty-five pickets carrying signs that read "Hands Off Czechoslovakia" and "Save Czech Babies from Nazi Bombs" appeared today in front of the German consulate.

Miss Edna Richter, executive secretary of the American League for Peace and Democracy, was informed the consul was absent.

She said she wanted to present a prepared statement that the "sympathies of the American people" were wholeheartedly behind the democracy of the Czechoslovakian government.

Plebiscite Ruled Out As Offer, Paris Hears

U. S. Consulate Advises American Tourists to Get Out of Germany Before Crisis Breaks.

Object of Chamberlain's Visit Held to Inform Fuehrer That French, British Stand United.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Sept. 14.—The United States counsulate today advised American travelers to go home, while Germans remained jittery without a hint of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's plans for the Sudeten minority he has pledged to protect in Czechoslovakia.

Consular authorities said today they had told American tourists "unofficially" it would be wise to leave. Other foreign consulates have given similar advice to their nationals.

The appeal of Prime Minister Chamberlain for an audience with Hitler electrified diplomatic quarters. Nazi chests swelled with pride at thought of the unprecedented visit of the head of Britain's government.

Many Germans hinted that tomorrow's meeting must be of the nature of a give and take. If it were to be a one-sided proposition, they suggested that Chamberlain need not come.

At the same time, it was set forth that the least Hitler could agree to would be complete autonomy for the Sudetens within the framework of the Czechoslovak state.

While putting great hopes in the impending meeting, Germany did not put all its eggs into one basket.

Divisional army maneuvers are scheduled to start tomorrow in the mountains only a few miles from the Czech border. These maneuvers are a part of a general scheme envisaged long before the Nuremberg party rally which Hitler brought to a close with his historic speech Monday.

It was learned the significance of the maneuvers may prove great in case things go wrong at Berchtesgaden.

As further preparedness measures,

Paris (Thursday), Sept. 15.—Consideration of a plebiscite for Sudeten Germans has been excluded from any suggestions Prime Minister Chamberlain will make to Reichsfuehrer Hitler in their Berchtesgaden meeting tomorrow, French circles close to the foreign office declared today.

These sources said flatly that Great Britain and France were particularly in accord on that point.

Diplomatic quarters in Paris yesterday expressed the opinion that influential sections of both British and French governments had been won over to a plebiscite as a last resort to prevent war, temporarily splitting both cabinets.

Complete accord of the British and French governments on Chamberlain's visit to Hitler was stressed here, and Chamberlain, it was said, will have a free hand with French support.

The principal feature of Chamberlain's mission, it was said here, will be to inform the German Fuehrer in a firm, but conciliatory, manner of the true position of the French and British governments.

Repeated doubts have been expressed by informed diplomatic sources here that Chancellor Hitler himself is aware of the extent of co-operation between London and Paris.

These circles have suggested that Anglo-French discussions of policy have failed to filter through the Reichsfuehrer's circle of advisers.

The announcement that Chamberlain will intercede personally with Hitler brought a sigh of relief in Paris diplomatic quarters tonight.

A spokesman at the Quai d'Orsay said:

"France completely approves the visit. It is necessary because the Camouflaged mobilization is being carried out through numerous conscriptions for immediate service.

The Czech government has refused the last possibility of negotiations by not answering inquiries.

Roosevelt Rushes Back in Foreign Crisis

By the Associated Press.

Aboard President Roosevelt's Train en Route to Washington, Sept. 14. — President Roosevelt rolled toward Washington tonight to take personal charge of the Nation's foreign policy in the critical European situation.

Mr. Roosevelt left Rochester, Minn., shortly after 11 a. m. (central standard time) today. He arranged to reach Washington tomorrow morning. Before departing, he had a final talk with his eldest son, James, who underwent a gastric ulcer operation Sunday. The Chief Executive received physicians' assurances that James was recuperating satisfactorily.

The President, after a lengthy talk with Secretary Hull by telephone, told a station crowd at Rochester he had decided to return "straight through to Washington because, as you know, having read the papers, the condition of affairs in other parts of the world is extremely serious. That is why, as President, I have to go back to the National Capital."

Originally, the President had arranged to go to the summer White House at Hyde Park.

By Joseph Driscoll.
Special Cable to The Post.

London (Thursday), Sept. 15.—With nervous Europe never closer to a second great war, Prime Minister Chamberlain astounded the world today by taking off in a plane for Reichsfuehrer Hitler's chalet at Berchtesgaden to conduct personal negotiations with the German dictator in an effort to head off an invasion of Czechslovakia. He took off at 8:35 a. m. London time.

Accompanied by two government advisers, Chamberlain left Heston Airdrome, near London, this morning in a British Airways liner, and should be at Munich by 1 p. m. After a short halt there the plane will fly on to Hitler's home in the Obersalzburg, where the conversations which mean so much for the future peace of Europe will take place.

The Prime Minister may fly back to London this evening. But if the conversations progress amicably, it is possible he may remain as an overnight guest.

Proposal Sent Through Berlin Envoy

No stage magician ever produced a white rabbit more dextrously than Chamberlain last night executed the most melodramatic development in modern diplomacy. Before the official announcement, only a handful of trusted lieutenants knew that Chamberlain was in direct communication with Hitler, and contemplated flying to Germany for a conference with the German chancellor at his Bavarian mountain retreat.

The decision was announced in the following communique:

The Prime Minister has sent to the German Fuehrer and Chancellor through His Majesty's Ambassador in Berlin, the following message:

"In view of increasingly critical situation I propose to come over at once to see you with a view to trying to find a peaceful solution.

"I propose to come across by air, and am ready to start tomorrow.

"Please indicate earliest time at which you can see me and suggest a place of meeting. Should be grateful for very early reply. Neville Chamberlain."

The Fuehrer and Chancellor has replied to the above message to the effect that he will be very ready to meet the British Prime Minister on September 15.

The Prime Minister is accordingly leaving for Germany by air tomorrow morning.

Chamberlain's First Plane Flight

Today was the first time that Chamberlain has ever been up in an airplane. Ramsay MacDonald frequently made use of planes when he was prime minister. Anthony Eden, when he was foreign secretary, visited a number of continental capitals by plane, but the old-fashioned pedestrian who is Britain's premier, has always prided himself on keeping his feet on the ground, literally and figuratively.

The British Airways Co. recently purchased a fleet of American Lockheed twin motored planes with a capacity of eight passengers and a cruising speed of 180 to 190 miles per hour. Chamberlain was making the journey in one of these.

Chamberlain's decision to take to the air was not reached without the most anxious consideration. It was debated at the cabinet session yesterday and the decision then was communicated to American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, when he visited 10 Downing street at the conclusion of the meeting. Kennedy kept the secret in the best diplomatic tradition.

It has long been one of Chamberlain's cherished beliefs that it is impossible to find out what is in the mind of a dictator without personal contact. He is now acting on that belief, just as he did when he sent Lord Halifax to Berchtesgaden shortly before Hitler annexed Austria.

The Prime Minister was taking a peace plan to the Fuehrer, but its contents are still a secret. There was some speculation as to whether he will not hold out to Hitler the possibility of a plebiscite in Bohemia, providing Hitler calls off the civil war which the Sudeten Germans began immediately after his defiant radio speech Monday.

2 Aides Will Accompany Him

Chamberlain has not irrevocably committed himself to the cantonization scheme which the Sudetens have spurned, nor has he ruled out altogether the possibility of frontier revision if such could be negotiated peacefully. Chamberlain can argue that the Germans will get more by peaceful negotiations than by going to war against Czechoslovakia, Russia, France, Britain and possibly the United States.

Chamberlain was accompanied to Berchtesgaden by Sir Horace Wilson, who is general adviser to the British government, and William Strang, of the foreign office, who will be one of the interpreters between Hitler and Chamberlain, who do not understand each other's language.

For the next day or so the Runciman mission in Prague becomes secondary to the Chamberlain mission in Berchtesgaden. Whether the second mission will be any more successful than the first remains to be seen, but there is no fear in London that Hitler will lure Chamberlain into a side room and force him to talk to the German generals as was done with the unfortunate last chancellor of Austria, Kurt von Schuschnigg, who is Hitler's prisoner.

Chamberlain's momentous decision was received with relief in Whitehall, where, throughout the day, hundreds of anxious Britons and tourists had watched the comings and going of the cabinet ministers and the American and French ambassadors, and had heard the ominous reports of desperate fighting in Czechoslovakia. Governorship Race Hangs on Prince Georges

County's 2d Choice Votes, Controlled by Sasscer, May Swing Victory to Jackson or O'Conor.

With the nomination of Maryland's Democratic gubernatorial candidate resting with the second choice votes sealed in ballot boxes, election boards in six counties yesterday ordered official tabulations to start, a day ahead of schedule.

Although under a State law, ballot canvassing should not start until noon today, the office of the attorney general unofficially approved requests to start yesterday.

Assistant Attorney General Charles T. Le Viness said: "If the election boards start earlier we will not inject ourselves into the situation."

Other Counties Start Today

Counties which have started counting are Allegany, Charles, Cecil, Caroline, Talbot and Worcester. The remaining 17 counties and Baltimore City will start today.

Meanwhile, as Mayor Jackson and Attorney General O'Conor battled neck and neck for the lead, it appeared that Prince Georges County's block of seven votes might be the determining factor in the nominating convention in Baltimore, September 28.

A prospective, unofficial convention vote of 74, one less than the 75 necessary to nominate, was indicated last night for O'Conor.

Sure of 55 Votes

O'Conor was sure of 55 convention votes on the basis of units in which he had a clear majority. He gained 42 in Baltimore city, 7 in Baltimore County, 3 in Howard and 3 in St. Marys.

In addition, Caroline and Charles counties each swung three convention votes to him on second choices. His forces claimed three each in Kent and Queen Annes, and seven in Allegany County. These 19 votes, as yet unofficial and uncertain, gave him a prospective total of 74.

Since this total was based on a number of incomplete and projected returns, Jackson's headquarters disputed O'Conor's claim to 74 votes, and claimed 68 for the mayor.

Gordy, with only 12 electoral votes, is scheduled to be dropped after the first convention ballot. His second choice ballots will be counted and, of the three remaining candidates, the one receiving the majority of Gordy's second choice votes will get his 12 convention votes.

Senator Sasscer is scheduled to be dropped after the second ballot, but his second choice votes, however, are expected to show a majority for Gordy, although no one will know for sure until they are counted at Upper Marlboro today.

Sasscer in Driver's Seat

If, however, they are thrown to Gordy, the Prince Georges County delegation to the convention will be uninstructed after the second ballot. In other words, they will be able to vote on the third ballot for either O'Conor or Jackson.

Senator Sasscer, as Prince Georges County leader, naturally will have the say as to for whom his county's votes should be cast. That will put him in the driver's seat, since both Jackson and O'Conor will be dickering for the votes in order to get the necessary majority of 75 out of the 149 electoral votes.

Such would not be the case if either Jackson or O'Conor obtains a majority of first choice votes on the first or second ballots. This, however, appears unlikely on the basis of nearly complete returns.

According to the Associated Press, complete returns from Maryland congressional districts confirmed the victory of one incumbent Representative and the defeat of another.

Thomas D'Alesandro, jr., defeated Representative Vincent L. Palmisano by 12,909 to 12,861 in the Third District. Representative Stephen Gambrill defeated Dr. John William Klemm, 30,438 to 3,855 in complete returns from the Fifth District.

d'Alesandro, Sure of Victory, Already at Home in Capitol

Apparent Successor of Rep. Palmisano, 'Mayor' Of Washington, Visits 'The Hill,' Expressing Hope He'll Be Assigned to District Committee; Seems Impatient for Congress to Convene.

By James D. Secrest.

Tommy d'Alesandro came to town yesterday and all but opened an office in the new House Office Building, while the man he apparently has nosed out of Congress, Representative Palmisano, remained in Baltimore to hunt for uncounted votes, if any.

Sleek and smiling, the 100 per cent New Dealer made himself at home on Capitol Hill as he showed plainly his impatience for the Seventy-sixth Congress to convene.

The office of Chairman Palmisano, of the House District Committee, who up to this time has kept open house on Wednesdays in his role of Washington "mayor," was dark.

Confident of Victory

Even though complete unofficial returns gave him only a 48-vote lead over Palmisano and the count won't be official until today, d'Alesandro was confident he had won. Palmisano machine men were in control in all wards, he asserted, and if there had been any possible way of counting him out, it would have been done Monday night.

He came to the Capital, he explained, just to see a few friends.

D'Alesandro attributed his success in defeating Palmisano to a machine. But the machine was not an organization of ward leaders that Palmisano had. It was the automatic balloting machine, which tabulated votes automatically.

The only time he was scared was late Monday night when returns from one of the precincts were missing and he and Palmisano were tied. The returns were found Tuesday morning, however, and he took the final lead.

Overflowing with vitality, D'Alesandro showed eagerness to "get going" in Congress. He expressed desire to serve on the House District Committee, because of his experience on the Baltimore city council, and said he is heartily in favor of District suffrage.

Economy in city government, more playgrounds for children, and traffic problems are his pet interests.

Although only 35 years old, d'Alesandro has demonstrated that he could outwit veterans at the game. For example, he made no secret of his support for Representative Lewis in the senatorial contest, but he got his name on the Tydings ticket as well through a tie-up with State Legislature aspirants.

Joke Brought Proposals

When he first went to the Maryland Legislature, he was asked in open session, as is customary, whether he was single or married.

"I'm single," he replied, "but willing to get married."

"The worst of it was," he said, "I was courting my present wife then."

He now has a family of six boys, the youngest named for his idol, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

District issues had little to do with his election, d'Alesandro said, although early in his campaign he reprinted a Washington newspaper editorial attacking Palmisano as an advertisement.

"I also jumped on Palmisano for his opposition to the numbers bill," he recalled, "but I soon drew in my horns. The people were for him on that."

New Deal Makes 'General Welfare' Real, Jackson Says

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Robert H. Jackson, United States Solicitor General, told the Illinois Municipal League tonight that "after a century and a half of slumber" the general welfare clause of the Constitution has been made vital by the Roosevelt Administration.

"When 13,000,000 families and single individuals . . . must subsist on an average annual income of $471, it is obvious that the most significant and bittter Federal issues of the future will turn on the use to be made of the general welfare clause of the Constitution," Jackson said.

He denied that Government entrance upon a broad social program constituted infringement of State or municipal rights and said that a "widening horizon of Federal legislation calls for a longer view of public affairs."

Phoebus Plans To Protest Nice's Primary Victory

Princess Anne, Md., Sept. 14 (AP).—Senator Harry T. Phoebus said today he would file with the Somerset County Board of Election Supervisors a protest against the result of the Republican primary which gave Gov. Harry W. Nice the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

"I've never before made a strenuous fight against Nice because I've never thought he was eligible," Phoebus said. Incomplete returns gave Nice more than 61,000 to 10,000 for Phoebus.

Phoebus said he would base his protest on the wording of the Maryland constitution which recommends rotation in office and says the governor shall serve until his "successor" has qualified.

Lonergan, Held Anti-New Deal, Wins by 8 to 1

Cummings, as a Delegate To State's Convention, Says Senator Has Been Loyal to Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

Eastern Point, Conn., Sept. 14.—Senator Augustine Lonergan, first Democratic Senator elected from Connecticut in 50 years, was renominated today by the Democratic State convention by an overwhelming vote over two opponents who charged him with being a New Deal foe.

Connecticut's scholarly Governor, Wilbur L. Cross, was also renominated for a fifth term by acclaim of the 1,100 delegates.

The Senator, whose supporters claimed he had "stuck with the common man" although he had voted against some of President Roosevelt's measures, gained his victory on the firts ballot. United States Attorney General Homer Cummings, a delegate to the convention, had supported Lonergan.

New Deal Convention

After the nomination Cummings told the convention "no one has been or could be nominated here who did not accept" the leadership of President Roosevelt.

"This is a New Deal convention," Cummings said, and added there was no nominee who "did not in his heart of hearts resolve to support the President as he seeks to carry forward his program of humanity and justice."

Of the European situation, he said: "We are justified in uttering a fervent prayer of gratitude to God that we have in the White House a man who loves peace and, above all men, also knows how to preserve it with honor."

Lonergan Ahead 9 to 1

Lonergan, who went to the Senate six years ago, polled 953½ votes, while his principal opponent and critic, representative Herman P. Kopplemann, Hartford attorney, received 106½. Thomas L. McDonough of New Britain, looked upon as a "dark horse" in preconvention talk, received 24½ votes.

Archibald McNeil, of Bridgeport, former National committeeman and close friend of President Roosevelt, was a fourth candidate, but withdrew two hours before the balloting, throwing his support—57 certain votes—to Lonergan.

Gov. Cross was the first chief executive of the State to serve four terms in office since Civil War days.

The convention was thrown into an uproar for a few minutes during the roll call on the senatorial nomination when a man objected to votes cast under a convention technical rule. He was ejected by State police.

C. I. O. Is Cracking Up, Green Tells Plumbers

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 14 (AP).—William Green, head of the A. F. of L., told the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steamfitters today that the C. I. O. was "now ruining itself because it is suffering the same thing its leaders tried to inflict on us—division in the ranks."

"The various wings of the subversive movements within the C. I. O. are now fighting among themselves as to which shall have control," shouted Green, "and are thus destroying their own household. Such is the fate of those who try to destroy their own family by starting a new movement of their own."

Political Arena

Gov. Moore, of N. J., to Retire 'Undefeated Champion' After 25 Years in Politics.

New York, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey announced today as he sailed for a European vacation that he wanted to retire from politics "an undefeated champion, like Gene Tunney."

MOORE.

"I've been running for office for 25 years and I've never been defeated," he said. "I don't want to start now. The pitcher can go to the well once too often. I have had enough.

The Governor said that he felt he needed a rest from office and that is the "main reason" he was going abroad. Accompanied by his wife, he plans to visit relatives in Scotland and Ireland.

New York, Sept. 14.—A boom for Representative Bruce Barton for president (of Maine and Vermont) was launched today by the Circus Saints and Sinners, who welcomed him to their first luncheon of the fall season with noise makers, pistol shots and political quips. Barton took his initiation as "fall guy" with equanimity, and made a little speech in which he compared his position in Congress to "His Majesty's loyal opposition" in the British Parliament.

Washington try-outs in the $15,000 national oratorical contest of the Young Republican Clubs will be held from October 1 to 20, inclusive.

In the local eliminations prizes will be $100, $50 and $25 for first, second and third, and the Washington champion will compete at Atlantic City in the contest to be held October 24 to October 27, meeting the leading orators from New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland. If he is successful, he will enter the finals against seven other regional winners here November 1.

Aplications for the contest are available at the office of the Republican State Committee, 1331 G street northwest. Entrants must not be less than 16 years old and not more than 24 on November 8.

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 14 (AP).—William Hard, national secretary of the Republican Program Committee, called on Republicans today to stop "making heroes" out of anti-New Deal Democrats at the "expense" of their own party.

"Most such candidates," Hard said in an interview, "only opposed one or two New Deal measures and yet have the audacity to ask Republican support."

He mentioned specifically the campaigns for re-election by United States Senator Frederick Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana, and United States Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), of New York.

The office of the Clerk of the House of Representatives said yesterday Representative Sadowski (Democrat), Michigan, had telephoned asking if there was any way in which he could challenge the victory of Rudolph Tenerowicz, who Sadowski said defeated him by 1,500 votes in yesterday's primaries in the First Michigan District.

South Trimble, clerk, after listening to Sadowski, advised him he could see no grounds for challenging.

D. C. Officials To Defend Their Budget Requests

With testimony of civic and business leaders before them, the District Commissioners yesterday prepared to hear municipal department heads justify their $66,300,000 to conduct the business of the District for the 1940 fiscal year.

Of the testimony heard from the local civic and business groups Monday and Tuesday, one District spokesman said yesterday:

"They complain about the estimates of the various department heads being too high, but if we were to total the cost of the improvements they request during the course of the year, we'd have to ask at least $75,000,000."

Beginning Monday, department heads will confer with the District Commissioners and Budget Officer Daniel J. Donovan, before the Commissioners decide on the amount to request of the Budget Bureau.

Securities Commission Promotes Davis

The Securities and Exchange Commission announced yesterday that Sherlock Davis, assistant director of the trading and exchange division, had been promoted to the post of technical adviser on over-the-counter markets.

The President Brushes Up on His Geography

"You're studying geography," she remarked.

"I certainly am," the President replied, "and I know more than ever just now how necessary it is to remember my geography lessons. So keep up your interest in geography."

Farley in Dark On Roosevelt 3d Term View

1940 a 'Question Mark,' Article Says; Asserts Robinson Was Slated For Supreme Court.

By the United Press.

New York, Sept. 14.—President Roosevelt has his "eye on 1940," but until he talks, a question mark should be placed after all speculation concerning his attitude toward a third term or the future White House occupant, Postmaster General Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, disclosed tonight.

In his third installment of his own story of the New Deal printed in the current issue of the American Magazine, Farley also said the late Senator Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas, was told by the President at the height of the Senate fight on the Supreme Court expansion bill that he would be named to the high tribunal to replace Justice Willis D. Van Devanter, retired.

Farley also complained that the mountain of publicity material released daily by various New Deal agencies is placing an unnecessary burden on the postal service, and some way should be found to "cut it down."

Denies Break With Chief

Persistent reports that he has broken with Mr. Roosevelt were refuted by Farley, who admitted that the two often disagreed and argued vigorously over things on which they did not see eye to eye. But, he wrote, "that has been happening for too many years to be magnified into a personal affair by either of us."

Farley said that he is as much in the dark as any other citizen about the President's third term aspirations, if any. He said he has not discussed the question with Mr. Roosevelt and doesn't intend to.

"It is good strategy, of course, for the opposition to keep pecking away at the question. On the other hand, it would be the worst tactics imaginable for President Roosevelt to say anything about the matter, one way or another."

President "Upset"

Farley said the President was "very much upset" by reports that Robinson died without knowing what Mr. Roosevelt "intended to do about the Supreme Court vacancy and that the worry and distress occasioned by the Chief Executive's silence had been a factor contributing to his ill-health."

"On the journey to Arkansas aboard the funeral train, I called on Mrs. Robinson to offer my condolences and she told me how happy the Senator had been over the knowledge that he was to have been appointed to the Supreme Court," Farley said.

Disabilities Force Capt. Chinn, Fire Hero, to Retire

Commended on many occasions for heroic work and winner of a ribbon decoration for service during the Knickerbocker disaster, Capt. Frank Chinn, No. 2 Truck Company, yesterday was retired from service due to disabilities incurred in line of duty.

CAPT CHINN.

Capt. Chinn was apointed to the force July 1, 1907, and was made a sergeant in 1917. On January 28, 1922, in the Knickerbocker Theater disaster, he worked courageously and was injured during the work, but refused treatment.

He was commended by the District Commissioners for his heroic efforts in connection with the Kann's warehouse fire. In 1924 he was promoted to lieutenant, and April 16, 1929, he was promoted to captain.

Capt. Chinn, who has been ill recently, resides at 9 Seventh street southeast.

Texas Democrats Back Garner For Presidency

Beaumont, Tex., Sept. 14 (AP).—Vice President Garner was indorsed today by Texas Democrats for the 1940 Democratic Presidential nomination by the one-day convention which ended early today.

O'Daniel could not vote in the primary election at which he was nominated because he hadn't paid his poll tax, and declared for repeal of the law requiring it.

Opponents, however, declared if the tax were eliminated colored citizens would gain control of some elections, and the plank was rejected.

The delegates shouted down O'Daniel when he tried to speak, but indorsed an old-age-pension plank offered by his friends.

Women in Court Fight for Child

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Mrs. Gilda Cataldo (right), who appeared in a Newark, N. J., court yesterday to fight for the child she said she gave up ten years ago when, following his birth, she lost her sight. At that time, Mrs. Lena De Angelo (left) took her son, Eugene, and provided a home for him. Later, according to Mrs. Cataldo, she was in an auto crash which restored her sight but left her an invalid with only a year to live. Mrs. De Angelo says she adopted Eugene and refuses to give him up.

Slain Veteran Thought Police 'Germans'

Sister of Keys Testifies at Trial Board Hearing; Sobolewski Case Set For Monday.

Leroy Keys, 38-year-old colored World War veteran, cried the "Germans are after me" before he was shot to death resisting arrest in his home in the 2400 block of Ontario road northwest March 8, his cousin, Minnie Bigger, of the 1800 block of Mintwood place, told the reorganized police trial board yesterday.

About the time she was testifying in the hearing room of the Fourth Precinct stationhouse, officials announced that Policeman John E. Sobolewski would go on trial on a manslaughter charge in District Court Monday as the result of the fatal shooting of Wallace McKnight, colored night watchman, on Massachusetts avenue, between Fifteenth street and Thomas circle last June 26. Sobolewski was indicted by the grand jury.

"Those Germans are after me," Keys screamed as he barricaded himself in his home, Mrs. Bigger testified.

Defendants in the case, Policeman J. W. Nally and R. M. Henry, were automatically cleared when the grand jury ignored the case after two inquests. Keys was killed while resisting arrest, the officers contend.

"I told him the policemen weren't Germans and that they were there to help him," Mrs. Bigger testified. She said she saw him throw brooks from the window, and then call to the officers:

"If you are American citizens, give me your guns."

The shooting followed several minutes later. It is the contention of the defendants that Keys threw a wrench and other heavy objects at them.

Dr. John Paul Gunion, staff physician at Mount Alto Hospital, testified that four days before Keys was killed, he received a hurry call to the Keys home. Dr. Gunion said he recommended hospitalization for observation.

Jasper Lee, on duty as an attendant at St. Elizabeths Hospital at the time Keys was a patient there in 1930, said Keys was regarded as violent.

Principal witness yesterday morning was the dead man's sister, Mrs. Lottie Mitchell, who said her brother did not begin to throw anything until the first shot was fired.

She broke down and wept at one point in her testimony.

"My brother was shot down like a dog," she said.

The case probably will be completed before the board sometime today.

Consultants Join Warrings in Tax Fraud Fight

The Warring brothers, Leo, Charles and Emmett, erstwhile overlords of the upper Northwest numbers game, yesterday were joined by Gordon L. R. Sadur and Henry L. Scheer in demanding that the Government furnish them with a bill of particulars describing the acts mentioned in indictments charging all five with conspiracy to defraud the Government through income tax returns.

Leo A. Rover, former United States attorney, and Irvin Goldstein, one of his former assistants, yesterday filed almost identical motions of particulars against Sadur and Scheer, both of whom are tax consultants.

Alcohol Unit Offers Bounties To 'Correct' Informers

Informers will be paid bounties for "correct and effective" information concerning large-scale liquor law violators, the alcohol tax unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau has decided, in an effort to overcome the handicap from the Supreme Court's ruling against wire tapping.

The acting deputy commissioner, W. H. Kennedy, has advised district supervisors and investigators that "in emergency cases, where the supervisor is of the opinion it is necessary to purchase information offered concerning violations and the informer will not furnish the information except upon being paid, the supervisor is authorized to enter into a contract with such informer for the payment of a definite reasonable sum with the understanding that the information shall prove to be correct and effective."

The amounts to be paid the informers were not stipulated, but it is the "unit's desire that expenditures for information shall be kept at the lowest possible figure."

Heretofore, the purchase of information had been in restricted scope, "but since there has been taken away one of the most productive sources of information available to the unit with respect to syndicated operations, it is felt that a more liberal policy should be adopted in connection with the purchase of information."

"It should be borne in mind that the unit's primary interest in adopting a less rigid policy toward informers is in order to encourage and facilitate the purchase of information concerning major operations," it was held.

Kennedy declined to comment. Elsewhere, however, it was learned the new policy directly follows the Supreme Court's opinion in the Frank C. Nardone case, wherein the tribunal, by 7-2 decision, outlawed wire-tapping. The case, originating in New York, nullified wire-tapping evidence in Federal courts.

La Follettes To Invade Iowa With New Party

By Geoffrey Parsons.

Madison, Wis., Set. 14.—The threatened invasion of Iowa by the LaFollette brothers' National Progressive Party today brought Iowa's Gov. Kraschel and three of his command to the Wisconsin capitol in a fruitless attempt to keep the National Progressives out of the State.

The Kraschel supporters said the entrance of a National Progressive ticket in the State election this fall would endanger Gov. Kraschel's chances of re-election. They hinted rather bluntly it would be nice if Gov. Philip La Follette would persuade his liberal followers in Iowa to step aside in the interest of Democratic success at the polls there in November. Gov. La Follette said "No."

Gov. La Follette said that not only would he not try to persuade the National Progressives to withdraw, but that he would personally go to Cedar Rapids a week from next Saturday to address the Progressives' convention. At the convention the new party will select an entire State ticket to run in this fall's election.

The Governor made it clear he held no particularly high hopes the National Progressives would elect any State officers in Iowa this fall. The main idea, he said, will be to get 2 per cent of the total Iowa vote and so qualify for a regular place on the ballot in ensuing elections.

According to Gov. La Follette, the two Governors did not meet during Kraschel's visit to Wisconsin today. Three members of the Kraschel party, however, did confer with Gov. La Follette secretly this afternoon.

The trio were Robert Burlingame, former secretary to Gov. Kraschel, John Denniston, State librarian, and Byron Allen, head of the Social Security Administration in Iowa.

National Progressive slates will be entered in at least four State elections this fall—Wisconsin, Iowa, Idaho and California. There is also a considerable movement in Oregon.

12 Coast Guard Ships To Patrol Regatta

The United States Coast Guard, with 12 boats, will again patrol the Potomac River race course during the nine days' activities of the 1938 President's Cup Regatta, which opens Saturday, it was announced yesterday.

Coast Guard boats will also serve as regatta committee headquarters during the various events. One of the 75-foot boats is scheduled to lead the parade of illuminated yachts during the al fresco pageant Thursday night, September 22.

George Takes Popular Lead In Georgia

Georgia

board, with 12,348 popular votes and a lead in one two-unit vote county. Robert Wood, Athens salesman, was fourth, with 1,125 popular votes.

Peterson Leads

Complete unofficial returns from 53 counties showed 34 counties with 82 unit votes definitely in Rivers' column to 19 counties with 40 unit votes definitely in Howell's column.

Returns from contested Congressional races came in slowly, but there were indications in some districts.

Incumbent Congressman Hugh Peterson appeared to be the winner over Thomas Edwards on the basis of incomplete returns from 18 counties in the First District.

In the Fifth District, C. L. Wood trailed incumbent Robert Ramspeck.

In the Second District, incumbent E. E. Cox led 1,001 to 962 for his opponent W. J. Crowe in the only county, Decatur, to report.

In the Fourth District, incumbent E. M. Owen led in three counties, over Phillips Moore and Sidney Camp.

Tarver Has Edge

Incumbent Malcolm Tarver had the lead in Murray County, over Mitchell Johnson, in the only returns from the Seventh District.

W. Ben Gibbs, Jesup, took an overwhelming lead over his two opponents W. C. Lankford and C. P. Watson for Congress in the Eighth District. The returns gave Gibbs 6,159, Lankford 803, Watson 1,728.

A change in the trend of popular votes could easily swing counties from one column to another in view of the incomplete returns.

A few votes were cast in the Senatorial race for W. G. McRae, Atlanta attorney, who withdrew on the eve of the election in favor of Camp. Warm Springs, where President Roosevelt spends many of his vacations, gave Camp 150 votes to 65 for George and 42 for Talmadge.

The first of six precincts to be heard from in Lamar County, where President Roosevelt last month spoke out against George and Talmadge and urged election of Camp, gave Talmadge 24 votes, George 2 and Camp 3.

Intervention of President Roosevelt for New Dealer Camp topped all other topics placed before the State voters.

Senator in Home Town

The Senator, who said the great issue raised by the President's "purge" speech at Barnesville was whether the people are "capable of choosing their own servants," voted early at his home town of Vienna, Ga., and remained there for the outcome.

President Roosevelt listed him as a conservative and said "on most questions he and I do not speak the same language." George responded that he had "supported most of the major" New Deal measures, but "frankly differed" on others; defined himself as "a liberal within limitations of the American Constitution."

Few Upsets in Yesterday's Voting

Few upsets marked yesterday's continued counting of ballots in primary elections held Tuesday in eight states. Results, as compiled from Associated Press dispatches as the counting proceeded, appeared as follows:

MICHIGAN—Former Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald was nominated by the Republicans to oppose Gov. Frank Murphy, Democrat, in November.

With one exception, Michigan's nine Republican and eight Democratic Congressmen won renomination. Five were unopposed. The lone upset was that of Representative Sadowski, First District Democrat, defeated by Dr. Rudolph G. Tenerowicz, mayor of Hamtramck, a Detroit suburb.

WASHINGTON—Senator Homer T. Bone, Democrat, defeated Otto Case, Townsendite, about 4 to 1, and the six Democratic Representatives won apparent renomination. Several close races had developed in the Republican congressional races.

Harris Wins in Utah

UTAH—Dr. Franklin S. Harris, president of Brigham Young University, was nominated by the G. O. P. to oppose Senator Elbert D. Thomas, Democrat. Representative J. W. Robinson, Democrat, will be opposed by Dean F. Brayton, Republican, in the Second District, and Representative Murdock, Democrat, will contest with Le Roy B. Young, who won Republican nomination in the First District.

VERMONT — Democrats selected Fred C. Martin, John McGrath and James P. Leamy to run for the offices of Gov. George D. Aiken, Senator Ernest W. Gibson and Representative Charles A. Plumley.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Gov. Francis P. Murphy, Republican, defeated Thomas P. Cheney for renomination, while Representative Charles W. Tobey, won Republican nomination to oppose Senator Fred H. Brown, Democrat.

Representative Alphonse Roy, Democrat, and Arthur B. Jenks, Republican, again will contest for the Congress seat which Roy won in a contest in Congress extending over most of two years. In the Second District Foster Stearns and Thomas Laite were close together, leading a nine-man race for the G. O. P. nomination.

COLORADO — Gov. Teller Ammons was well ahead of George J. Knapp in his campaign for renomination in the State's only major primary contest.

LOUISIANA — Representative J. K. Griffith and T. Overton Brooks were renominated, but Representative Newt V. Mills was forced into a run-off with D. Y. Smith.

ARIZONA — Senator Carl Hayden, Democrat, easily won renomination and will be opposed in the general election by Burt L. Clingan, Republican. Representative John R. Murdock, Democrat, had a good lead in his race to succeed himself. R. T. Jones, Secretary of State James H. Kerby and Sidney P. Osborn were closely bunched for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Alaska—Delegate Dimond and most other Democrats held large leads in the territorial elections, but the unicameral Legislature proposal was running behind.

SOUTH CAROLINA—Ballot boxes in four counties were ordered sealed upon the request of Wyndham M. Manning, who trailed Burnet R. Maybank by about 14,060 votes in the face of returns from yesterday's Democratic run-off primary for Governor. The counties were Colleton, Dorchester, Berkeley and Georgetown.

French Naval Vessel at Washington Navy Yard

Everything was being put shipshape for visitors when a photographer went aboard the French sloop D'Entrecastreaux after she docked at the Navy Yard yesterday. An escort vessel of 2,000 tons displacement, she carries a crew of 11 officers and 100 men. Albert Soyeuvre (at top) is cleaning brass nameplates while at right a trio swabs down the deck.

displacement of 1,450 tons and a waterline length of 299 feet, was authorized under the naval appropriations act of 1937. The keel was laid October 18, 1937. She will be completed about June 1, 1939.

Capital Fireman Near Death From Hanging

Fireman Leslie E. Stewart, 37, hovered between life and death last night at Gallinger Hospital several hours after he was found hanging from a rafter in the cellar of his home at 3611 Seventeenth street northeast.

Twelfth Precinct Officers O. L. Brockwell and A. K. Frank, summoned by Stewart's wife, Esther, cut the fireman down and administered artificial respiration. He was partially revived by the time the fire rescue squad arrived with an inhalator and took the man to Gallinger Hospital.

Mrs. Stewart said her husband had been on sick leave from his duties at No. 26 Engine House for the past week.

Another would-be suicide was saved from death yesterday when Private P. J. O'Sullivan, of the Seventh Precinct, seized a man who was removing his shoes on Key Bridge, apparently preparatory to leaping. He was booked at the Second Precinct Station as Robert Gingell, 63, of 1331 Thirtieth street northwest and then taken to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation.

$32, Shoes, 2 Rings Lost in 3 Holdups

Three holdups, one within a block of Police Headquarters, were staged early yesterday by armed bandits.

While they were parked in West Potomac Park Frank Connor, 3512 Thirty-fourth street northwest, and his companion Margaret Bell, 1701 Sixteenth street northwest, lost two rings and a small amount of money to two men, one of whom carried a revolver.

Using a pistol and a knife, two colored men robbed Thomas S. Richardson, 35, of Maryland Park, Md., of $6.85 and his shoes practically in the shadow of Police Headquarters in the 400 block Sixth street northwest.

Chain Store Tax Bill Assailed

New York, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. in a newspaper advertisement tonight announced the opening of a campaign against the chain store tax bill of Representative Patman (Democrat), of Texas, contending that it would mean dissolution of the chain store business, add 1,000,000 to the unemployed, deprive the farmer of 30 per cent of his distributing machinery and depress real wages for workers.

In a joint statement, George L. Hartford, chairman of A. & P.'s board, and John A. Hartford, president, termed the bill a "punitive and discriminatory tax bill frankly designed to put chain stores out of business."

100 Oil Men Hear O'Mahoney Urge 'New Constitution'

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 14 (AP).—Senator O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, chairman of the new National Economic Committee, told 200 of the country's foremost oil men today that what the United States needs is a new "economic constitution."

Addressing the National Petroleum Association, O'Mahoney observed that scientific progress, and inability to turn it to National advantage, had resulted in acute economic ills, and that only through widespread changes in basic laws could these ills be remedied.

He said the present Constitution was created in order to right economic problems in the 13 original States at a time when there were no monopolistic tendencies, crowded areas or mass industries, and "a new constitution is needed to right matters today."

Dewey Aide Jails His Butler as Thief

New York, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Barnet Ten Eyck, head of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's special fraud bureau, called police into his home today to arrest Lovett Bird, his butler, on a charge of stealing the family silver and clothing during the summer while the family was away.

Velveteen

Frocks Are Your Immediate Way to Chic

Enjoy the vogue for velveteen—its flatteringly soft glow—its youthful feeling. Perfect for first cool, but coatless, days, it is one of your smartest, most becoming approaches to an exciting new season.

We cite from our very chic collection:

A—Slimming chevron motifs make this frock distinctive—softly gathered inset and slanting pockets make it charmingly feminine. In the newly important violet, heady wine or gray velveteen..... $29.95

B—The beloved shirt frock—this time, a Nan Westly stud-fastened classic—in wine, gray or black velveteen..... $16.95

C—Beautifully simple and distinctive is this costume suit in sheer wool—eel gray—that uses velveteen for squared yoke on frock and jacket. Velveteen, too, for the jacket's sleeves. With intriguing turtle buckle..... $49.95

HOW TO AVOID BALDNESS

Watch these danger zones

DEFINITE warning signals always precede baldness. When your scalp itches or is laden with dandruff, and when your hair falls abnormally in the "danger zones" (forehead and crown) you are being warned that baldness is approaching. You must act at once if you wish to avoid baldness.

Do what a quarter-million other men have done — consult Thomas. Thomas treatment is proved by almost two decades of success — is reliable, dignified, and inexpensive. It ends dandruff, stops abnormal hair loss, and promotes hair growth on the thin and bald spots. Call today for a complete scalp examination. No charge is made for the examination nor for consultation and if you do not come within the scope of Thomas treatment you will be promptly told.

French, British Ships Surround Most of Europe

Special Cable to The Post.

London, Sept. 14.—With scarcely any display, the British and French navies were in such strategic positions today that they surrounded most of Europe with a wall of floating steel—a safety curtain which could be rung down at a moment's notice to isolate any conflagration on the continent.

Just as in 1914, when the ships of the Grand Fleet disappeared into the swirling mists off the east coast of Scotland, not to be seen again until the end of the World War, most of the British home fleet was out of sight off Invergordon, Scotland, tonight, ready to blockade the North and Baltic seas.

Further south a second fleet of 8 capital ships, 25 cruisers, 61 destroyers and 23 submarines stood by at five British naval bases ranged at intervals along the English Channel.

Hood Near Spain

Around the Iberian Peninsula the British have the battle cruiser Hood and an undisclosed number of destroyers and other vessels engaged in the Nyon antipiracy patrol. The British Mediterranean fleet patrols east of Malta are in a position to protect the Suez Canal, the narrow gateway to the British empire, and the Dardanelles, leading into the Black Sea. This fleet was last reported off Greece. The admiralty refused to reveal its itinerary, which depends on day to day developments in the European situation.

The dispositions of the fleets tonight were exactly as planned by the British and French high commands last spring, when it was agreed that the world of policing Europe's troubled waters should be divided on a practical basis.

Most of Britain's warships assigned to southern England were in port, with many in reserve and some undergoing repairs and refittings. But in almost every case the ships in reserve could be put into commission within a few hours, and the repair work on some of the craft was expected to be completed within a few days.

Disposition of Ships

At Sheerness, in the Thames estuary east of London, the battleship Resolution is undergoing minor repairs which are scheduled for completion in several days.

At Chatham, on the Medway, the cruiser Sheffield is lying up for minor repairs; 4 cruisers are in reserve; 11 destroyers are in reserve, and 2 emergency destroyers and the cruiser Emerald, of the East Indies squadron, are refitting.

At Portsmouth, the battle cruiser Repulse is just back from the Mediterranean, the battleship Rodney is undergoing a slight refit, the battle cruiser Renown is up for repairs, the battleship Queen Elizabeth is undergoing extensive modernization, and the battleship Iron Duke is on hand, the latter not of much use since she was virtually demilitarized as a gunnery training ship.

Eight Cruisers in Reserve

Also at Portsmouth are eight cruisers in reserve, nine destroyers in reserve, one scort vessel, eight minesweeping trawlers and a local flotilla of six destroyers. The cruiser Enterprise is refitting and the new cruiser Manchester, the cruiser Curacoa, eight submarines and five submarines in reserve are at Portsmouth.

Farther west, at Portland, are the battleship Royal Oak, nine destroyers of the fourth flotilla, seven submarines and their parent ship Titania, three submarines in reserve, three destroyers of an antisubmarine flotilla, six patrol vessels and several trawlers.

At Devenport, near Plymouth, are the battleship Ramillies, which is refitting; the battleship Valiant, undergoing extensive repairs; the cruiser Apollo, refitting; eight cruisers in reserve, eleven destroyers in reserve, four emergency destroyers, four minsweeping trawlers in reserve, the old aircraft carrier Hermes and the new seaplane carrier Albatross.

Chamberlain Flies Today To Conference With Hitler

London

persing for the night the crowd raised cheers for Chamberlain, who has not heard so much cheering during his troubled term in the premiership. "The most wonderful news since Armistice day," some said, who jumped to the conclusion that all would be well when Chamberlain and Hitler sat down to tea together.

Ready to Mobilize

Meanwhile Britain and France have quietly perfected plans for simultaneous mobilization of their air forces, navies and armies in case Hitler makes the fatal decision to invade Czechoslovakia.

For the moment Europe pauses on the brink of a precipice. No one could predict with certainty whether the propaganda-saturated continent would plunge over tomorrow or the day after.

Tonight the war scare was so genuine that Americans domiciled in England were preparing to evacuate their families on short notice, and the new American cruiser Nashville had anchored just off London to assist in the work of evacuation if bombing planes head for this most vulnerable metropolis.

King George VI, whose signature is necessary for any formal document mobilizing his majesty's defense forces, cut short his holiday at Balmoral Castle today and entrained for London. Later this week, at Buckingham Palace, he will receive Prime Minister Chamberlain and learn whether it is to be war or peace for the British Empire.

The chiefs of the general staffs of Britain and France have been in daily consultation by telephone since the present crisis arose. It is now reported that they have mapped out to the last possible detail the scheme of strategy envisaged under the Anglo-French military alliance.

Bombers Prepared

Within an hour after the outbreak of another World War hundreds of British fighting and bombing planes are to be flown to bases already made ready for them in France. It was denied today that some planes have already made the flight across the channel to test the arrangement. A similar test was rumored last May 21 when it was feared Hitler was about to invade Czechoslovakia.

The British home fleet is under steam in the North Sea where it is in position to attempt another blockade of Germany. The chief Mediterranean fleet is quitting Malta and the neighborhood of Italy for safer positions in the eastern Mediterranean where the Suez Canal and the Haifa oil pipe lines can be guarded. The French navy is to cooperate in covering the western Mediterranean and the Atlantic Ocean routes.

In all these calculations, the comparatively small British army is being subordinated for the time being to the air force and navy, which would go into action immediately. Eventually there probably would be another B. E. F. (British Expeditionary Force) operating in the mud of Flanders. It is assumed that a single generalissimo would command the combined French and British armies, and that Britain would command the combined Anglo-French air forces and navies.

Experts' Visit Denied.

Widely published reports that representatives of the French fighting services came to London today to establish the necessary contacts were denied in Whitehall, and again at the French embassy. Denying that any of the military experts were coming here or have come, a French spokesman said there was absolutely no need for them to do so. The French embassy has an admiral, a colonel, several captains and other military officials on its staff who have been unusually busy during the last two weeks at the admiralty, air ministry and war office, and there is no need to import experts from Paris. Besides there is the telephone.

The British cabinet met for more than two hours today to approve the emergency precautions previously devised by the defense chiefs. Cabinet ministers are remaining in London to watch developments closely.

The smiling American Ambassador Kennedy was the first diplomat seen by Chamberlain after the cabinet meeting. Tonight Kennedy issued a diplomatic denial of suggestions in the English press that the American neutrality act and the Johnson act against war-debt defaulters were under discussion. Said Kennedy: "I wish to say that no member of the cabinet, nor the foreign secretary, nor the prime minister, have ever mentioned any of these things since I have been here.

"They have made it very clear to me that they understand America's position and they have never attempted to get any expression of my opinion or that of my Government on these matters.

"They are constantly keeping me informed for the benefit of my government."

Objects to Press Report

What Kennedy objected to was a front-page article in "The Evening News," which said:

"It is believed that the United States Government may associate themselves in some way with a declaration by Britain and France on their attitude in the present situation if such a declaration is considered desirable.

"Britain is also anxious to receive further clarification from Washington on the position of the United States with regard to the interpretation of the nutrality act, in the event of the outbreak of a European conflict in which Britain might be involved.

"The neutrality act leaves the United States President a considerable amount of latitude in interpreting its clauses."

A further explanation was offered tonight by the diplomatic correspondent of the Central News Agency, who wrote under government inspiration:

"It is and throughout the present crisis always has been the policy of his majesty's government to act in concert with France and to keep the Government of the United States fully informed of every development. That has been done on the present occasion."

American foreign policy has been complicated somewhat by the unadvertised presence in London of one of President Roosevelt's intimate brain trusters, Ben Cohen, who has been seeing important people and reporting direct to Washington. Officially, Cohen is said to be working here on the Jewish refugee problem, but other sources suspect he is a roving envoy for President Roosevelt, a kind of 1938 model Col. House.

Canada Approves Visit

Ottawa, Ontario, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Chamberlain's proposal to visit Adolf Hitler at Berchtesgaden was indorsed warmly tonight by the Canadian government. Prime Minister Mackenzie King issued a statement declaring that he and his colleagues and the Canadian people "warmly approve this far-seeing and truly noble action on the part of Mr. Chamberlain."

Westminster Abbey To Hold Peace Prayers

London, Sept. 14 (A).—Westminster Abbey will be open from 8 a. m. tomorrow until 8 a. m. Sunday for continuous intercession and silent prayers for peaceful solution of the European crisis.

Hungarians Join Clamor For Plebiscite

Border Regions Echoing Sudetens' Demand on Czechoslovakia; Army Moved to Frontier.

By the United Press.

Budapest, Sept. 14.—Demands for a plebiscite among the 691,923 people of the Hungarian minority in Czechoslovakia were raised tonight as large-scale troop movements were reported along the Hungarian frontiers.

The government, it was learned, has taken all military "precautionary" measures necessary to insure defense of the borders.

It also was stated that measures to "defend the Hungarian freedom of decision" have been taken, but there was nothing to indicate whether this referred to the nation itself or the Hungarian minority in adjoining Czechoslovakia.

Although the frontier military activity appeared to be increasing there was no mention of mobilization.

The Hungarian press came out sharply with demands for a plebiscite to separate the Hungarian minority areas of Czechoslovakia, mostly in the lower district of Slovakia, and return them to Hungary.

The Hungarian minority in Czechoslovakia was described by the Budapest press as being entitled to the same rights as the Sudeten German minority.

It is "incompatible with the self-respect of a people" to be denied the right of self-determination, it was said.

The decision of Prime Minister Chamberlain to fly to Germany tomorrow to talk with Hitler was jubilantly hailed in Budapest, as a sign of easing tension and revival of hopes for a peaceful settlement of the central European crisis.

Roosevelt Rushing Back To Watch Foreign Crisis

Roosevelt

Presidential special train to bid the Chief Executive goodbye.

Polite and respectful—like all the other groups which gathered to see the President during his stay in Rochester—the crowd applauded before and after Mr. Roosevelt spoke.

Addressing "My friends of Rochester," the President continued:

"I know that I can really call you friends for all that you have done in these past few days for my family and myself.

"Not only am I going away with a full realization that every care will be taken with my oldest boy, but with a better knowledge of the very wonderful work that is being done for humanity as a whole in Rochester."

James is a patient at the Mayo Clinic. His stomach ulcer was removed Sunday morning, and his condition has been reported favorable since.

Keeps 'in Touch' on Train.

"I am going away," the President continued, "knowing that you are still going to pull for that boy of mine and that his wife (Betsy) and my wife are going to be in very good hands during the period of recovery."

The President utilized all available facilities to keep in touch with the State Department during his trip homeward. Telephones were wired to his private car at several points and telegrams and air mail correspondence were put aboard.

White House secretaries read all available newspapers for reports on the Sudeten German situation and radio bulletins were received on the train.

The President has had nothing to say about domestic politics since his trip to Rochester. He was expected to receive prompt reports on the results from Georgia's senatorial primary today, however. In Georgia, Mr. Roosevelt has urged the election of Lawrence S. Camp over Senator Walter F. George, who has opposed some key Administration measures, and former Gov. Eugene Talmadge.

Goering Recovering 'Nicely,' Aide Says

Berlin, Sept. 14 (A).—Field Marshal Goering, No. 2 man of the Nazi regime, today was reported by his adjutant to be "recovering nicely" at his hunting lodge near Berlin.

Goering became ill at Nuremberg September 11 while attending the tenth annual congress of the Nazi Party. He is suffering from catarrn and inflammation of the right leg.

Moscow Gives Chamberlain Trip Skeptical Welcome

Moscow, Sept. 14 (A).—Welcomed here tonight as a ray of hope in an otherwise dark picture was the decision of Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain to fly to Germany for a conference with Hitler. "It gives us one more day," one neutral diplomat commented.

Some Soviet quarters, however, remained skeptical. Chamberlain has been pictured in Russia as too eager to strike a bargain with Hitler at the expense of Czechoslovakia.

Considerable uncertainty prevailed in foreign diplomatic quarters of Moscow on the role the Soviet Union might play in any conflict arising out of the Czechoslovak crisis.

Ever Wonder Why You're Constipated?
Do you ever have days when you just have to drag yourself along, when you feel tired, sunk—because of that constipation? Then why not find out the real cause of your trouble?
What have you had to eat lately? Just things like meat, bread and potatoes? If that's it, you may not have to look any farther. It's likely your trouble is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination.
If "bulk" is what you lack, your ticket is a dish of crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.
Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars"! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Chinese Finance Delegation Seeks Credits in U. S.

Alameda, Calif., Sept. 14 (U.P.).—A mystery delegation of Chinese financiers, reportedly headed by T. V. Soong, governor of the Bank of China, arrived today on the Philippine Clipper from Hongkong en route to New York and Washington.

Soong, brother-in-law of Gen. Kai-Shek, was said to be seeking credits to bolster China's financial position, which is expected to be increasingly critical if the Japanese succeed in occupying the present Chinese capital — Hankow — this month.

With him are K. P. Chen, M. T. Tse and O. Yung, leading Shanghai bankers.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.
Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

'Czech Nation Doesn't Exist,' Duce Declares

Mussolini, in Open Letter To Runciman, Suggests He Urge Prague to Accept Plebiscite.

By the Associated Press.

Milan, Italy, Sept. 14.—Premier Mussolini of Italy, in an open letter to Viscount Runciman, the British mediator, today urged a plebiscite for "all Czechoslovak nationalities."

The letter was included in an article published in Il Duce's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, and was understood to have been written by Mussolini himself.

The article said Czechoslovakia was held together only by a centrifugal force and if constraint ceased the "phenomenon of dislocation of Czechoslovakia would be inevitable and irresistible."

Il Duce urged Runciman to assist with a solution "which will go down in history."

"It is no longer time for compromises," the article continued. Carlsbad has been left behind. (An apparent reference to the autonomy demands of the Sudeten leader, Konrad Henlein, at Karlovy Vary, April 24.) Benes (President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia)—a long-time parliamentarian—has lost the race. You, Signor Runciman, should simply propose to Benes a plebiscite not only for the Sudetens but for all nationalities which ask it.

"Thus you could make it known that England will think seven times before going to war simply to conserve that monstrous fiction of a state. . . . If London shows it is standing firm nobody moves. The game here absolutely is not worth the candle. . . . If Hitler wanted to annex 3,500,000 Czechs Europe would be right in being moved and moving. But Hitler is not thinking of that.

"The writer of this letter is in a position to tell you—confidentially—that whenever he is to be offered 3,500,000 Czechs, Hitler would decline such a gift politely but resolutely. Hitler is concerned and worried about 3,500,000 Germans and of them alone. No one can deny such a right. No one can oppose fulfilling of such duty. Least of all we Italians who have precedents in the matter."

The letter urged Runciman to propose these plebiscites for the "elimination of a focal center of disorder and disquiet."

"While it is practically impossible for Italy today to have a policy of friendship with Czechoslovagia, that would be possible with the Bohemia of tomorrow," the letter concluded. "Thus a new political and territorial situation would determine a new equilibrium and new possibilities and above all would save Europe from war. Millions of men think this saving is absolutely necessary. Frontiers traced in ink upon other ink can be modified. It is another thing when frontiers are traced by the hand of God and the blood of men."

War, if It Comes, Will Ravage 700-Year-Old Eger First

Cheb, as Czechs Call It, on a Promontory Jutting Into Germany, Has 30,000 Sudetens, 4,000 Natives (Who Are Also the Police), but Peace Was Reigning Until September 3.

By Walter M. Harrison.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

If you have a map of Czechoslovakia before you, put your pencil on Prague and draw a line due west 100 miles to the German frontier. There is Eger, or as it is called in Czech, Cheb.

If the Czechoslovak Republic is a sausage in the mouth of Germany, Eger is the knot with which the sausage is tied. It is a promontory jutting out into Germany.

To the west the boundary is 3 miles, to the south the horizon is punctured by a shaft to Bismarck, 10 miles away. Southward 7 miles, the smoke of a Bavarian porcelain plant smudges the hills.

Eger is in the heart of the Sudeten country. If war should come Eger probably would be one of the first of the twelfth century towns to be shattered by artillery.

It is more German than Czech. There are 30,000 Germans and 4,000 Czechs. But all the police are Czechs. You see the chances for trouble.

I went to Eger on a Saturday (September 3). There had been a week of taut nerves in Prague. Daily, tension tightened, then relaxed.

Eger was as placid as a Kansas county seat. The white stockings worn by members of the Sudeten Party were much in evidence. There were a few hasty Nazi salutes between men who passed in the Bahnhof Starsse.

In the evening the beer houses filled up. There was much conversation, which I couldn't understand, but there was nothing warlike about it.

Not more than ten people in Eger speak English. One of them, Dr. Stanislaw Dvorak, headmaster of the Eger grammar schools, drove with me to the border, where I saw the only evidence of war preparation visible in Eger.

A hundred yards from the customs house on the asphalt highway leading to Esch, a white concrete barrier striped with red has been built across the road, but it was open. Deep trenches parallel the road.

The path of the customs house is guarded by heavy steel rails, sunk like posts in a deep concrete footing. No tank could smash that fence. Across the road is a fine old fifteenth century church. One high explosive shell would wreck it.

I saw a party of tourists coming out of the customs house with their hands full of chamber of commerce booklets on the glories of Prague. Through the tank traps strolled a sturdy young German woman, pushing a perambulator.

Chamberlain Visit to Hitler Amazes Geneva

Czechs Want to Know if He Goes as Champion or To Put Country on 'Butcher's Block.'

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, Sept. 14.—Diplomats assembled in Geneva for a League of Nations meeting, were taken by surprise today by the announcement of British Prime Minister Chamberlain's visit to Adolf Hitler, and called it a "courageous act of gerat historical importance."

"It is incredible," said one central European representative, "but it shows amazing courage."

"Does this mean we go on the buther's block or can it be our champion is going forth to battle?" asked a Czechoslovak spokesman.

None of the leading delegations at Geneva except the British knew of Chamberlain's plans until the communique was issued in London.

British spokesmen previously indicated the Czechoslovak-Sudeten German question might be brought before the League of Nations with statements from the French and British foreign ministers.

The spokesmen declined to elaborate, however, on when such a move might take place. Foreign Secretary Halifax is still in London and Foreign Minister Bonnet still in Paris.

Attention of the 20 foreign ministers and hundreds of diplomats here was drawn by the Czech crisis away from the League Assembly and council session. Most of them maintained constant touch with their respective capitals to watch developments.

Because of the crisis, activities were limited to the organization of committees for action on a score of questions when the crisis subsides.

Earl de la Warr, British lord privy seal, who had been expected to return to Geneva after today's London cabinet meeting, remained at the British capital. Stanley Bruce, Australian delegate, hurried off to London.

Crisis Raises Rumor of Call To Congress

Special Session Discussed, But Appears Unlikely; Hull Will Confer With President Today.

Tenseness of the international situation brought a flurry of special session rumors at the Capitol yesterday.

Speculation turned on possible repeal or modification of the Johnson act, which prohibits further United States lending to war debtors, and the neutrality act, forbidding shipments of arms to nations at war.

While there was no official indication the President would call Congress back, it was pointed out that the Government now is barred from extending financial aid to England or France, if it chose to do so.

Nor could it ship arms or munitions to either country if they are involved in hostilities. On the other hand, it was pointed out that the President would have to proclaim a state of war before the arms ban took effect, and he has never done so in the Sino-Japanese conflict. There may be no formal declaration of war in event of hostilities, and the President might again use his discretion in the matter.

Embarrassment Feared

Arguments auguring against a special session on neutrality or repeal of the Johnson act involved the certainty that the mandatory neutrality bloc would vigorously oppose repeal of either measure. A special session split on these measures might operate to embarrass the Government's foreign policy.

Senator Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, predicted that a war would bring a White House summons of a special session.

Momentary relief and eager hope for clearer skies came to the State Department with the bold gesture of Prime Minister Chamberlain in arranging to fly to Germany today for a personal conference with Chancellor Hitler.

To See President Today

Today Hull will meet with the President and one subject of discussion will be whether a last-minute plea for peace by the United States would be of any help or use.

In various European key points American Consuls advised American travelers to go home at once or book passage. The advice was offered in response to questions and was given on the initiative of Consuls acting under general instructions of long standing.

Secretary Hull told a press conference that all American representatives throughout the world, were well-informed as to their functions relating to an emergency and knew the various laws and regulations and planning requirements.

French Envoy Calls

The Secretary had nothing to say about the European situation. He mentioned briefly a visit today from the French Ambassador, Rene de Saint Quentin, who has just returned from Paris. The Ambassador called to pay his respects and made certain general observations over the rend in Europe, Hull said.

The French Ambassador himself told reporters: "Events in Europe are moving very fast—too fast," he said. Later Dr. Karel Brejska, Czechoslovakian charge d'affaires, talked with Jay P. Moffat, head of the European division of the State Department. Previously Dr. Brejska declared his country would fight if it was invaded.

There are two American cruisers in British waters which could be utilized to bring back Americans if necessary. The Chief of Naval Operations ordered the Nashville ahead of schedule to Gravesend where the Honolulu will also report on September 22.

Meanwhile other government departments here were looking to preparation against the occurrence of war abroad. Secretary of the Treasurer Morgenthau talked with his aides about keeping monetary stability. It was disclosed that the Treasury had taken $103,000,000 more out of the last financing offers than it had called for.

Phillips Cancels Holiday

Rome, Sept. 14 (AP).—United States Ambassador William Phillips, today postponed a trip home for the second time in order to watch what Italians considered the heightening European crisis.

Phillips had planned to sail tomorrow but canceled his passage, as he previously had done August 30, because of his key position as official United States observer at the Rome end of the Rome-Berlin axis.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Sept. 14.—Gerhart H. Segar, former member of the German Reichstag and now editor of a weekly Yorkville newspaper, told 200 members of the Rotary Club of Brooklyn today that Hitler wanted to go down in history as "the man who corrected Bismarck."

Bismarck, he said, had the choice of either forming a greater Germany to include nations such as Austria and parts of Poland, or else uniting minor states such as Prussia, Saxony and Bavaria. Bismarck, Segar said, chose the latter course, while Hitler wants to unify all the German people no matter where they are.

Segar, who escaped from a German concentration camp after six months' imprisonment and came to America four years ago, said war is inevitable. Hitler, he said, wants war.

The mild inflation in Germany, coupled with the barter system now prevalent in the Reich, would give Germany ample funds to finance a conflict, he believed.

Reich Firm Seeks Oil In Pay for Canada Job

Calgary, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—The German corporation Tropicorp, with headquarters in Berlin, has offered to construct a 1,000-mile Canadian pipeline and take oil in payment, presumably for shipment to Germany, it was said here today.

R. A. Brown, sr., of Calgary, chairman of the Alberta Petroleum Association, said the offer was made by a letter for the line, to run from Calgary to Vancouver at a cost of $16,000,000.

Not for an instant, however, despite the lifting of the clouds for the immediate future, was there to be a relaxation of military precautions.

Informed quarters said the government had completed plans for mobilization of enough reservists to have 4,000,000 men under arms in the empire, if necessary.

American observers hailed the announcement of the impending Chamberlain-Hitler visit as the "best news for a long time."

France's preparations for mobilization were in addition to precautionary operations which have brought an estimated 2,000,000 men under arms already in France, some hundreds of thousands of them in the Maginot line facing Germany.

Daladier Interceded

By John Elliott.

Special Cable to The Post.

Paris, Sept. 14.—The unprecedented step of a British prime minister making a visit to Chancellor Hitler to beseech him to keep the peace, is due to the intercession of the French government, Premier Daladier said in a statement tonight.

The French premier declared:

"Toward the close of yesterday afternoon in the presence of the rapid unfolding of events in Czechoslovakia, which rendered negotiations on the spot very difficult, I took the initiative of establishing a personal and direct contact with the British premier and prime minister.

"I took this step with a view to examining with him the possibility of invoking an exceptional procedure permitting the investigation with Germany of the most effective method of obtaining a friendly solution of the differences which separate the Sudetens from the Prague government and hence to maintain the peace of Europe. I am, therefore, particularly happy about the accord of conceptions between the two friendly governments."

Chamberlain's interview of tomorrow with the Nazi dictator is regarded in Paris as the last hope of averting war. With the Sudeten Germans in a state of open revolt and with negotiations between them and the Czechs definitely broken off, it is believed here that the German government is on the verge of intervening in the affairs of that country. Reports received here stated that Hitler this afternoon was in conference with his chief military advisers and the generals of the German army at Berchtesgaden.

Czech Envoy Reassured

Foreign Minister Bonnet received Stefan Osusky, the Czech minister, this afternoon and told him that France would not recoil before any threat of force on the part of the German government. The French Foreign Minister also declared that his government was prepared to support any conciliatory solution of the Sudeten German problem that was acceptable to both the Prague government and to the Henlein party.

In order to be ready to fulfill France's obligations under her treaty of alliance with Czechoslovakia, the ministry of war was reported to have drafted orders for the calling up of eight classes of soldiers from 1924 to 1931. This involves about 2,000,000 men. The cabinet, however, has opposed decreeing a mobilization for the time being, so as not to give Hitler the excuse of accusing France of giving provocation.

According to an infallible report, however, the French government is divided as to the policy that should be pursued in the crisis. Bonnet, supported by former Premier Camille Chautemps, is said to be ready to accept a plebiscite in the Sudeten German provinces as a means of securing a peaceful settlement of the problem. This is opposed by the French general staff, by Paul Reynaud, minister of justice, and by Georges Mandel, minister of colonies, on the grounds that if France were to yield again to Hitler's show of force, as she did in the matter of the Rhineland occupation in 1936, and agrees to a partition of Czechoslovakia, it would only be postponing the inevitable conflict with Nazi Germany which she would have to accept later under more unfavorable circumstances, without any allies in eastern Europe.

Alexandrian and Family Headed for Danger Zone

George F. Kennan, shown with his family above at their home in Alexandria, Va., will sail soon for Prague, Czechoslovakia, where Kennan will take up his duties as second secretary of the U. S. Legation. Following four years in Moscow, Kennan spent the past year in the State Department here.

Sudetens Battling With Machine Guns; Storm Troopers Fire Across Border

Czech

Wenzel Hotel by a hand-grenade attack. The Czech suspicions proved correct, for a large quantity of machine guns and revolvers and ammunition were found.

A little later the Victoria Hotel fighters were subdued and more arms were found. In the Wenzel Hotel the police seized a man who used to be in the Sudeten Party headquarters at Prague.

2,000 Battle Troops

The kidnaping at Schwaderback brought about a battle in which a regiment of Czech troops and 2,000 civilians participated. It began Tuesday night when Nazis stormed the Schwaderback police station, killing three policemen. Out-of-town police telephoned the headquarters yesterday, and when they received no reply immediately, 40 policemen were dispatched to the scene in a lorry. The lorry was ambushed by the Sudetens outside the town, the police were seized and swept across the border, where six customs men were added to the captives.

Czech military authorities replied to this attack by ordering a regiment based at Glasanitz to Schwaderback. The troops deployed in a hillside field outside the town, mounting machine guns, anti-tank guns and field artillery. With flags flying and his men ready to go into action, the Czech commander called on the Sudetens to surrender the town and evacuate the police station and other public buildings they had seized.

Fear Border Incident

In reply, the Sudeten Nazi leaders warned the Czechs that if they opened fire, their bullets undoubtedly would sweep across the border into the German town of Sachsenberg, which shares the frontier with Schwaderback. Realizing that this might bring about the long-feared German intervention, the Czech commander withdrew temporarily and called the general staff in Prague for instructions. The Prague authorities, after considering the potential seriousness of the situation, ordered the commander to withdraw his troops three kilometers (nearly two miles) and await further orders.

At an early hour this morning, the Nazis still were in control of the town and the 46 men still were prisoners in Germany.

Official Report of Clash

The official report of the clash at Schwaderbach said:

A very serious incident occurred at the frontier opposite the German city of Sachsenberg. The situation is particularly serious, because the elements resisting Czechoslovak authorities are armed not only with rifles and pistols, but with hand grenades and machine guns probably obtained from abroad.

The elements combating the authorities (at Schwaderbach) were in a situation which enabled them to cross the international border at will.

There was loss of life, but the authorities proceeded cautiously to prevent greater loss and because they did not wish to risk creating an international incident.

A number of other incidents occurred throughout the day, with battles raging at many places in the Sudeten areas. The death total was expected to mount hourly.

Troopers Cross Border

At Weipart, on the frontier with German saxony, German storm troopers wearing brown Schutz Staffel uniforms crossed the border into Czech territory and seized a man and woman they accused of being Communists. The prisoners were dragged into Germany, while Cech road workers who attempted to go to their rescue were fired upon.

At Haberspirk, Sudeten storm troops were batiling Czech police. The Sudetens were fighting from trenches, and the police had thrown artillery and tanks into the fray. The insurgents, after heavy fighting, were given five hours to withdraw, presumably into Germany.

Other clashes occurred at Tauschkau and Groskau.

Other Cabinets Meet

By the United Press.

Cabinets and other government bodies not directly affected by the Czech-Sudeten crisis prepared last night for extension of the conflict, still confined to the Czechoslovakian border.

At Copenhagen the cabinet met and discussed the European situation. Reports that Danish troops had been called to service were denied authoritatively.

In Canberra, after a meeting of the Australian cabinet, Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons announced, "Britain has been advised that the commonwealth is in the most complete accord with British measures taken to achieve settlement of the Sudeten problem."

At Sinaia, Rumania, the crown council met, presided over by King Carol. The meeting, which was understood to have discussed the Czech-Sudeten problem, was attended by the premier, chief of the general staff, and the ministers of interior, war, navy and aviation. The cabinet was to meet at Bucharest at 10 p. m.

At Oslo, recruits who were to have been discharged today after completion of training were ordered to remain on the alert pending clarification of the Czech-Sudeten situation.

2 Veteran Civil Servants To Accompany Chamberlain

By the Associated Press.

London, Sept. 14.—Prime Minister Chamberlain will be accompanied on his flight to see Reichsfuehrer Hitler tomorrow by two of Britain's veteran civil servants.

They are Sir Horace John Wilson, 56, known as "the big brain" of the civil service and the man who broke the general strike in 1926," and William Strang, 45, head of the foreign office's central European department.

Sir Horace—"H. J." to those who know this ubiquitous little man—is considered the prime minister's personal brain trust. His views probably have more influence on Chamberlain than those of any other person—although he is virtually unknown to the man in the street.

Blue-eyed, round-shouldered, with the face of a poet and the mind and training of an economist, Sir Horace entered the civil service in 1903. Two years ago he was drafted "for personal service to the prime minister."

Before becoming right-hand man to Prime Minister Baldwin, and later to Chamberlain, Baldwin's successor, Sir Horace was a general utility man in government affairs. He had been active in the recent London discussions of the Czech crisis.

Strang perhaps was closer than any other man to Anthony Eden, who resigned as foreign secretary when he disagreed with Chamberlain's "realistic" policy of dealing with dictators.

When he was only 26, Strang joined the foreign office and eventually became head of the League of Nations department. He is an expert at note-taking and will serve as Chamberlain's secretary during the discussions with Hitler—just as he did when Eden and Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, conferred with the Fuehrer in Berlin, March 24-26, 1935.

That meeting between Britain's representatives and Hitler was for discussions on Anglo-German security. It failed, however, to produce a solution to the major problems then imperiling Europe's peace.

Queen Mary Carries Record Gold Shipment

London, Sept. 14 (AP).—The liner Queen Mary sailed for New York today carrying gold valued at £9,000,000 (over $43,000,000), a record transatlantic shipment of the yellow metal. A special six-car train transported the gold from London to Liverpool, the ship's sailing point.

The cargo represents the largest shipment in the huge flow of gold out of England set off when the pound sterling started its long decline more than two months ago.

Berlin

all military airports in the vicinity of Berlin were placed on emergency schedules.

Official commentators pointed out Hitler's emphatic insistence upon liberty and justice for the Sudetens in Czechoslovakia in his speech Monday before the Nuremberg Nazi congress, although he was careful not to call for immediate union with Germany.

That this union is Germany's final goal is clearly understood by Britain and France, advices from German embassies in London and Paris indicate.

Only One Witness

It was expected here that only one person besides Hitler and Chamberlain would attend the Berchtesgaden conference when the two powerful statesmen meet. He is Paul Schmidt, expert translator, who has attended more intimate political confabs with foreign statesmen than any other German. London dispatches, however, said Chamberlain was bringing his own interpreter.

Whatever may come out of the meeting, Hitler already has gained a victory in another quarter. Word received tonight from Memel, Lithuania, said the defense minister had liberated a number of Memel Germans who had been given jail sentences in connection with recent incidents there.

Memel, a territory of 1,099 square miles with a population of 151,960, was detached from Germany by the Treaty of Versailles and made a semiautonomous state in Lithuania.

Before the radio broke the evening concert broadcast to inform the nation that Chamberlain was coming, Germans had spent an anxious day. The news was received too late for evening papers, which continued to hammer away angrily at charges of "Czech murder of Sudeten Germans." Page-long accounts were given over to stories of disorders near the border in which 13 Sudetens were reported killed.

Other factor's in Germany's nervous tension were:

Stern warnings to beware of spies.

Requisition of private automobiles in increasing numbers, to be shipped westward for use in building fortifications facing France.

Air raid practice blackouts in various sections.

Members of the United States consulate staff said their advice to Americans had been given after inquiries from numerous United States citizens about what to do in face of the grave central European situation.

American residents of Berlin were not advised to leave, however, officials said.

Munich and Nuremberg were expecting "unannounced" blackouts tonight and Berlin expected a "lights out" order tomorrow night. Accordingly Nuremberg's gay decorations for the recent Nazi congress gave way to somber black.

So great was the demand for material to darken windows that black cloth could not be bought in many parts of Germany, including Berlin. Black paper was substituted.

There was such a rush for gas masks that private Berlin dealers said they could not fill orders today before the end of October.

Nazi welfare organizations, however, urged the populace in radio broadcasts and through the press to provide themselves immediately with the so-called "people's gas masks" which are distributed only through Nazi organizations.

Enough "people's gas masks" were on hand to supply the need, Nazi welfare workers said.

Hand in hand with these precautionary measures went stern warnings to the population to beware of spies. Newspapers like Der Angriff, organ of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, joined in the warnings.

With the approval of the supreme military command, the press released popular articles showing how through careless talkativeness treason could inadvertently be committed. The penalty for this, it was pointed out, is death.

Flight Across Border

Dramatizing the Sudetens situation, newspapers ran accounts saying that whole villages of these Germanic people were deserted in a flight across the border into neighboring German towns.

One example cited was Breitenbach from which it was said all residents fled—except two old women who stayed behind to tend cattle. Other villages mentioned were Waldmuenchen, Hasselbach and Schwaderbach.

The press campaign centered on three points:

Demands for a plebiscite in which the 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans would determine their future status.

Depiction of Czechoslovakia as a state in which law and order were totally lacking.

All physicians and nurses of one large hospital were informed secretly just where each was to go in case of war; private automobiles were requisitioned in increasing numbers for use in western fortification work, and it was learned waiters had been conscripted in Berlin restaurants and shipped westward.

General nervousness was reflected among foreign business firms. Two British concerns sent all their British employes to England, leaving German representatives in charge.

Some Frenchmen living in Germany also were leaving.

Only Miracle Can Halt War, Says Czech Here

Nothing short of a miracle can prevent a European war, in the opinion of Dr. Karel Brejska, Czechoslovakian charge d'affairs here, as he yesterday watched developments in his country.

From his study in the chancery of the Czechoslovakian legation at 2349 Massachusetts avenue, Dr. Brejska kept abreast of the situation through the newspapers. His diplomatic reports, he explained, were slower.

The charge d'affaires would not admit, however, that the current fighting constituted civil war.

A civil war between the Sudeten Germans and the Czechs, he said, would be ridiculous as the Germans are outnumbered more than 4 to 1.

"We have known for some time," he said, "that the Nazis have been smuggling arms—machine guns and hand grenades—into our country."

"But the Germans are split in their views on annexation by Germany," he said. "The social democrats, who constitute about 10 per cent of the German population, are strongly opposed to any such move, and even the Henleins are divided, many of them having no desire to become a part of the Reich."

Explaining the martial law which provoked the current revolt, he said civil courts, rather than military courts, are still in control and the public cannot be excluded.

Puerto Ricans Want No CCC Camps

Rafael Martinez Nadal, president of the Puerto Rican Senate, said yesterday that Civilian Conservation Corps camps costing $2,000,000 were being demolished on the island "without ever having been occupied."

He said that the construction of the camps by the Puerto Rican reconstruction administration proved a "foolish undertaking" because the "Puerto Rican people rebel at any form of regimentation, and would rather starve to death than live in camps."

Supreme Gesture

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain has never been a statesman addicted to heroics. A man of strong personality, he has a violent distaste for histrionic attitudes and Napoleonic gestures.

For that very reason his decision to fly to Berchtesgaden and hold a face-to-face conference with Hitler is all the more dramatic. For weeks on end he has done all in his and his government's power to prevent the German-Czechoslovak crisis from coming to a head. But before admitting defeat, the British Prime Minister has decided to play one last card.

In a sense the proposed trip to Berlin is the logical sequel to the Runciman visit, the mobilization of the British home fleet in the North Sea, the warning issued by Sir John Simon to Berlin. But it also overshadows all that has come before. It is Chamberlain's supreme proof of his will to peace, his determination to prevent a European war if it is at all possible to do so.

The move appeals to the imagination. It may have constructive possibilities for good. But there is also no denying the possibility that by emphasizing so dramatically Britain's intense eagerness for peace, an eagerness which Prime Minister Chamberlain shares so intensely as to compel him to go, hat in hand, to Berlin, it may only increase Nazi truculence. Mr. Chamberlain's personal intervention in the Czechoslovak crisis may, therefore, prove to be the turning point, whether for good or evil, in the European situation.

The Other Half

Since the ultimate purpose of all productive activities is to satisfy the demands of the consuming public, it is amazing that we know so little about the way in which the national income is apportioned. Until a few days ago, when the National Resources Committee released a very exhaustive report on the distribution of consumer incomes in 1935-36, the only comparatively up-to-date comprehensive inquiry into this important subject was the Brookings Institution study entitled "America's Capacity to Consume," based on 1929 income estimates.

Hitherto the comfortably situated have been compelled to take largely on faith President Roosevelt's reiterated assertion that one-third of the Nation is "ill-housed, ill-clad and ill-nourished." Now the statistics showing the pitiful inadequacy of the incomes received by a large proportion of America's workers make it apparent to all that the President's conclusions are well founded. But it is essential at the same time to avoid jumping to the conclusion that the existing maldistribution of incomes can be remedied suddenly by compulsory redistribution.

The statistics show that even if the national income were divided evenly, to give each individual or every family group an equal share in the total, the amount received would be quite insufficient to maintain the decently comfortable living conditions which we rather smugly decribe as the "American standard." It is perfectly obvious that we have not only a problem of income distribution to solve but one of production. Mere equity in distribution of incomes is no guarantee that individual well-being would be substantially increased.

There is also danger that statistical analyses will exaggerate the extent of real income disparities, since they obviously cannot take account of the redistribution of income resulting from gifts, and less formal voluntary sharing that ekes out inadequate returns. Such erratic and unpredictable reapportionment of real consumer income does not of course provide a defense of existing inequalities, but does mitigate somewhat the hardships of maldistribution.

It is also important, in studying the social consequences of income inequality, to allow for tax payments of the upper income groups. That has not been done in the report made by the National Resources Committee, since the study was designed to trace the direct flow of income into the hands of various groups of consumers. However, in considering what needs to be done to elevate national living standards it will be necessary to consider to what extent income taxes should be employed to correct inequalities.

A recent analysis by Prof. Rufus S. Tucker indicates that incomes are much less concentrated in the United States today than during and after the Civil War. "The really important question," concludes this former Republican braintruster, "is not how large the large incomes may be, but whether or not they are the result of activities beneficial to the Nation."

This opinion no doubt underestimates the social detriment of too concentrated control of wealth, but it does emphasize the fact that the mere correction of monetary inequalities in income is no guarantee of greater wealth and improved living standards for all the people.

Germany's Allies

From both Tokyo and Rome during the last few days there have been strong expressions of solidarity with the Third Reich. These sentiments must, no doubt, be taken with a grain of salt. To no small extent, perhaps, they may be said to belong in the category of collective bluff which the aggressor nations have used with such devastating effect to produce the present state of collective insecurity. But by that very token it would be the height of unwisdom to ignore these pronouncements from Japan and Italy or discount them too much.

When, for instance, the spokesman of the Japanese foreign office declares that "Japan is prepared as ever to join forces with Germany and Italy for fighting against Red operations," the implication is that in the event of a European war Japan will launch an assault on Russia. Since Japan's capacity to do that has been seriously weakened by the 14 months of fighting in China, the assistance Tokyo can render Germany at this time is obviously limited. Nonetheless Japan remains a factor to be reckoned with and what the island empire may do is bound, therefore, to play some part, slight though it may be, in the calculations of Paris and London.

Of far greater moment is the attitude adopted by Italy. Silent for some weeks while the German-Czechoslovak crisis was drawing to a climax, the Fascist regime has now taken a stand 100 per cent in favor of the Third Reich. Indeed, Italy is going further than even Hitler has so far seen fit to go by suggesting, semiofficially, that Czechoslovakia cede the Sudeten districts to Germany as the only way of preventing a European war.

It is easy to retort that in making this proposal Mussolini is urging the Czechs to do what he himself is entirely unwilling to do. The German-speaking minority in southern Tyrol is and always has been very much more oppressed than the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovia. Yet the Duce has not the slightest intention of granting to the Tyrolese the right of self-determination he favors for the Sudetens. The fact remains that in espousing the idea of Czechoslovak partition, the Duce is uttering an unmistakable warning to Paris and London that they need not expect Italian support against Germany or even Italy's neutrality in the event of a European war.

In this he may be bluffing. Now, as heretofore, it is hardly to Italy's long-run interests to see Germany grow greater or more powerful than she already is. Nonetheless French and British statesmen now have to take into account the possibility that, in the event of a war against the Third Reich, France will have to guard not only her German but also her Spanish and Italian frontiers as well. Any tendency in Paris to urge Czechoslovakia to make further concessions to Henlein and Hitler, and such a tendency is already powerful, may in consequence of the Italian attitude, be accentuated.

The Berlin-Rome-Tokyo triangle is, in the opinion of most observers, little more than a blackmailing device with which to wrest concessions from the harassed and hard-pressed democracies. But as such it continues to have great potentialities for trouble.

The District Chairman

Barring a contest because of the closeness of the vote by which Representative Palmisano was defeated in the Maryland primary contest, the House District Committee will have to look for a new chairman when Congress assembles in January. Next in line to Mr. Palmisano is Representative Ambrose J. Kennedy, also of Maryland. By those familiar with Mr Kennedy's legislative record his selection for the post would be considered a real boon to the District. He has served three terms on the District Committee and during that time has shown both courage and disinterestedness in dealing with local issues.

In 1937, for example, as chairman of a sub-committee on taxes, he fought hard for the passage of an effective income tax in face of a selfish and successful opposition led by members of Congress. Later, in a public tax hearing he argued in favor of applying the local business privilege tax to Baltimore firms doing business here. As a resident of Baltimore it was undoubtedly a political risk for Mr. Kennedy to take this eminently fair position. The District also owes Mr. Kennedy a vote of thanks for securing an appropriation to make a study of local governmental problems. That inquiry is now under way, and the results should soon be known.

However, the elevation of Mr. Kennedy to the chairmanship of the District Committee will be barred because of House rules unless he surrenders his chairmanship of the Claims Committee. Resignation of the latter position would undoubtedly entail a sacrifice on his part and relinquishment of a very important task. For the Claims Committee handles many important cases despite the lack of publicity about its activities. A trained businessman, scrupulous in his dealings, eager to do justice to all, while granting special favors to none, is needed for this post.

It seems doubtful whether either of the two able representatives next in line for the chairmanship of the Claims Committee would be willing to resign their present chairmanships on other House committees. But it is futile to speculate about such matters. To District residents at least, it seems of prime importance to have as their chief representative in the House someone who knows the problems of the local government and is eager to forward intelligent efforts to solve them.

Profit For The G. O. P.?

Mr. Landon's plea that Democrats should consider the advisability of voting for Republican candidates in the November elections must be examined against the background of the recent primaries. Indeed, the last Presidential nominee of the G. O. P. admits as much when he advises this course only if the Democratic Party is not rescued by its own membership "from the dangers of one-man rule."

From Iowa to Georgia, both in space and time, the failure of the purge technique shows clearly that the rank and file of Democrats do not intend to play follow-the leader for Mr. Roosevelt. Senators with the Presidential blessing have gone down like nine-pins while those branded with Executive disapproval have in several instances been returned triumphant. In many States there is no indication that Democratic voters need to turn to the Republican Party to voice a protest against Executive dictation. The protest already voiced has been eminently successful.

Indeed, from the viewpoint of pure logic, the reverse of Mr. Landon's thesis might well be argued. To fortify the opposition which he rightly regards as essential it would seem equally rational for Republicans to give support to those Democrats who have already successfully faced the President's displeasure. There is certainly no call for Maryland Democrats, for instance, to oppose Senator Tydings in November merely to express hostility to one-man government.

In his speech at Little Rock Mr. Landon, for all his effort against political bias, was unquestionably speaking from the viewpoint of the Republican Party worker. Regeneration of that party, which its former Presidential candidate regards as essential, should precede, not follow, its appeal for electoral support. If its candidates are of the high type which Mr. Landon demands they will secure a large proportion of the independent vote. But there is as yet no reason to see why such votes should automatically be given to all who call themselves Republicans.

The failure of the attempted purges is not a symptom to encourage Republican politicians. It indicates that constructive criticism in the next session of Congress may be voiced most effectively by an experienced group of Democratic Senators. Lacking leadership of their own the Republican minority would be more liable to follow than to lead in opposition.

How this works out will depend in large measure on the course the President now elects. It is for him to decide whether he will aggravate, or endeavor to harmonize, the factions in his party. Far-reaching political realignments are obviously possible. But that does not mean that the G. O. P. will automatically gain thereby. For that end skillful leadership and constructive thinking will, as Mr. Landon suggests, be the primary requisites.

Dr. Albert Wiggin says no new sin has been invented in 5,000 years. Maybe not, but many of our moderns are putting some twists on the old ones.

The Government is spending almost as much money as it did during the World War, but, anyway, nobody is trying to sell us a Liberty bond.

What is the American Liberty League anyway—a searching party?

"Only a blithering fool is certain about anything in this strange world," declares a Harvard professor. Sure about that, professor?

From Esquire.

An umpire's life, during the playing season in the major leagues, is rather a restricted one. Assignments are made about 16 days in advance, although there was a time when they didn't receive more than a few days' notice of their next stop. They still do not know, however, with whom they are to work until they report.

Umpires are permitted to pick their own hotels, but there is an unwritten law that they must avoid stopping in the hostelries which house the ball clubs, although there is no penalty if they should do so. Under no circumstances, however, may they fraternize with players, either on or off the field.

They must be unusually circumspect in their choice of amusements. They can't afford to be seen at a night club or at a bar for fear some rabid fan or club official would claim that social activities were interfering with their work. Most of them don't like to go to movies or read too much for fear it will dull the keenness of their eyes. As a result, they sit around and talk to each other about baseball!

At some of the stops, however, they find a bit of recreation. American League umpires in Chicago always get a meal or two at the home of Emmett "Red" Ormsby, a fellow-arbiter. For years in St. Louis an undertaker used to send his auto to meet the umpires and entertain them during their stay. Since his death recently, his son has been carrying on the unusual program.

Appeal Board

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The several unions of Federal employes have adopted platforms seeking the establishment of an appeal board. Your Scott Hart made a splendid editorial comment about this. He takes the position that reprisal might result in the event an employe would prosecute an appeal. Under the present civil-service laws and regulations it is extremely doubtful whether any legislation creating an independent board of appeals with finality of decision would stand the test of constitutionality.

Any other type of board would be considered insufficient. The average Federal employe would be afraid to prosecute an appeal to other than an independent board. The principal item for consideration is whether the creation of an independent board of appeals with finality of decision is constitutional. Then the Congress could vote on establishing an independent board with finality of decision. This subject is not new. Back in 1934 and 1935 your writer prepared numerous items seeking establishment of an independent board. In 1935 the House passed such a bill.

Back to Scott Hart's item. If there is created an independent board of appeals with finality of decision there would be no fear of reprisal. Any other tribunal would not suffice. Yes, there would be fear of reprisal and have you ever heard of anyone prosecuting an appeal who has "two strikes called?"

It is not too late for the several unions to fight for an independent board of appeals with finality of decision.

Changes In The South

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is an entirely different situation in the South from that which prevailed at the close of the Civil War. The next Federal census will reveal illiteracy among the colored people in that section to be very close to the vanishing point in all but two States, while the influence of great Southern universities on large segments of the white population have put them abreast—at least in education—with the rest of the country.

In recent years the younger element of white women in the States of Louisiana and Texas in convention assembled have put themselves on record demanding a square deal for the colored group. Students from the Methodist University at Dallas, Tex., aided in the organization of the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in that city. I could cite several other equally significant events in the South which reveal the unquestionable growth of a large element of liberals in that section.

When colored and white sharecroppers, overwhelmed by a common disaster, sit in the same meetings in States like Arkansas and Georgia, and intercollegiate meetings of white and colored students are occurring periodically in that section, there is revealed the making of a New South, unafraid to face the responsibilities of a modern democratic government.

There has grown up in the South in the last generation an entirely new type of race leadership—specialists in education, highly successful business men and women, eminent medical practitioners and lawyers who have the confidence of the communities in which they live. THOMAS H. R. CLARKE.

Paradoxical Pacifists

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why are our pacifists so devoid of intelligence and courage? The board of the National Small Businessmen's Association has approved a resolution "that the governments responsible for perpetuating war upon a helpless world will gain the enmity of the American people for generations to come." Certainly they should have such enmity, for the military aggressors have cost and are costing the American people billions of dollars. But with total lack of sense—or is it abject cringing fear?—the first part of the resolution is "that we will close our doors to traffic in war aid of any sort." In other words these small businessmen propose to condemn Germany and Italy for starting European wars, promising them our lasting enmity, but at the same time these businessmen propose to close our doors to any purchases that the threatened democracies might make in this country. We are to show our enmity by helping our enemies!

Mutual Distrust

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While the deafening roar of the threat of war resounds from afar, the war in our own streets goes on: the war between the pedestrian and the motorist. Perhaps a credo of mutual distrust between them, ironic though it may sound, might provide an approach to safety.

Maybe something like this would help:

Let every pedestrian consider the driver of every automotive vehicle a fool whose machine is already out of control. Let the motorist similarly consider the pedestrians, even those walking sanely on the sidewalks, potential nincompoops likely to revert in a flash to any infantile caprice or form of senile mind-wandering. In other words, let each maintain at all times a mutual distrust of the sanity of the other. For neither the "Stop" sign, the "red light" nor the white lines of crosswalks are any guarantee against bad brakes or bad judgment. Moreover, intelligence sometimes takes on too many cups and is fast asleep when the man is apparently quite awake.

And thus, while distrust is generally provocative of war among nations, by the same token it might help end the war of traffic accidents. CLARENCE W. TOLIVER.

More Liberal Pensions

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: All signs now seem to point to a demand for more liberal pensions and old-age benefits in the future elections. Those candidates favoring the amending of the social security law, liberalizing old-age benefits, will be swept into office.

The New Deal should be able to point to at least one permanent outstanding contribution to the "have-nots," and an amended social security law should be it. The present act is the result of the late Huey Long's fight for the underdog and our present-day liberals may not take any credit for it. If something is not done to make it a real security act, the masses will line up behind Downey of California.

In the majority of States, especially in the South, the old-age benefits are pitifully low, some as low as $5.50 per month. This makes additional relief necessary. To qualify, one must be eligible for admittance to the county poor farm. The fact that aged persons have sons and daughters, who are themselves away from home, trying to exist and get into the position of doing what their parents did, get married, should not make them ineligible for the benefits.

The first business of the next Congress should be to enact far-reaching amendments to the social security act, making old-age benefits $35.00 per month payable to all of the needy over 65 years of age, by the Federal Government, from funds raised by a transaction tax.

Cholera In Shanghai

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Shanghai newspapers on August 10 printed news dispatches from Washington, D. C., to the effect that in the editorial columns of The Washington Post of the same date, you refuted the statement made in a recent issue of the Shanghai Nippo, a Japanese newspaper published in Shanghai, that the Shanghai Municipal Council is responsible for cholera epidemics here, and that you placed the blame where it really belongs, on the Japanese invaders themselves.

According to our observations, the output of mendacious statements, such as that of the Shanghai Nippo, is greatly on the increase, and in fact the bald statements of Japanese leaders and their propaganda agents leave us no doubt as to their intentions to flood the world, and especially America, with every kind of statement designed to create a false understanding of the actual situation here.

Under such circumstances, it need hardly be said that to us Americans in Shanghai, whose daily business here has for years been to work to promote America's commercial and cultural relations with China, carrying on a tradition built up during a century and a half of trade and friendly relations between the two nations, it is a source of great satisfaction that a newspaper of such standing and influence as we know The Washington Post to be has once more focused attention on the unsatisfactory state of affairs here.

It seems to us that such action on your part may be taken as such evidence of an increasing consciousness on the part of our fellow countrymen in the United States that America does have important interests involved in the Far Eastern situation, and that in the case of Shanghai it is important that the integrity of the legally constituted and recognized government of this international city should be preserved against the further attacks of the Japanese, such as were brought to light on August 13, the anniversary of the outbreak of hostilities here, when not only hired thugs and terrorists operating from Japanese controlled and protected areas, but also Japanese themselves, plainclothes members of the special service section of the Japanese army of occupation here, were apprehended while engaged in subversive activities directed against the peace and order of the International Settlement of Shanghai.

We are grateful for your assistance in helping to refute such false Japanese statements as that of the Shanghai Nippo's, and we congratulate you on the manner in which you have in the editorial referred to apparently so promptly and effectively nailed the lie and pointed out the truth.

Appreciation

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On behalf of the members of the Chamber of Commerce and all others who are interested in the development of Fairfax County, I wish to express to you our very sincere appreciation for your page on Fairfax County which appeared in the issue of The Post for Sunday, September 4.

The picture of Fairfax County drawn in that article is one of which we are naturally proud, and it affords us real satisfaction to know that The Post has recognized the county in this way and has given the county such splendid publicity. Miss Christine Sadler is to be particularly congratulated for her success in describing the contemporary scene in the light of its proper historical perspective. I was also impressed by the accuracy of Miss Sadler's factual information.

The Post Impressionist

"... That Walketh In Darkness"

When I was growing into what my family fondly thought would be a lady, one of the subjects which, according to their standards, were never mentioned in good society was that of bugs. That is to say nice people were supposed to be utterly ignorant of the existence of any such fauna as cockroaches, black beetles or—Heaven forbid!—the cimex lectularius. Sometimes, alas, knowledge was thrust upon them, and in that event there was nothing to do but telephone for the fumigator and trust that curiosity of the neighbors' would not be excited by his complicated apparatus.

All this, however, was before I came to Washington to live and discovered that in the Capital, especially in Georgetown, one need have no such inhibitions about admitting an acquaintanceship with household entomology. Not only are bugs considered no disgrace, no sign of uncleanliness, but those of our neighbors who live in old houses seem to vie with each other in seeing which can find the most interesting specimens within his domain.

Nor need bugs in Washington be confined exclusively to residences built more than 20 years ago. Who that was present will ever forget the tea last summer at the Czechoslovakian Legation, when the Minister leaned his elbow against the drawing room wall only to have the whole structure collapse? Thousands of termites were discovered to be eating their way through the legation, and not until the edifice was almost completely done over, to the tune of more than $30,000, could it be occupied again. When the Minister of Finland and his lady found their house invaded by termites they walked out of it and rented another.

Even the White House is not immune; in fact, I know a man who went there one morning to do a little exterminating and returned in the evening to attend a reception.

"I give you my word, a cockroach as big as a rat scuttled from behind the icebox when I turned on the kitchen light last evening," said a neighbor to me at a cocktail party not so long ago. He sounded completely unabashed; rather proud, in fact. Frequently the people who resided in old houses such as his have discovered that at least one experience with bugs is almost inevitable, and they seem to feel that they might as well make it all appear as interesting as possible while it lasts.

When we moved into an ancient, remodeled edifice near the river, our neighbors warned us to be on the lookout for insects, but for several weeks nothing happened. Then one day as I reached into the breadbox I noticed a small black specimen of bug regarding me ominously from the corner.

"Well, now we have them, too," I remarked, rather smugly, at the next gathering of Georgetownites. Everybody listened with interest, not, I suspect, unmixed with jealousy, as I described my adventure with the breadbox.

"What does he look like?" "Did he have sort of whisker things?" "Sounds like what I found in my decanter of sherry." They all seemed to know exactly what should be done about the situation and gave me a great deal of advice.

A few days later, where there had been one bug, there were now three. Anyone who has had to kill beetles before breakfast knows that the process is accompanied by a marked loss of appetite. The following morning six appeared, all big and very black. The situation was becoming more and more unpleasant, but was not considered serious until a particularly unattractive form of animal life dropped from the ceiling one evening to join me in my bath.

We sent for a fumigator. He turned out to be a calm, masterful man, evidently used to dealing with crises, and said that if we left him alone for a morning in our apartment, he could take care of everything in a most competent way. My roommate had asked a few older people in for cocktails that afternoon, but the fumigator assured her that she needn't change the date, as, said he, by 5 o'clock all signs of the imminent carnage would have been removed.

Rushing home later from the office to prepare for the party, she was met as she opened the door by a choking, blinding cloud of the greenish dust. Racked with coughs, she flew to the windows and flung them open. Layers of this dust were over everything. She barely had time to sweep the worst of it up when the first guest, a rather frail looking gentleman, appeared.

Nobody who was present will ever forget that cocktail party. From time to time, in the midst of a sentence, we would all be seized with paroxysms of coughing. Our eyes watered and our nostrils smarted. But there were even more unpleasant evidences of the slaughter. Noticing that a diplomat among our guests had acquired a hypnotized look in his eye, I followed his glance and saw him staring at a groggy, half dead bug climbing weakly up the side of the wall. A parade of stupefied beetles staggered at intervals across the mantel, only to fall onto the floor, where they lay, stomach up, before expiring. They hung upside down from table legs; they lay dead in heaps in the corners; they dropped from moldings into people's drinks; they were everywhere, in a more or less municipund state.

Clothes Appeal

NEW York, Sept. 14.—Senator Tydings, of Maryland, is a tall, thin man, straight-backed and immaculately dressed, with a preference for double-breasted suits. Representative David J. Lewis, his late opponent, is short, chunky, slightly stooped and silver-haired, and doesn't mind if his suit becomes rumpled or his tie askew. These descriptions, taken from a political story of the Maryland campaign, picturize the traditional conservative and radical types of statesmen.

Herbert Hoover and Charles G. Dawes, arch-conservatives, are double-breasted and wear linen collars, too—in challenging contrast to the professional and conventionalized sockless Jerrys of American public life. Clarence Darrow preserved that aspect of frowsiness which is generally taken to bespeak vanity forsworn and an obsession with the woes of the forgotten man. He was the type, no question, but he met his equal at Dayton, Tenn., when William Jennings Bryan shucked his shapeless, black alpaca coat and took the witness stand in a dollar shirt, stained with honest, if histrionic, sweat, waving a nickel palmetto fan.

THEY WERE an even match, man to man, but Mr. Bryan had the Lord in his corner, whereas Satan handled the bucket in Mr. Darrow's angle of the ropes, and the result never should have been in doubt. Neither man could outcommon the other in honest homeliness or the hammy affectations of which both were masters, but Mr. Bryan got what, in pugilism, would be called a home-town decision.

There seems to be something patronizing and, in truth, subtly insulting to the common man in the exaggerated imitation of his honest and unavoidable unkemptness by those who would thus appeal to his political favor. It is an old and, as David Lloyd George can testify, a reliable device, but most of those who resort to it can well afford to dress as well as their most reactionary opponents, and surely the bird's-nest haircut and eyebrows are no badge of principle.

• • • •

MR. BRYAN, in his days as spieler for the real estate promotion at Coral Gables, Fla., was richly paid, and toward the end of his engagement the old pied piper took the precaution to get his money cash in advance, not trusting the financial stability of the project which he was recommending to those who had faith in him. It is a literal truth that Mr. Bryan operated on the principle of the nickel piano in the corner saloon, and his homely dress adorned the figure of as practical a realist as ever went in double-breasted coat and fine linen.

It is reliable hokum, the bagginess and exaggerated indifference to normal neatness which public figures sometimes affect to woo the approval of those whose harsh condition denies them good apparel, warm water and soap. It is reliable, notwithstanding the obvious affectation and an implied suggestion that untidiness is next to godliness. Yet it sometimes is an act which mocks the intelligence and personal feelings of the underprivileged, as a lampooning of their misfortune by a mountebank who would say, "I am the friend of the people, for, behold, I am gritty and have B. O. and always spill food on my vest."

THERE MAY BE some among the famous third of this Nation skeptical and clever enough to reflect within themselves that a man of comparative wealth, well able to buy the best in clothing, barberage and a personal sanitation, is not necessarily a common man at heart but may be burlesquing or soiled and habitually somewhat high by choice. There have been public figures of this type in Congress, in the lower orders of politics and in the outskirts of the labor movement who attempted to make a political and social virtue of a personal aversion to plain hygiene.

• • • •

IT IS ALL of a piece with the affectation of low-down, us-folks oratorical mannerisms, of which Huey Long was a persuasive master, although in certain moments the Kingfish could and did speak the purest, double-breasted English.

I must add that I do not apply all this to Mr. Lewis, of Maryland. I just happened to see the two descriptions, and they suggested an idea.

O'Connor Flays Roosevelt Purge

New York, Sept. 14.—Representative O'Connor, chairman of the House Rules Committee and Democratic candidate for renomination, speaking today at a Kiwanis Club luncheon, said the President's "purge" of anti-New Deal Democrats was as dangerous to the American form of government as the Supreme Court and the reorganization bills. O'Connor's renomination is opposed by President Roosevelt.

"The purge," O'Connor said, "is the final step, which, if successful, would plunge us over the precipice into the un-American abyss of dictatorship . . . A United States Senator or Representative who owes his election to the President ceases to be his own master . . . To be purged or to be 'liquidated' is preferable to submitting humbly to a dictatorship, even a benevolent dictatorship."

New Md. Span Approved

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 14.—The Allegany County commissioners approved a WPA project yesterday for the erection of a "low-water" type concrete bridge on Fifteen Mile Creek at Little Orleans.

Tired Radical

Denial

"My name has been appearing in the Los Angeles papers in connection with the Dies investigation. The Hollywood Anti-Nazi League is accused of being a Communist organization and the local gazettes include my name in a list of the founders. Now it so happens I am not a founder or even a member . . . My cynicism led me to believe . . . that the Anti-Nazi League was secretly organized by much the same bunch of babies who had organized the League Against War and Fascism—which turned out, curiously enough, to be a prowar league against Fascism . . . So what with one thing and another, Mr. Dies, I am not guilty.

Admission

"Since I want my conscience clear, I plead guilty to a far greater charge. I'm really the guy who is responsible for all the subversive influence in Hollywood . . . Please, you must hear me out; the evidence is indirect, but Krylenko got a lot of counter-revolutionaries on less direct testimony and now Vyshinsky is trying to get Krylenko on even less. A couple of years ago when I first came to Hollywood I was dismayed by the fact that I couldn't get anybody to talk politics . . . I wrote a complaining piece to the Nation about it, knowing it would set the matter right . . .

Disenchantment

"Even the money I get is vastly exaggerated . . . Moscow doesn't send as much as it used to weekly . . . Wall Street is six months behind on payments . . . and even Trotsky has been paying off in Mexican dollars in spite of a gentlemen's agreement to pay in American money."

The Sudetens' Story

By Sonia Tomara

Hitler's Rise, Henlein's Opportunity.

THE conflict between the Germans and the Czechs which is now near to a head and threatens to upset European peace goes way back in the history of central Europe.

Ever since Slavic tribes, chased from the East by the Avars, settled on the Bohemian plateau in the sixth century, warring began between them and the surrounding Teutons. Neither in those early times of the Middle Ages, nor later in the twelfth century, when peaceful German farmers and traders began to penetrate into Bohemia, did the Slavs and the Germans merge into one homogeneous nation, as was the case in France or England.

For a whole millenary going from the sixth century to the sixteenth, the Czechs were the real masters of Bohemia, which all military experts consider to be the key to the Danubian region and to the southeast of Europe.

There were times when their realm extended over wide territories, as in the ninth century when Svatopluk created a great Moravian empire, or in the thirteenth century when under Wenceslas II all Hungary, part of Poland and part of Austria were included.

• • • •

AT OTHER moments, German emperors—Charlemagne, Frederick Barbarossa or Rudolf of Hapsburg enforced their suzerainty on the kings of Bohemia.

But whether independent or not, the support of these kings was always eagerly sought by the head of the Holy Roman Empire.

When the powerful Czech dynasty of the Pjemislids died out in 1306 and was replaced on the Bohemian throne by German princes of the house of Luxemburg, Bohemia remained independent and Czech language dominated in all its provinces.

But Germanization of Bohemian towns and of the outskirts of the kingdom—the regions now called Sudetenland—had begun.

A great part of the clergy was German. Trade and industry were in German hands. Literature became German. At that time it seemed that Slavs and Germans could unite. It was Bohemia's happiest time.

• • • •

THIS GOLDEN AGE was brought to an abrupt end by the Hussite religious wars. Jan Huss' religious reform quickly became a Czech national movement against German priests and burgers.

The country was devastated by the violence of the conflict and German expansion was set back for a short time. But in 1526 Ferdinand of Hapsburg was elected King of Bohemia and for four centuries—until the end of the World War and the creation of the present Czechoslovak state—that country became united to the Austro-Hungarian Empire.

German language quickly took precedence over Czech. Germans were given better posts than the Czechs.

This led to an uprising of Czech nobility, their crushing defeat by the Germans at the White Mountain, the Thirty-Year War and the stern punishment of the Czech rebels, whose land was confiscated and given over chiefly to Germans.

From that time on the upper class of Bohemia became German, while the Czechs formed the lower strata.

• • • •

Not until after the French revolution and Napoleon's defeat by the Russians was Slavic consciousness revived in Bohemia.

Pan-Slavism inspired the Czechs throughout the nineteenth century, stimulated them to demand reforms and helped them to obtain a kind of self-administration, Czech language being made official on the same footing with German.

This nearly led to a rebellion of the Germans at Eger—the town which is now the headquarters of Konrad Henlein's Sudeten German party.

The outbreak of the World War made pan-Slavism blaze up in Bohemia. On the front Czech regiments went over to the enemy.

In Paris, London, and later in Washington, Thomas Masaryk and Eduard Benes molded new Czechoslovakia.

October 28, 1918, the new state was proclaimed in Prague, while the Austro-Hungarian Empire crumbled. The frontiers of Czechoslovakia were set at Versailles and 3,500,000 German Bohemians were included into it.

These Germans tried to protest and demanded it be given over to Austria, but Czech troops forced them to silence, meeting little resistance among people exhausted by the war.

• • • •

LIKE OTHER minorities in Czechoslovakia, the Germans were promised a certain amount of self-administration, but the Czechs who had their own state after four centuries of foreign domination, hurried to place their own men as officials in areas they knew to be hostile to them.

Czech language became the official tongue. German schools were neglected, some industries transferred from the German districts into the heart of Bohemia. The seeds of discontent among the Germans were sown.

In August, 1919, a young Austrian officer, Konrad Henlein, returned to Bohemia from an Italian war prison. His joy to be home was destroyed by the new state of things he found in the Czech state.

The Czechs whom he had been brought up to despise were now the masters. German language was boycotted. He brooded for a time, then found diversion in organizing German athletic unions.

As he said himself, Czech Sokol athletes who kept Czech morale high under Austrian domination inspired him to do the same for the Germans. Henlein proved to be a very efficient teacher of gymnastics.

• • • •

In 1931, Henlein was made "Fuehrer" of the German Turnverband—the union of athletes. He was 33. All his athletes had to be not only bodily fit, "loyal to the people"—to the German people—was Henlein's chief slogan.

But only after Adolf Hitler came to power in 1933 did the Sudeten leader feel strong enough to become a political chief. He formed the "Bohemian German Home Front" and began to organize his adherents along Nazi lines.

At the election of 1933, his party obtained a striking success and Henlein felt strengthened to come forth with demands of concessions from the Czech government.

In October 1937, as the German Reich became more powerful, Henlein pushed his claims, which became more exacting every time. He demanded autonomy for the Sudetenland, and German propaganda stirred the Sudeten against the Czechs.

It seems beyond a doubt that German money began to pour into Bohemia. Every time Henlein made a visit to Berlin and talked to German leaders, he returned home with stronger claims.

• • • •

THE ANSCHLUSS of Austria with the Reich unleashed the Sudeten ambitions. On April 24 Henlein put forth his eight Karlsbad points asking for full autonomy. It was evident to the Czechs that Henlein, acting as Hitler's lieutenant, considered autonomy as a mere step toward an Anschluss of the Sudeten region with the Reich.

When Runciman arrived in Prague to act as mediator, the Sudeten demanded even more than in Karlsbad. They wanted a change of the Czech constitution, a self-government and an inclusion into the government of the president of the German self-government.

After a month's negotiations with Runciman's help, the Czechs proposed to the Sudeten a counter plan, giving them a fair amount of self-administration. This offer, which would have been seen as very liberal by the Sudeten before Hitler's coming to power, was rejected with scorn.

Would America Fight?

By Europax

Our Diplomacy In Europe's Crisis.

Special Correspondence to The Post.

Paris.

"IF EUROPE succeeds in avoiding war over the Czechoslovakian problem, America will come in for a large share of the credit. If Europe fails to avert war, America will come in, sooner or later and probably sooner, on the side of France and England."

This is the conclusion which, rightly or wrongly, prevails here as a result of recent diplomatic activity of the United States. It is a fair summary of the conviction that has now become pretty firmly fixed, not only in France but in most of the main European countries outside of the dictatorships.

Actually even Germany and Italy cannot be excluded with certainty. Although public opinion in those two totalitarian states has of course not been given an opportunity to judge, the leaders have undoubtedly done a lot of thinking lately about America's attitude toward peace and her probable stand in the event of war.

• • • •

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in his already historic speech at Kingston, only echoed what Europe has been saying for some time when he declared:

"We in America are no longer a faraway continent, to which eddies of controversy beyond the seas could bring no interest or no harm. Instead, we in the Americas have become a consideration to every propaganda office and general staff beyond the seas. The vast amount of our resources, the vigor of our commerce and the strength of our men have made us vital factors in world peace, whether we choose or not."

In his next speech the President could go still further. He could affirm without fear of exaggeration that the United States has now become not merely a vague consideration but a primary factor in European diplomacy. Since Mr. Roosevelt's speech in Canada and the address of Secretary of State Cordell Hull that immediately preceded it, and especially after the recent speech of Ambassador William C. Bullitt at Bordeaux, America is present in Europe's diplomatic calculations as an extremely weighty—not to say a decisive—element.

TO GRASP the full meaning of this, one has only to glance back a couple of years and measure the distance covered since. Isolationism, not so long ago the empnatic and almost the only foreign policy of the United States, has virtually disappeared. Even neutrality—a milder form or isolationism—is severely challenged.

There is of course nothing accidental about this evolution. For the last 12 months at least the Administration in Washington has been hard at work educating American public opinion up to the necessity of taking an active part in preserving world peace. If anyone doubts the progress made, he has only to compare the public reaction to Roosevelt's "quarantine" speech in Chicago almost a year ago, when a flood of protest forced him to back water hastily, and the general approval that greeted his Kingston speech.

Besides, what really matters, from the standpoint of diplomatic consequences, is less the extent to which America's foreign policy has changed than Europe's conviction that it has done so.

Of this there can be no question. Diplomats and Government officials with whom I have discussed the matter are positive on that point. Likewise the press, taking its cue from the Quai d'Orsay, now consistently treats America as a sort of second line of French defense. Thus Paris Soir wrote of Roosevelt's speech: "President Roosevelt has thrown up a bridge which not only crosses the St. Lawrence but extends all the way to the Rhine."

• • • •

"There is no doubt that America thoroughly supports the principle invoked by France and Great Britain in the present crisis—namely, that force must not take the place of conciliation as the means of settling disputes. American protests against certain totalitarian creeds are sometimes louder than the outcry in France or Britain.

"But what about deeds, as opposed to mere words? It is certain that American diplomacy—with the limits which President Roosevelt knows he must not exceed—is making very serious efforts to avert the risk of a violent conflict in Europe, especially in recent weeks. Germany and Italy know this as well as we do; while as for England, before taking any firm attitude, she makes sure it will be approved by America.

"But what if, in spite of all these efforts, war broke out—what would be the attitude of the United States?

"The answer, I realize, can only be given by American public opinion. But it depends on elements that are not as vague and uncertain as some people believe.

"One thing is certain: American public opinion would not become inflamed over a European conflict of a political nature. Neither the question of nationalities nor the problem of a balance of power nor even the question of the form of various regimes could stir American interest in Europe.

"But another thing is equally sure: American opinion, sooner or later, would catch fire instantaneously if war were to break out over the theme of liberty of conscience or the racial question."

M. GEORGES BONNET, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, said the same thing in different words in replying to Ambassador Bullitt's speech at the inauguration of the A. E. F. monument near Bordeaux. Declaring that American intervention in 1917 "came as a result of the high unwritten moral law which commands both our people and yours," Bonnet concluded: "That is why there is no need between us of treaties, pacts and alliances, formed in the mystery of chancelleries. We know that when justice is on our side American public sentiment is with us, too."

Ambassador Bullitt, on the same occasion, did not hesitate to say that "if war should break out again in Europe, no human being could undertake to state or prophesy whether or not the United States would become involved in such a war"—a statement which by his French listeners was at once interpreted as meaning that in all likelihood the United States would become so involved, and of course on the side of France.

Just how active the United States Government has really been aside from such timely public pronouncements obviously uttered as warnings to the dictators, is of course impossible to say. That is "the mystery of the chancelleries," to use Bonnet's expression. But there is a widespread conviction in Europe that Bullitt in Paris, Hugh Wilson in Berlin and Prague, and Kennedy in London have played a quiet but extremely important role behind the scenes.

According to the best available information this diplomatic action has taken the form of strong "moral suasion" applied in all the principal European capitals to support a peaceful solution of the Sudeten German difficulty. Pressure was exerted indirectly on the Czechs to incline them toward liberal concessions, while at the same time every effort was made to restrain Hitler from resorting to force. Naturally this activity had to be tactfully round-about and guarded. But the impression in the European democracies is that during the crisis American diplomacy has nevertheless played a very significant part in the attempts to preserve peace.

Case No. 5

The conversation:

Hello. May I speak to Mr. Disbrow?

Who's calling?

Mr. Puddicombe.

What is the name again, please?

Puddicombe.

Poody what?

No; Puddicombe.

How do you spell it?

P as in pickles, U as in uniform, two D's as in didoes, I as in Iroquois, C as in chicken, O as in olives, M as in mustard, B as in bilge and E as in egg.

I get it now. Just a minute.

(There is a delay of three minutes.)

Mr. Disbrow is on a Bermuda cruise and won't be back for three weeks.

Decision (Judge Omar Worms)—There are no extenuating circumstances in this case whatever, and the sentence of higher court that the operator be given life at hard labor is sustained. In fact, life is hardly enough for phone operators and office secretaries of this type. If Mr. Disbrow was on the high seas at the end of the conversation he was on them at the beginning, so what difference did it make how to spell Puddicombe. Furthermore, it is the opinion of the court that Disbrow was in all the time.

Case No. 6

The conversation:

Hello, may I speak to Mr. Wimpel?

Do you mean Mr. J. C. Wimpel?

I think so. Is there another Wimpel with the firm?

No. Justa minute, please.

(After the usual delay.)

Sorry, but Mr. Cozzins isn't in just now

I didn't ask for Mr. Cozzins.

Who is this speaking, please?

This is Mr. F. K. Jarvis.

I'm sure he isn't in

Who?

The Purge Failure

By Mark Sullivan

New Party Likely

AFTER THE PURGE, what? The consequences of Mr. Roosevelt's attempt may have been anticipated by him—or by the circle about him. Some of Mr. Roosevelt's associates claim now that he anticipated failure—that he took that possibility into account and expected to abide by the consequences of it.

As to this, it would be necessary to draw a careful line between Mr. Roosevelt and his present group of advisers. As to Mr. Roosevelt himself, it seems doubtful if, at the beginning, he anticipated failure. It seems doubtful that he would have begun the purge had he expected that failure would follow. As to those who now advise Mr. Roosevelt, it is quite possible they anticipated failure. Failure furthers their plans rather more than success would, for failure makes more likely a new political party led by Mr. Roosevelt. And a new party is what the intimate advisers would naturally prefer. In any event the idea of having a new party is advanced by the failure of the purge.

LET US LOOK back at what was the state of mind of the Democratic leaders, especially those in Congress last session. Why did most of them support Mr. Roosevelt's measures? It was not because they believed in the measures—the fact is some of the measures disturbed them deeply. It was not because they believed in Mr. Roosevelt's leadership—the fact is most of them doubted Mr. Roosevelt's judgment. It was not because they liked Mr. Roosevelt—many of them had come to feel that Mr. Roosevelt did not like them, and they reciprocated.

What, then, held most of the Democratic Congressmen in line during the past year or two? It was fear of Mr. Roosevelt. Specifically, it was fear of his popularity. Almost any Democratic Congressman felt that Mr. Roosevelt was more popular in the Congressman's State or district than was the Congressman himself. They felt Mr. Roosevelt could go into any State or district and, by an appeal to the Democratic voters, defeat the Congressman for renomination. They felt Mr. Roosevelt was able to do this. They did not think he would. But fear lest Mr. Roosevelt might do it kept most of the Democrats in line. Fear was Mr. Roosevelt's whip behind the woodshed door.

• • • •

NOW MR. ROOSEVELT has taken down the whip. He has made the attempt to punish those who refused to be deterred by fear. The attempt has failed, or up to this writing has failed to a degree that dissipates the fear. The key battle of the purge was Maryland. The Democrats in Congress now feel that if Mr. Roosevelt could not defeat Senator Tydings he cannot defeat them. For the candidate whom Mr. Roosevelt favored, Mr. David Lewis, was a good man. Running on his own, Mr. Lewis might have won, or come closer to winning than he did. Mr. Roosevelt's intervention, instead of harming Senator Tydings, proved a kiss of death for Mr. Lewis.

From this, what follows? The Democrats in the Congress that meets next January will not fear the President. They will depart from his leadership to a degree they never did before, possibly to the degree of almost complete disregard of his leadership.

CONCEIVABLY Mr. Roosevelt may follow the policy of conference and compromise. The Democratic leaders will hope desperately that he will, for that is the way to hold the party together. If Mr. Roosevelt shows the faintest willingness to compromise, the Democratic leaders will lean backward to make compromise possible. They will give Mr. Roosevelt every possible opportunity to "save face." For the greatest wish of the leaders is to hold the party together, to preserve the appearance of leadership for the President of their party. When it comes to the 1940 convention, while they would not renominate Mr. Roosevelt, nor give the nomination to any of Mr. Roosevelt's extremist friends, they would nevertheless try to nominate some middle-of-the-road candidate not offensive to Mr. Roosevelt, one whom Mr. Roosevelt could support.

But Mr. Roosevelt, both because of his temperament and because of the conditions, is more likely to widen the breach than to mend it. To this course he will certainly be urged by those who are now his advisers. They know there is nothing for them, or for their ultimate plans, in a healed and united Democratic Party. They know their only hope is a new party—and toward that end they will exert their influence with Mr. Roosevelt.

If the advisers prevail, Mr. Roosevelt's course would be to send to Congress measures even more radical than those already passed or proposed. He would send to Congress a series of measures which, added together, would be the platform and program of a new party. Such measures would be rejected by the Democrats in Congress. Then Mr. Roosevelt would have the excuse for starting a new party.

Europe's Cauldron

By Barnet Nover

Czechs May Play David Vs. Goliath.

EIGHTEEN miles outside of Carlsbad, in the Sudeten area of Czechoslovakia, G. E. R. Gedye, New York Times correspondent, encountered villagers wearing Nazi badges who asked him: "Have you seen German troops on the road?"

They "seemed surprised and puzzled," Mr. Gedye writes, "when the answer was negative."

In other words the followers of Konrad Henlein not only regarded Hitler's speech of Monday as the signal for them to begin guerrilla warfare against the Prague government but also as assurance that their action would speedily be followed by armed German intervention.

• • • •

THE PRESUMPTION was certainly a logical one. To the superheated emotions of the Henleinists, the Nuremberg speech appeared as a declaration of war against Czechoslovakia, with only the date of its going into force left blank. Assured of the support of the Third Reich, the Sudeten Nazis saw no reason to postpone a showdown with the Czech authorities. And what made it easier for them to take to the warpath was that because of the unceasing pressure of Great Britain and France, the Prague government had been restrained from taking those preparatory measures in the Sudeten districts which alone would have prevented disorder.

Belated or not these measures were, however, taken. Martial law was proclaimed; the Henleinist ultimatum was rejected out of hand and reinforcements were sent to the disaffected areas. In the meantime Berlin glowered but there was no German invasion of Czechoslovakia.

THERE ARE two possible reasons why Hitler held his hand at this time. The first is that a direct attack on Czechoslovakia still involves the danger of a European war for which Germany is not prepared and from which she would probably not emerge victorious. There are, to be sure, important groups and individuals in Germany that believe the Third Reich should disregard these dangers and go ahead anyway. As late as Monday, however, they had not yet won over the Fuehrer.

The other reason for Germany's failure to intervene in Czechoslovakia after disturbances had begun in the Sudeten area was that the spread of these disorders might so weaken Czechoslovakia as to make a direct military onslaught against that little republic unnecessary particularly if, in the meantime, Great Britain and France decided that peace was worth almost any price.

BOTH THESE considerations continue to have validity but in so far as the calculations regarding the timorousness of the democratic powers prove correct the dangers of a European war arising out of German intervention in Czechoslovakia diminishes to the same degree.

Hitler may be right. Already, in fact, there are indications both from Paris and London that neither the French nor the British governments would be averse to a plebiscite in Czechoslovakia to determine the future allegiance of the 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans. The presumption is, therefore, that certain elements in both governments are prepared to tolerate the partition of Czechoslovakia if, as a result, peace can be maintained. In the meantime the enormous eagerness for peace on the part of the British and French governments is signalized by the announcement that the British prime minister has asked for and received an invitation to visit Chancellor Hitler at Berchtesgaden. At this interview Chamberlain may convince the Fuehrer to moderate his demands on the Prague government. But he may also, by his very presence in Germany, convince Hitler that it is quite safe for him to boost his price for peace.

THE CESSION to Germany of the Sudeten area would mean, sooner or later, and probably sooner than later, the disappearance of Czechoslovakia as an independent nation. Without the strategically important Sudeten mountains as a barrier against Germany, deprived of the valuable raw material and industrial resources of the region, a truncated Czechoslovakia could continue to exist only as a vassal of the Third Reich.

All this the Czech leaders and people realize. They also realize that if Czechoslovakia is partitioned for the benefit of Germany it may also be partitioned for the benefit of Poland and Hungary. The question before them, therefore, is whether peace is worth the price.

THE INDICATIONS up to now have been that they do not think so; that in their opinion it is better for Czechoslovakia to go down fighting than to disappear like another Austria. The very enormity of the dangers that face them has made them calm.

Obviously it would be to their advantage, should it come to war, to have France, Soviet Russia and Great Britain on their side. They have not been unmindful of that fact. Indeed that has been the reason why the Prague government has offered one concession after another to the Sudeten Germans even to the point of antagonizing a great many of its loyal followers. But they may balk at being asked to surrender their sovereignty and independence. In other words, even as France, though anxious for peace, would fight rather than surrender Alsace-Lorraine, and Great Britain would fight rather than turn over all her colonies to the Third Reich, so Czechoslovakia may decide to fight rather than give up the Sudetenland. And if Czechoslovakia fights, France and Great Britain may not stand by with arms folded.

• • • •

IT HAS BEEN said that the key to the European situation rests in London. That has been true until now. Prague holds the key. If the Czech leaders and people do not lose their nerve, if they refuse to submit to browbeating and provocation from within while ignoring browbeating and provocation from without, they may yet save the day for themselves and for Europe. Their position is an unenviable one. But they are a people of intelligence and courage and have shown, during these critical months, that they do not easily lose their heads. Cast by certain of Europe's statesmen for the sacrificial role of Isaac they may yet play the role of David against Goliath.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

OBJECTIVE is the view of the efficient Government Printing Office. So when we went there today to inquire on their health and happiness, it was to learn that their current best seller is a publication called "Veterans' Benefits." And this was significant, we thought at first blush. But, of course, the G. P. O. is properly objective in attitude and merely said that 8,451 copies have been sold, outstripping all else, for the moment . . .

The publication deals with every phase of its title, even as to how a veteran may obtain burial expenses and a headstone. It tells how payments are made to veterans' dependents, of hospitalization rules—everything, it is repeated. And they are after it (the publication, we mean); there are many unfilled orders on the books right now.

A veteran, himself, reminds us, that the subject matter is timely—for the question of pensions soon may arise.

UNCLE SAM'S faithful and unafraid servant, Gov. Blanton Winship, of Puerto Rico, comes to town Friday for conferences. Of them all, he is perhaps the fastest mover, using airplanes inveterately in his journeyings. And, paradoxically, he is willing to give more of his time in interviews than most public officials. Gracious and quiet-talking, he gives the feeling that the whole afternoon is yours. And he doesn't try to dodge the issues any more than he tries to dodge bullets!

PERSONAL NOTE to Elmer Andrews, of the new Wage-Hour Division:

You may be interested to know that there is tremendous interest in the wage-hour law in Puerto Rico. Folks fresh from the island contend that the unstabilized condition of business down there won't support it. It is understood, also, that there is some conflict on the question of how the law applies to the island—and we'll bet that much will be said of it after the Governor gets up here.

News! A group of lawyers will meet this evening and won't discuss whether or not they want to come in under the June 24 Executive orders. Instead, the lawyers, members of the National Lawyers Guild, will hear Jerome Frank discuss "What's Wrong With the Law Schools?" The meeting will be in the North Interior Auditorium. Personal opinion note: They will wind up by discussing whether they want merit system status. It is as inevitable as a technicality in the law.

THE EYE-STRAINED look in the Agriculture Department results from all the reading on the new "Yearbook," which this year is in a brighter cover, edited by Gove Hambridge, principal research writer, Office of Education, and contains exactly 1232 large pages. Titled "Soils and Men," it holds the research of about 50 Government experts; and, happily, is readable.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Some slightly queer and innocent-looking cablegrams have passed between Washington and New York on this side and Berlin and Prague over there in the danger zone during the crisis. Here's a sample:

"Worried about Elmer. How's he doing?"

* * * *

Soon the answer would come humming back:

. . . close to FDR.'s heart.

This meant that the tension had eased a little momentarily. Thus financiers and others kept in touch with Herr Hitler's pulse and Herr Henlein's fevers.

* * * *

CAPITAL WHIRLIGIG: Tommy Corcoran probably doesn't wield any more power than did Col. House behind Woodrow Wilson, Dougherty behind Harding, Butler of Stearns under Coolidge, or Lawrence Richey under Hoover, if as much . . . The rumor has got started that Jimmy Roosevelt's ailment may be worse than stomach ulcers. . . . The betting is that the British Prime Minister's airplane trip to Hitler's villa will tickle Herr Adolf's vanity enough to keep him pacified another week or more.

Since a plane swooped down to a 100 feet above President Roosevelt's car in Maryland recently, there's some talk about assigning an Army plane to fly above him during motor trips or parades. But he isn't likely to permit anything quite so spectacular.

* * * *

I've just seen a copy of the brief Tom Dewey filed with Justice Pecora, arguing against a mistrial. . . . I marvel at the airy aplomb with which Justice Pecora ignored (1) Dewey's contention that the defense questions had opened up the question of the other rackets and (2) the citations Dewey quoted justifying his indiscreet question about the poultry racket.

No wonder Dewey was seething with indignation.

Unofficial but reliable reports from Germany now indicate that the Nazi leaders have realistically reconciled themselves to the fact that the United States will be lined up against them in any major war and are governing themselves accordingly. This reduces the likelihood of an invasion of Czechoslovakia—if.

* * * *

FISCAL FOLDEROLS: Washington masterminds calculate that the $30-every Thursday pension for fiftyish Californians would cost Californians below fifty more than their average annual income . . . New Dealers are cheered by figures that Britain's per capita public debt is now three times as great as Americans' . . . Unless you count our city, county and State debts.

Globe trotters who have been in Germany this summer report that the Nazis keep mistaking the Italian workmen loaned to Hitler for non-Aryans, and molesting them a bit . . . They may have to wear armbands to prove to Hitler's supermen that technically and temporarily they're Aryans, too, just like Italo Balbo or Dino Grandi.

* * * *

Of all the New Deal miracles, which once included the Passamaquoddy tide-harnessing and the Florida Ship Canal, the one they're now proudest of is the Shelter Belt of trees on the edge of the Western dust region . . . Some of the trees planted two or three years ago are doing nicely, and are 18 or 19 feet tall. (Soon the ruggedly individualist sons of the lumber kings may be casting eyes at them.)

* * * *

POTOMAC MEDLEY: Some hunch-players here think that of all the noble Democrats F. D. R. would rather not see nominated to succeed him, Jim Farley is closest to his heart . . . Washington is chuckling over Hitler's remark to the French Ambassador that he'd hate to bring tears to any mother's eyes . . . Tourists are agog when they see the night tennis on the illuminated courts at the foot of the Monument. Hitler's speech on Monday brought death to a score of Germans on Tuesday. And perhaps a million more later.

Welfare Unit Hits Unequal Relief Grants

Family in D. C. May Get $48 to $100 Monthly Depending on Agency It's Aided By.

Inequalities in the monthly allowance to District relief families from various agencies were severely criticized by the Child Welfare Division in a report released yesterday, which also included a recommendation of the national WPA program and substituting a system of Federal grants in aid to States and the District.

Under the substitute plan States and the District would choose between direct or work relief.

Miss A. Patricia Morss, chief of the division, which reported to the Board of Public Welfare, pointed out that in this city last year whole families of seven or eight persons subsisted on the WPA wages of the head of the family of $48 a month.

"Whereas, an equally large family, if so fortunte, so to speak, as to have the head of the family under an aid to dependent children service, could get up to $100 a month," she stated.

Yet another group of the same size, not qualifying for either of these services, was forced to subsist on a maximum family budget of $60 a month, the report states.

Miss Morss reported an increase in "neglect and dependency" child cases from 1,482 in 1,937 to 1,614 this year. The increase, she said, was in part due to the limited work opportunities available to minors, causing older children to remain longer in care.

"The social agencies have been shocked by the meaning of poverty in the lives of these people and in the degradation in social behavior accompanying it," Miss Morss stated.

A. F. G. E. Unanimously Asks $1,500 Base Pay, 35-Hr. Week

Convention Program Also Urges Merit System's Extension, Optional 30-Yr. Service Retirement, Extra Salary or Leave for Overtime; Rejects Specified Efficiency Ratings.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—The American Federation of Government Employes today placed a $1,500 annual minimum wage and 35-hour week for Government employes at the head of a list of recommendations to the next Congress for improving working conditions in the Federal service.

Without a dissenting vote, delegates to the seventh annual convention adopted a program calling for:

A $1,500 minimum wage for all full time employes with automatic pay increases set by law.

A five-day, 35-hour working week throughout the service without salary reductions.

Extension of the merit system to all branches of the civil government now excluded by law and extension of the classification act to the field services.

Optional retirement after 30 years of service, with retirement provision for employes discharged after 15 years or retired on account of disability at 60.

Extra salary or leave on compensation for overtime work, and provision for a night differential.

Payment of not less than the prevailing wage to craft employes in agencies not affected by wage boards or other salary fixing machinery.

Creation of an independent board of appeals, and provision for legal representation for employes in appeals cases.

Better pay and working conditions for employes in veterans administration facilities, for custodial employes, and for persons in Federal penal institutions.

Optional quarters, subsistence and laundry at uniform cost.

Provision for sexual equality and attention to length of service and experience in promotional examinations provided in President Roosevelt's executive orders of last June 24.

The convention rejected resolutions advocating establishment of a specified efficiency rating system and annual leave and sick leave for part-time employes. It referred to the national executive council for further study proposals for unemployment insurance, and low medical cost and hospitalization for Federal employes. Delegates approved in principle but took no action on resolutions dealing with the retirement act, and deductions.

Earlier the convention heard Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, blast a spoils system as the "greatest destructive force in any democracy."

"The best, safest and one of the most fundamental policies in the preservation of democracy is the establishment and defense of a merit system on the part of Government employes," he declared.

Describing the American civil service setup as a "hodge podge" and "patch quilt" system, Senator Walsh, reiterated his opposition to one-man control of civil service. Senator Walsh voted against the reorganization bill after the defeat of an amendment to retain a bipartisan civil service commission.

The convention ends tomorrow, following selection of a 1939 convention city. After next year, it was voted today, the convention will be held biennially.

Spalding K. of C. to Meet

Ickes Orders Twin-Building D. C. Center

The vista along John Marshall place to the old Police Court Building will be preserved and the new Municipal Center will consist of two separate buildings, PWA Administrator Ickes declared yesterday.

Thus closed the battle between the District Commissioners, who wanted a single building, and the Fine Arts Commission who wanted the vista maintained, no matter how many buildings made up the center.

At the same time Ickes approved an allotment of $600,000 for construction of a new tuberculosis unit at Freedmen's Hospital, which would provide 150 additional beds for the hospital. Ickes said the beds would be exclusively for colored patients.

Laboratories Included

Plans include a modern laundry, kitchen, dining room, X-ray service and bacteriological laboratories, in addition to the hospital unit.

A year ago when the Commissioners began thinking seriously of the Municipal Center development, after having been rebuffed for many years, the Fine Arts Commission said they would object to any plan for a building closing John Marshall place.

Several weeks ago, when PWA approved a $5,700,000 loan and grant to the District for the center project, the commission repeated its objection. Two sets of plans were submitted to the PWA administrator, one calling for the closing of John Marshall place and the other for two separate buildings and an open street.

Work to Start by January 1.

Yesterday Ickes said he preferred the two-building plan. Now architects and the District engineer department will proceed rapidly with plans for the structure so that actual construction may get under way by January 1, as stipulated in the contract with PWA.

According to tentative plans, the buildings will be of six stories, and will be linked by a tunnel under John Marshall place.

Last year Congress authorized the District to spend $1,500,000 to begin the Municipal Center development and appropriated $500,000 this year for that purpose.

The center will be located on either side of John Marshall place, with C street on the south, Indiana avenue and D street on the north, Third street on the east and Sixth street on the west.

'Blues' Under Heavy Fire In Crossing of Patuxent

Third Corps Maneuvers Start at Fort Meade as 500 Troops Ford River; Real Battle to Begin Early Today When 'Reds' Seek to Halt Invader's Artillery From Rolling Over Pontoons.

By the Associated Press.

Fort Meade, Md., Sept. 14.—The first stage of the "Battle of Little Patuxent" began tonight with more than 500 infantrymen attempting to ford the shallow creek in the face of fire from the Red army.

A pontoon bridge was thrown across the Little Patuxent River at the southwest edge of the Fort Meade Reservation for use by field artillery and truck trains of the invading Blue army. But the doughboys will get their feet wet in the first of the Third Corps Area maneuvers.

The river is classed as semi-umfordable and varies from 50 to 300 feet in width.

The crossing will be attempted under simulated wartime conditions, with lights and noise forbidden. Facing the Blue army—the Twelfth Infantry and Sixteenth Field Artillery—are units of the defending Red army, made up of units from the Thirty-fourth Infantry and Sixth Field Artillery.

The battle is expected to begin in the early morning. Rifles, machine guns and field artillery, firing blank ammunition, will be used.

A test of infantry attempting to overcome different types of obstacles in reaching their objective is the purpose of the maneuver. Besides the river crossing, the soldiers must contend with heavy woods, marshes and mosquitoes. A continuous drizzle during the day added to the discomforts.

The field artillery will be faced with the lack of a field of fire and possible "annihilation" by enemy guns as they cross the bridge. The engineers must overcome the hazards and technical difficulties of pontoon bridge building in darkness.

The troops moved out of their comfortable squad tents at Fort Meade after a day of rest and preparation. Reconnaissance patrols of infantrymen scouted the enemy position during the day.

During the maneuver, the remainder of the 5,500 Regular Army troops from Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, will prepare for the entire brigade Friday, when one army will fight a delaying action against the aggression of the other.

5-Runway D. C. Airport Is Planned

Plans have been completed for a flying terminal at Washington Airport with five runways each 5,000 feet long, Samuel J. Solomon, manager of the landing field, revealed yesterday.

"Washington Airport," Solomon emphasized, "is the only site around Washington which is immediately available for service. It would stay available while work was underway, and the expanded field could be completed within a year without any trouble."

He declared that 110 acres in addition to land already owned by the airport corporation or the Federal Government would have to be secured to provide a landing area, but added that not enough land would be taken from the experimental farm to interfere materially with the expansion of Arlington Cemetery in accordance with existing plans. In all about 170 acres of the farm land would be used, he said.

As part of the proposed expansion, the spurline of the Pennsylvania Railroad along the south side of the terminal, would be removed, he indicated, but expected little opposition to the undertaking since the tracks of the Washington & Old Dominion Railway parallel the line farther south.

After remarking that he "was convinced that Gravelly Point can never go through," Solomon stated that, "with added stress being placed on military aviation, it seems unlikely that any airport development hindering Bolling Field activities will be undertaken.

On the enlarged field, the north-south runway of the present terminal would remain in use, while the existing east-west runway would be extended.

Bible Institute Hears Missionary Couple

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Stiers, jr., who will sail shortly for the African mission field, were the principal speakers last night at the opening of the seventeenth term of the Bible Institute of Washington, at 1316 Vermont avenue northwest. Herbert H. Amster, acting dean, presided.

The institute is directed by the following faculty members: Olive Love, Marguerite Russell, R. W. Hambrook, Colin Heath, Robert Clark, Dr. K. B. Moomaw and Amster. Classes are held four nights weekly.

Slum Elimination Basis of Sound Housing Program, Ihlder Tells C. I. O. Unionists

The basis of a sound public housing program is the elimination of all slums and the provision of an adequate supply of good houses for all people in the low income groups, John Ihlder, executive officer of the District Alley Dwelling Authority, declared last night.

Addressing a symposium sponsored by the housing division of Local 50, United Federal Workers of America, he declared that the housing problem is extremely complex and faces numerous stumbling blocks.

Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, told members of the C. I. O. union working for his organization that they were free to join the union of their choice.

At the same time he told them the USHA never would have come about without the aid of building trades councils of the American Federation of Labor. Recent agreements between the councils and the USHA that there would be no requests for wage increase or strikes over jurisdictional disputes during construction of projects, he called "milestones" in relations of organized labor and the Government.

Anthony Smith, executive secretary, housing committee of the C. I. O., said that first impetus for better housing in this country came from two unions now affiliated with the C. I. O. He pledged co-operation of the C. I. O. with A. F. of L. craft unions carrying on construction work of projects financed by the USHA.

'Boys Town' Leaves An Odd Impression

But There Is No Doubt That Picture Due at Capitol Tomorrow Carries a Wallop to the Heart; 'You Can't Take it With You' Will Return to National.

By Gerald G. Gross,
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell.

FOR SOME mysterious reason it is hard to find words to say anything about "Boys Town," which was previewed yesterday prior to its opening at Loew's Capitol tomorrow. Why, I don't know. Somehow it seems trite and hackneyed to call it an intensely dramatic picture, splendidly acted and produced with the utmost sincerity. Yet "Boys Town" is all of that.

Perhaps the cause of this desk's blind spot, with respect to "Boys Town," is its novelty, the fact that there's never been anything quite like it on the screen before. Perhaps a few days' perspective is needed. Then again a second viewing might turn the trick.

Possibly the proper approach to an appraisal of this unusual Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture is to break it down into its component parts: The Spencer Tracy portrayal of Father Flanagan, Mickey Rooney's role of a regenerate bad boy, the story itself, the direction, the musical accompaniment, the photography. All these various factors are of a high caliber; still "Boys Town" is greater than the sum of its parts. So I'm still stuck.

About all this reviewer is sure of is that Mickey Rooney, in spite of occasional over-acting in the first half of the picture, smashes down a personal prejudice against his screen deportment; Spencer Tracy never turned out a more artistic work (his priest in "San Francisco" and his Portuguese fisherman in "Captains Courageous" are not forgotten), and Director Norman Taurog covered himself with glory.

"Boy Town" preaches but is no sermon. Subtly, it drives home a powerful point without your being aware of it. And that is one of the hardest things in the world to do.

For a time it looked as though the National might have a dark week between the close of "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" and the arrival of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." But an announcement yesterday by Manager Edmund Plohn dispelled that fear. A return engagement of "You Can't Take It With You" has been scheduled for the week of September 26, he revealed, with a cast recruited by Producer Sam Harris from the New York, Boston and Chicago casts of last year. Top ticket price will be $1.50. During the latter part of that week Washingtonians will witness the unusual sight of the same show being presented simultaneously on stage and screen, in that Frank Capra's film version of the Hart-Kaufman Pulitzer Prize comedy opens at the Earle on September 30.

Ask a Government worker what day this is. He'll say, of course, pay day. Ask our postmaster. He'll reply, "Why, 101 days before Christmas. Have you begun your mailing yet?" But just ask any of the Warner Bros. family hereabouts and the answer will be, "Opening night for the Silver."

Yes, it takes place tonight, out in Silver Spring Md., on Georgia avenue at the Colesville Pike. Speech by Stedman Prescott, Maryland State Senator from Montgomery County—music by Alex Podnos' string ensemble—premiere of "Four Daughters," with the three Lane sisters and Gale Page—and, of course, the thrill that goes with being among the first to see, and he entertained in, a new theater.

Doors open at 7:30 p. m. and the dedicatory program begins an hour later, giving Silver pioneers ample opportunity to test the lounge chairs and drinking fountains. A 1,000-seat house, the Silver will be operated by Warner Bros. under a term lease arranged through William Wilcox, the Silver Spring showman who was instrumental in its construction. Lamar Keen will be manager, under general supervision of Harry Lohmeyer.

"Four Daughters" will be presented at the Silver for one performance only. It begins its regular run at the Earle on September 23.

"A "midweek reader" dispatched to this desk by Manager Hardie Meakin reveals that "Carefree" closes its run tonight at RKO-Keith's and "Affairs of Annabel" enters tomorrow. The new picture presents Jack Oakie as a resourceful press agent and Lucille Ball as an actress in the claws of two desperate kidnapers. Donald Duck, though, refuses to be dispossessed. A scoutmaster in "Good Scouts," which was held over with the Astaire-Rogers feature, he is the central figure in "Fox Hunt," the cartoon comedy on the new bill, which also includes "March of Time" and a subject on Czechoslovakia entitled "Prelude to Conquest."

New Playhouse Calendar

(Opening tomorrow unless otherwise noted.)

NATIONAL — "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," new comedy by Clare Boothe, author of "The Women," opens the legitimate season in Washington next Monday night. A social satire on thought and manners in the North and South, featuring Helen Claire, John Alexander, Benay Venuta and several other young players. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

EARLE—"Valley of the Giants" on the screen, with Ben Bernie and his lads and lassies headlining the stage bill. Picture, in Technicolor, stars Wayne Morris and Claire Trevor, and concerns itself melodramatically with lumber pirating in California a generation ago. Bernie brings with him Col. Manny Prager, Bobby Gibson and Shirley Lloyd, Harris and Shore, and other entertainers.

CAPITOL—"Boys' Town" on the screen, National Barn Dance on the stage. The film feature is based on the real Boys' Town, near Omaha, Nebr., which Father Flanagan founded for wayward and homeless boys. Spencer Tracy is the priest, Mickey Rooney his most trying charge. In the vaudeville unit are more than 20 instrumentalists, singers and dancers, brought here intact from Radio Station WLS.

RKO-KEITH'S—"The Affairs of Annabel," with Lucille Ball as Annabel and Jack Oakie as a press agent responsible for those affairs. The program also includes latest issue of "March of Time," in which Father Devine is prominently featured; "Prelude to Conquest," a timely item on Czechoslovakia, and Walt Disney's Donald Duck in "The Fox Hunt."

METROPOLITAN—"The Gladiator," than which Joe E. Brown has never made a funnier comedy, according to advance reports. He meets Man Mountain Dean in the wrestling climax. Joe's "heart" this time is June Travis. Dickie Moore and Lucian Littlefield also are prominently cast. Selected short subjects. Opens Saturday.

PALACE—"Marie Antoinette," a truly great picture with Norma Shearer as the Queen, Robert Morley as the King, Tyrone Power as Her Majesty's friend rather than lover, and John Barrymore, Joseph Schildkraut, Gladys George and others. Auxiliary reels included a Pete Smith specialty with Max Baer, a Robert Benchley comedy and late news events. Second week.

LITTLE—"The Return of the Scarlet Pimpernel," sequel to the Leslie Howard starring picture of a few years ago. An Alexander Korda production, its stars are Barry Barnes and Sophie Stewart and the action is reckless and exciting. Opens Sunday.

COLUMBIA—"Alexander's Ragtime Band," an excellent excuse to glorify cinematically the popular songs of Irving Berlin. Starring Tyrone Power, Alice Faye and Don Ameche, with Ethel Merman and Jack Haley featured, the picture contains some 26 Berlin tunes, from the title song right down to "Now It Can Be Told" and other hits written expressly for this film. Return engagement.

TRANS-LUX—An hour and a quarter of news reels, cartoon comedies, travel films and other shorts. New bill includes a visit to the French Riviera, reminiscent views of William S. Hart, Enrico Caruso and other celebrities of another day, the six Turnesa brothers playing golf.

MOUNT VERNON OPEN-AIR—"There's Always a Woman," with Joan Blondell and Melvyn Douglas. Opens today. "Rage of Paris," with Danielle Darrieux and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., open Sunday.

GAYETY—"The Garden of Eden Girls," first burlesque offering of the season, featuring Eve Arden. Opens Sunday.

A Man May Be Down but He's Never . . .

SPENCER TRACY AND MICKEY ROONEY, as they appear in one scene in "Boys Town," screen feature at Loew's Capitol for the week beginning tomorrow. Mickey is eventually knocked out, however, in his match with the "mayor" of Boys Town but the licking does him a world of good.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 14.—9:30 a. m. arrived at 20th Century-Fox studio. Interviewed Florence Enright, who for three years has coached and made tests for their hopefuls. She proves that dynamite comes in small wrappers—she's but 4 feet 10. They call her "Outright" because she speaks her mind, and won't fool the kids. If they haven't talent she tells them so. With it all she is a grand actress. She didn't want to do this, but was so good she was forced into it. Katharine Cornell is grateful for her help. And Sonja Henie—well, Sonja raved about her. One of these days I will give you a whole story on how tests are made.

HEDDA HOPPER

10:30 a. m. Shirley Temple's first interview since returning from the big trip. I asked her what was her most exciting experience. Like a grown-up Shirley said: "Now, there you have me." Then she thought a minute and said, "I liked the mountains and small towns best."

I'm afraid Shirley has an instinct for saying the right thing.

12:30 p. m. Vendome. Lunched with Janet Mabie of Christian Science Monitor. She is here doing very important work. Can't tell you what it is. She interviewed me. I found out how it is done. Being gabby type, I just talked. Heaven knows what came out!

Mrs. Charles Boyer, Mrs. Jack Warner and Lili Damita were across the room in latest winter fashions. Mrs. Warner was particularly smart in dark taupe and chartreuse with hat to match.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Sept. 14

MARTIN MOONEY, whose refusal to testify before the Grand Jury was referred to in Lyon Boston's testimony, has been invited by the Federals to tell all about his parole expose . . . Maurice Wahl, Dodge's Republican aide who had brought Dixie Davis before a Grand Jury, was subpenaed by the defense in the Hines case, and was waiting to testify . . . Since policy still flourishes in Harlem, the Cotton Club's new show will feature the Davis-Coots tune, "Playing the Numbers for Minnie" . . . The employers of a major industry last week sent a representative to Homer S. Cummings regarding violations of a C. I. O. contract.

LIFE MAGAZINE, which brought national fame to the Paradise's Hope Chandler—now Mrs. David Hearst—by publicising her on its first page, is preparing a spread about Frances Smith, who will be billed as the Paradise's new Glamour Girl . . . Life's photographers, however, will not find Miss Smith at the cafe for the late show. She appears only in the early shows . . . because the new Glamour Girl rises at 10 to attend her classes—at Girls' Cosmercial High School in Brooklyn.

BOLTON MALLORY, who was married to Nancy Carroll and who now is in the pearl-fishing business in Mexico, lost his largest catch of the year—a pearl valued at $5,000—Saturday night . . . Mallory, who challenged Tommy Farr at the Stork Club, apologized the next night, explaining that he realized he might have been taking advantage of Farr's professional capacity . . . Vladimir Sokoloff, the film actor, arrived in New York yesterday to portray the role of Robespierre, in the Mercury Theater's new production of "Danton" . . . Elmer Leterman, the insurance man, is one of the backers of N. T. G.'s new Swedish night club.

JOSEPHINE HUSTON, the Broadway night-club singer who has been touring Europe, was introduced to Count von Reventlow in London last week . . . "Nice to meet you," Miss Huston formally acknowledged . . . "My pleasure," Barbara Hutton's husband returned. "It's always a pleasure to meet American girls. I think they are the most charming in the world."

ON THE COVER of the new issue of Look is the photo of a young man, dancing with Rita Rio, the bandleader . . . The young man's name is William Furrow. He became a professional dancer last month after winning a dance contest in Des Moines. He now is touring as Miss Rio's dance partner . . . Until last month, and for the past seven years, Furrow had a steady job. He was a sheep killer in a Des Moines packing house.

Actor Compelled To Hit Best Friend

Close personal friends for more than 20 years, Edward Ellis and John Wray, playing together in RKO radio's "A Man to Remember," had their first misunderstanding recently.

The script called for Wray to punch Ellis on the jaw. Before Director Garson Kanin was satisfied with the scene, Wray had punched his old friend five times.

Film Table

Palace—"Marie Antoinette," at 11:25 a. m., 2:40, 6 and 9:15 p. m.

U. S. Cruiser Ordered to Stand By. Kennedy Leaving Downing Street Yesterday

Members of the crew of the U. S. S. Nashville (above) now in British waters, were assembled hurriedly yesterday and the ship moved from Portland to Gravesend, which is 28 miles from London. It is believed the government wanted the cruiser available to evacuate Americans if war comes. Shortly before, the radiophoto of Ambassador Kennedy (left) was obtained as he left the prime minister's residence. Czech troops shown at right were pictured during their march into forests near Milovice.

Rail Body Asks Rate-Fixing Rule Changes

Cites $183,000,000 Deficit In Last 7 Months, Urges I.C.C. to Allow Return On Property Value.

To solve the financial problems of the Nation's railways, the Association of American Railroads urged revision of the Interstate Commerce Commission rate-making rule yesterday at a transportation conference called by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"Congress should lay a mandate upon the I. C. C. to fix rates with due regard to the right of railroad owners to earn a return upon the value of property devoted to public service," a statement issued by the association said.

"The law," it continued, "should not permit the members of any regulating body to determine questions that are essentially managerial and which do not affect the public interest."

New Rail Bill Asked

Enactment of a new railroad bill was proposed by Emory R. Johnson, professor of transportation at the University of Pennsylvania. Its features included:

Establishment of a special court of three judges to handle consolidations; revision of the I. C. C. ratemaking to provide "reasonable rates of return" to carriers, and labor organizations put "on an equal footing as regards negotiations and responsibility for observance of agreements and contracts."

Topics under consideration did not include the 15 per cent rail labor wage reduction, on which the unions are taking a strike vote, and no labor leaders were on the list of conferees.

Officials of the Railway Labor Executives Committee said a meeting scheduled here this week has been cancelled because of President Roosevelt's absence from Washington, but that the labor leaders hoped to meet here some time before they convene in Chicago to tabulate the strike vote, September 26.

Asks Rate Adjustment

The association recommended the establishment of a special court of three judges to handle all consolidations. It further urged adjustment of intrastate rates by the commission in harmony with interstate rates when prescribed; provision by statute that rates may be so adjusted that carriers may acumulate a surplus in times of business prosperity; exemption of the railroads from the tax on undistributed profits "to promote stability of service and employment;" repeal of reduction of rates for Government transportation services by the land-grant railroads.

The association also presented a summary of railway operations and traffic showing a deficit for seven 1938 months of $183,470,000, against net income of $55,262,000 in the same period in 1937, and a deficit of $139,204,000 for the full year 1932.

The rate of return on property investment has declined from 4.81 per cent in 1929, 1.24 per cent in 1932, to 0.84 per cent in the first seven months of 1938. Revenue carloadings in the first 35 weeks in 1938 totaled 19,543,279, against 35,377,737 in 1929 and 18,666,647 in 1932.

Connecticut Ave. Merchants Study Upswept Coiffure

For the second time in the memory of living man, a women's hair style is definitely revolutionizing business. Members of the Connecticut Avenue Association came to this conclusion at their first fall meeting of the year last evening in the Mayflower Hotel.

With C. Huston McCeney presiding, and Miss Marshall Adams, The Post's fashion editor, as guest speaker, the meeting developed into an open forum of the effects on business of the new unswept hairdress, which originated in Paris and swept across the Atlantic to take Washington and all other Eastern Seaboard cities by storm.

"It is the biggest stimulus to business since women bobbed their hair," declared one spokesman, and his opinion was unanimously indorsed.

U. S. Buys Shaw Lily Ponds As Rival to Cherry Blossoms

The 8½ acres acquired yesterday for $15,000 include 6½ acres of ponds and 2 acres of marshland which may be developed later for growing additional water plants.

Varying in size from a few hundred square feet to an acre and one-half, the ponds will be turned over to the National Park Service.

Acquisition of the ponds gives the Capital park system a garden which draws thousands of visitors annually during the June blooming season, when there are 500,000 plants producing colored blossoms. Development of the area will make it a show place rivaling the Tidal Basin cherry blossoms.

Shortly after the Civil War, Shaw, a Union soldier, came to Washington to work in the Treasury Department. He bought a farm at Kenilworth and the real estate agent "threw in" seven acres of what he considered useless swamp. From this swamp of 1870 were developed the famous gardens.

Fifty years ago, Shaw sent to his home in Maine for 12 bulbs of hardy, white water lilies which he planted in an unused ice pond in his marsh. The flowers soon outgrew the pond, and other pools were provided.

Despite the fact that he had lost an arm in the Civil War, Shaw rowed around the ponds planting, cultivating and gathering the lilies after working all day at the Treasury.

His experiments soon developed beyond the bounds of a hobby and grew into a thriving industry, his blossoms becoming known all over the world.

D. C. to Supply More Serums For Pneumonia

Remedy for 4 Additional Types to Be Given Out Free to Needy Sick, Dr. Dowling Says.

Dr. Harry F. Dowling announced at a special medical clinic of the Georgetown University Medical School yesterday that the District health department would be able to supply free of cost this winter serum for four additional types of pneumonia.

Serum was supplied last winter only for No. 1 type, the most common of the 32 types.

"The serum will be available upon the statement of the physician that the patient is unable to pay for it," Dr. Dowling explained.

Pneumonia serum, he said, costs about $50 per patient. At the same time, he explained, the compensation in reduced hospitalization costs and shortening of time lost from work well offsets the cost of serum treatment.

Dr. Dowling declared serum treatment cuts the pneumonia mortality rate in type No. 1 pneumonia from 30 to 10 or 15 per cent. He cited 49 cases of No. 1 in the District, resulting in only three deaths following serum treatment, a mortality rate of only 6 per cent. In one case, death was not directly due to pneumonia.

Dr. Milton V. Veldee, of the National Institute of Health, presented a paper on experiments which he has conducted in rendering school children immune from scarlet fever. The clinic was part of the third annual alumni extension course of the School of Medicine.

Of 11,000 children in western Maryland subjected to the experiment, he said, only 89 developed scarlet fever, although, on the basis of tests, the normal incidence would have been 795 cases in the same group of children.

This indicated that the immunization experiment had reduced scarlet fever by 90 per cent.

The immunization material consists of raw toxin containing scarlet fever germs precipitated in purified tannic acid or aluminum hydroxide solutions. Injections in minute doses is made throug the skin.

Dr. Sarah E. Branham, of the National Institute of Health, explained that the future held out four prospects for improvement in the treatment of spinal meningitis. These are, she said, determination of the type of meningtitis at the patient's bedside, development of a better serum, discovery of a better drug than sulfanilimide, and possibly, although this is more remote, the development of specific serums for different types.

Dr. Frederick J. Brady, of the Institue of Health, told how treatment of persons afflicted with pinworm with gentian violet administered internally in tablets had been successful in 90 per cent of the cases.

Clarence Woolley, Heating Pioneer, Is 75 Today

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Sept. 14.—Clarence M. Woolley, chairman of the board of directors of American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corporation, whose achievements in the field of heating and ventilation have earned him decorations of three countries, tomorrow will celebrate his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary.

WOOLLEY.

A pioneer in his field, Woolley has had a distinguished career in the United States, and during the World War he was vice chairman of the War Trade Board and its liaison officer with the War Industries Board. For his many services, he was named to the Decorated Chevalier Legion of Honor by France, Order of the Crown of Italy, and Order of Leopold by Belgium.

The noted industrialist has participated in many civic programs, and helped sponsor Chicago musical organizations. He is a trustee of Columbia University and St. Lawrence University.

Born in Detroit, Woolley was educated in the public schools. He later was honored with degrees by Colgate and St. Lawrence Universities. In 1902 he became president of the American Radiator Co., and served until 1924, when he was named chairman of the board.

Woolley is a director of the Johns-Manville Corporation, General Motors Corporation, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad, Atlantic Mutual Insurance Co., Continental Insurance Co., General Electric Co., Gold Dust Corporation, and Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. He was director of Federal Reserve Bank of New York from 1922 through 1936. Other posts include president of trustees, John B. Pierce Foundation; and a member of the board of managers, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

Woolley is a member of American Academy of Political and Social Science, American Geographic Society, American Iron and Steel Institute, New York Zoological Society, Pan-American Society, Pilgrims of United States, and the Metropolitan Club of Washington, D. C.

Worry, Fear Seen Behind Thyroid Ills

Dr. McCartney Tells His Fellows Anxiety Makes Gland Overactive; 3d Goiter Parley Ends.

Anxiety, worry and fear may ecipitate excessive activity of the thyroid gland, Dr. James L. McCartney, Philadelphia, declared yesterday at the conclusion of the third annual goiter conference at the Mayflower Hotel, but he added his opinion that certain basic factors first had to be present.

In order to qualify in the class of persons who would become subject to hyperthyroidism in consequence of this combination, he explained, a person has to have a fair level of intelligence.

Dr. J. H. Means, Boston, made a parallel observation when he declared that adrenalin shot through the system by "getting all hot and bothered" intensified the toxic effects of hyperthyroidism.

For this reason, he emphasized the need of avoiding all excitement in preparing the patient for a thyroidectomy, removal of part of the thyroid gland. This severe operation may cure not only the condition of hyperthyroidism, but apparently the cause as well in many cases.

Dr. McCartney evoked a laugh from the 500 or so thyroid specialists in attendance by telling them that experiments had shown that a frog placed in a glass jar after its brain had been removed would catch more flies in a minute than the intact frog would catch in an hour.

"The reason," he said, "is that the normal frog spends so much of its time worrying about its environment."

Dr. J. K. McGregor, Hamilton, Ontario, was made president-elect of the American Association for the Study of Goiter at the election of officers Tuesday evening.

Dr. F. B. Dorsey, jr., was moved from president-elect to president. Dr. C. J. Hunt, Kansas City, Mo., was elected vice president. Dr. W. Blair Mosser, Kane, Pa., was re-elected corresponding secretary; Dr. George C. Shivers, Colorado Springs, Colo., recording secretary, and Dr. V. E. Chesky, Halstead, Kans., treasurer.

The following were elected to the association council: Dr. Frank H. Lahey, Boston, retiring president; Dr. Means and Dr. Samuel Haines, Rochester, Minn., assistant professor of medicine of the Mayo Foundation.

Coal Firms Appeal Cost Secrecy Case

Twenty-two coal companies in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Utah, yesterday carried to the Court of Appeals of the District their fight to prevent the National Bituminous Coal Commission from making public cost data filed by the companies with the commission.

In a hearing last week, Justice Joseph W. Cox in District Court held the Commission was within its rights in permitting inspection of its books by interested parties. The Justices of the Appellate Court took the matter under advisement.

Fashions

Drama, Glamour Are Keynotes In Fall Frocks

Local Stores Are Showing Hoop-Skirted Marie Antoinette Styles for Evening Wear.

By Marshall Adams.
The Post Fashion Editor.

THE TINGLE of opening day on the gridiron, the extravaganza of Marie Antionette's era, the enticement of black, the activity surrounding the career woman, all were combined into one original fashion showing last evening at a local store. Fashion-conscious Washingtonians had their styles served in courses, and each entree was distinct from the other, so the sports lover, the professional girl and the classic-minded were individually saluted.

This versatile opening night, megaphoned by Miss Alice Richardson, associate editor of a nationally distributed magazine, hailed glamour as the keynote for fall day and evening clothes. "Drama and glamour are not necessarily confined to late hours, soft lights and sweet music," this authority insisted. "These qualities can be had in golf tweeds, school jerseys or the plain black dress you wear to the office every day. It means wearing the right thing at the right time; it means the serenity and poise that comes from being certain that you're perfectly turned out from morning 'til dawn."

Chic Business Dress

Miss Richardson introduced ensembles designed for five types of womanhood commencing with the career woman, whose business uniforms she enlivened by including the oft-neglected formal fashions.

Career Women's fashions were highlighted by a saucy office frock of black and white striped wool, its silk pique weskit buttoning onto the skirt all the way around the waist from placket to placket. All the frocks in this group stressed efficiency, plus a dash of wit.

Exclusive fashions, designs obtainable only at the store presenting last night's show, were symbolized by a clever muff and jacket made of Afghan, a new looking gray fur. The peplum of the tight-waisted jacket was dramatically flared.

Dirndl Polo Coat

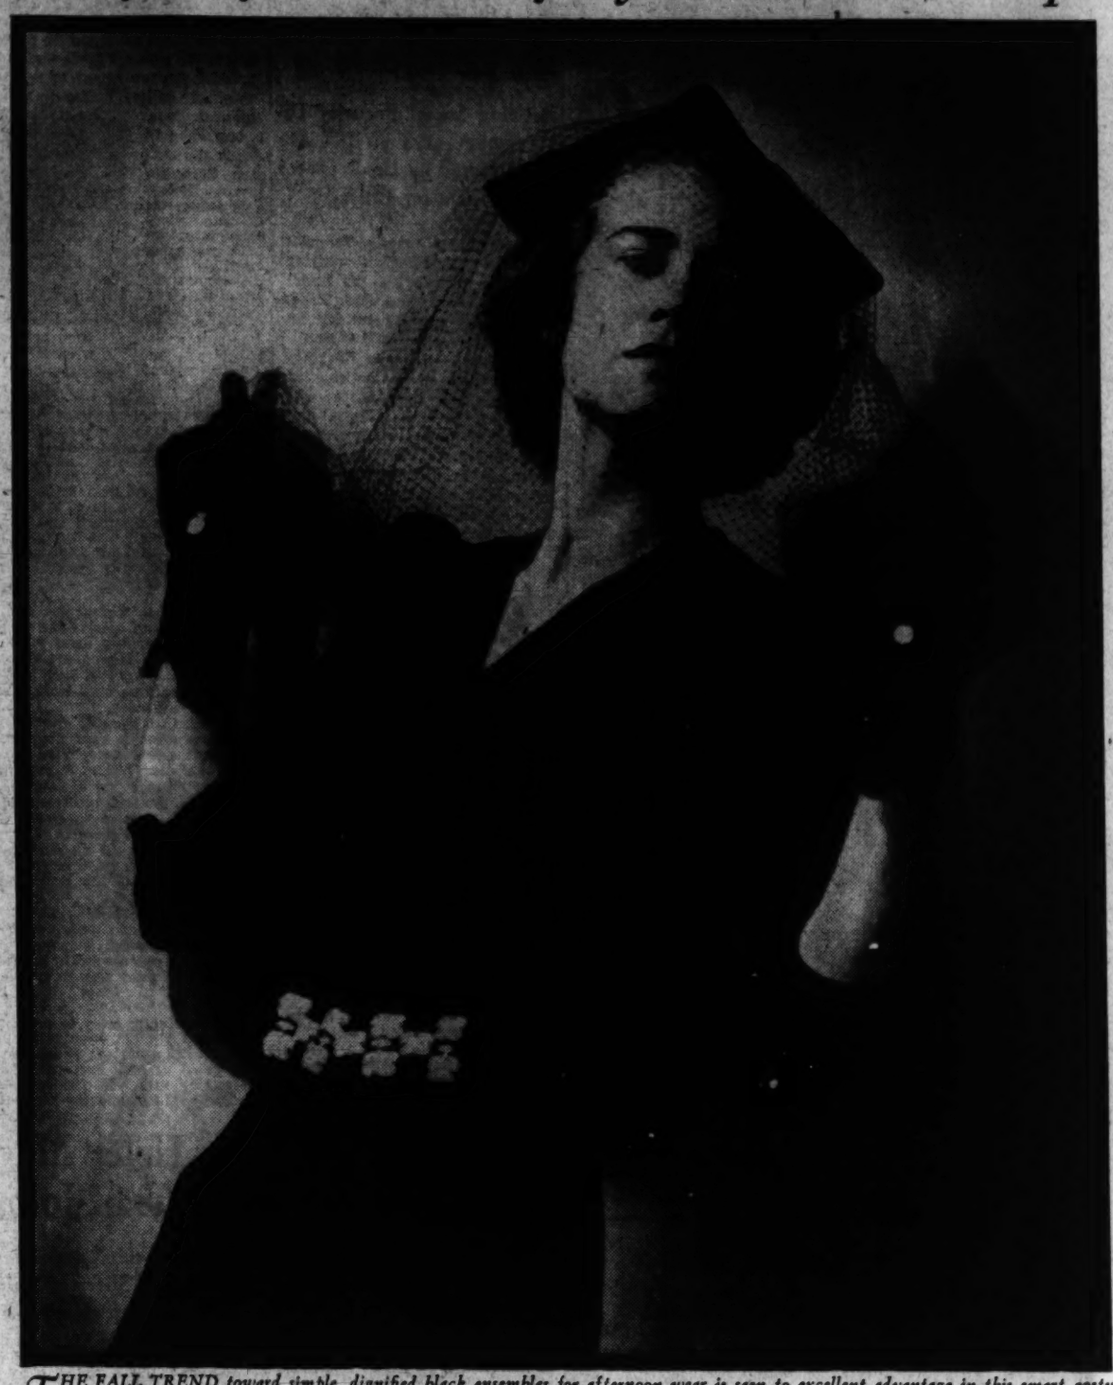
Gala Black ensembles proved to be a radical change from the old type of casual black frock, so depressing after a few wearings. One notably youthful black jersey was given mystery by a ring-nosed voodoo's head leering from the neckline.

One particularly coquettish court gown of black taffeta, rustling and billowing over hoops, and starched petticoats acted as perfect foil for the coy nosegay clasped in the model's hand, personified the Marie Antoinette era.

Off-To-The-Game styles concluded the showing. One of the smartest models was a casual ensemble of Scotch plaid wool, its gayety made more vivid with arrays of silver button closings.

Black for Afternoon, Artfully Pleated and Draped



THE FALL TREND toward simple, dignified black ensembles for afternoon wear is seen to excellent advantage in this smart costume. A sunburst of fine knife pleats is skillfully molded to emphasize the bustline, and the new high-headed effect is achieved by the triangular pixie hat, made of velvet and coquettishly veiled. This was but one of many smart black outfits featured in a local fashion show last night.

A Woman's New York

—by Alice Hughes

New York, Sept. 14.

WELL, THE last big cargo of fashioneers puffed in on the Queen Mary a few days ago—and hair is still up. The new shipload confirms the fact that the hair designers have won this bitter battle, and will re-do those high-piled curls until the gallant womanhood of America says fooie, and goes back to a coiffure that doesn't require the nimble hands of a beautician every 10 minutes.

ALICE HUGHES.

No less a personage than Carmel Snow, editor of Harper's Bazaar, came in on the Queen with her hair way up, and looking lovely that way. She also wore a handsome gray tweed suit, and in every respect fulfilled the fashion gospel her periodical preaches to its myriad readers. Carmel also reported that at Cannes the uppity ladies wore large, gay combs with their upturns, and that deep purple and cerise are very hotcha-ma-gotcha in the evening. She also says that colors are replacing black for street wear, but that is a story that will need much confirmation on our shores. Personally, I think nothing but dire fate will remove good, old, faithful black from our girls' backs. Hats are small, shoes are simple and higher, and the smartest furs (as of today) are nutria and Persian lamb. All these things Carmel gave out as the customs men poked gingerly.

Another of our girls was a prominent item in the cargo—the same being Wilhela Cushman, fashion editor of the Ladies Home Journal, whose beautiful locks were still down around the neck. But she hastened to tell me that she was planning to get them up, and thus march in the parade. Well, I am now completely out on the good old limb. I have made a try at getting up the back hair, but it is still too short for good results. So now the finger of scorn is pointed at me every day, on the Avenue. "Look at poor old Hughes," say the derisive whispers. "Her hair still down her neck. Slipping eh?" I can take it.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The death of Patrick Cardinal Hayes, that much loved prelate, drove other calamities from our front pages for a few days. He was a noted figure among thousands not of his flock. I remember him best at a Good Friday morning service, as he sat on his throne in St. Patrick's while the choir chanted the tenebrae. As he sat there in scarlet and ermine, he was a magnificent picture of dignity and benignity, and I remember thinking, "Surely, that is the way a prince of the old church should look!"—and he the son of a poor and humble Irish family of the archdiocese over which he was to rule one day!

The first special extra on the most talked of marriage of the year (though not in my set) is that Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt are expecting. Thus the former Manuela Hudson, of California, will provide another budding horseman (or woman) to preside over the great stable which is the second, or third, apple of young Al's eye.

I hear that a cigar is being named after the gorgeous Zorina, wonder girl of the musical hit, "I Married an Angel." I hope it is true, for it follows a great tradition of the century's turn when every reigning queen of the theater was honored in some brand of cheroot. Of course, all the boys around town are saying that this country needs more Zorinas rather than a good five-cent cigar. How wonderful if both needs could be fulfilled in the weed named for the beauteous ballerina! . . .

Well, this is the time, so hurry on over. Suddenly the temperature here skidded 15 degrees, smiles replaced scowls, and pep once more fills the New York breast. For a few brief weeks we are sure that this is the greatest and most thrilling city on earth. After that, we're not so certain.

Chain of Smart Shops Started In Apartment

ST. LOUIS (U.P.).—Mme. Lane Bryant—Mrs. Albert Malsin—revealed here that the national chain of dress shops bearing her name was started 38 years ago in a three-room apartment in New York when she was forced to provide a living for herself and a 6-month-old son.

Mme. Bryant said her first husband died shortly after the birth of her child. She began making fine tea gowns and lingerie for a wealthy clientele.

"In those days," she said, "I used to work until 2 in the morning, designing, sewing and delivering. I never gave credit because I wouldn't have had money enough to buy materials for the next day."

After a year Mme. Bryant had enough business to open a small shop. After that, success came swiftly.

Wedding Ring May Signal Dieting Time

By Ida Jean Kain.

YOU MAY BE superstitious about taking off your wedding ring, but one way you can tell about your weight is to slip it up and down your finger. If you have to tug or resort to soap, you have taken on some weight, but when you are forced to have your ring enlarged it's time for you to count your calories.

Weight seems to increase about 20 pounds or so before it makes much difference in the size of the fingers. Usually the gain in weight is gradual—first 5 pounds, then 10, and then 20, so that any considerable gain is always something of a shock, especially if it means having one's wedding ring made larger.

The sole purpose of the new "Twenty-One Day Diet" is to let you lose those 10 pounds easily.

As a rule you can count on losing 1 to 2 pounds per week on the daily 1,200 calorie diet, and the "Twenty-One Day" menus are balanced at 1,000 calories to make you lose your excess weight more rapidly.

Mary Haworth's Mail

How to Deal With Mother Who Feels Children Can Never Do Enough to Repay Her for Gift of Life?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I come from a very fine family of considerable wealth. My mother has a fine character and is a very religious woman. But in the back of her mind lie these thoughts: "I have three children. Look what I have done for them. They should repay me in some way." My mother believes that we should wait on her hand and foot. No matter what we do to help her, she is ready to ask for more.

That is my problem. What are we to do? If we make any attempt to refuse to do something she requests, we are punished severely. She has made us all unhappy at times, but I have been more miserable than the others. Please tell me how to bear my problem. Is there any way my mother can become a more agreeable companion? She was sick for a bit but is better now. She was very difficult during that period for all of us. We were with her all the time, obeying her least little command. Please answer soon because I am

UNHAPPY.

DEAR UNHAPPY: It is scarcely possible to discuss, in a specifically helpful way, a problem stated in such vague and general terms. In order to determine whether or not your mother's demands upon her children are arrogantly selfish and unjust, it would be necessary to know, among other things, how old the children are, the nature of her demands upon them, the kind of service they are willing voluntarily to render, the point at which rebellion sets in, just what sort of "severe punishment" she seeks to administer when offended, and so on and so on. In other words, your representations would need to be substantiated with illustrative factual data before an analysis and solution of this particular situation could be intelligently undertaken.

I am inclined to believe, however, that there is some merit to your claim, for the reason that your mother, as described, fits neatly into a certain classification of infantile feminine personality—the sort of woman, who, having achieved motherhood more by accident than by design or desire, proceeds thereafter to deify the role out of all proportion to nature, and to exact exaggerated homage and punitive service in its name. She is the sort of woman who feels martyred at having become a mother at all; and who, seeks, in a spirit of subconscious resentment against nature, to even the account by turning her esentially unwelcome offspring into slaves, constantly goading them to sacrificial service by the mordant reminder of "all they owe" her, which, boiled down, is the fact of their existence.

Such a woman, in my opinion, is looking at life through the wrong end of the telescope. Granted that children owe reasonable parents every courtesy, every humane and kindly consideration that one civilized person spontaneously accords another, nevertheless it seems to me that when it comes to an accounting of parental versus filial responsibility, the parent has the greater obligation.

It has been said, with penetrating wisdom, that the debt which a child owes his parents, for the gift of life and adequate preparation for participation in the challenging adventure of living, is best and most constructively discharged in the coin of a useful contribution to his own posterity. In other words, instead of taxing his powers to the utmost to pay back, as it were, to his parents, for all they have given to and made possible for him—which is, in a sense, to turn his back to the future—he should constitute himself trustee of what may rightfully be regarded as a gratuitous endowment and prepare, in time, to pass it along, intact and enhanced, to his own (and his parents') descendants.

I can only hope that the foregoing remarks, of a general nature, may afford you some premise from which to determine the justice or injustice of your mother's attitude; and invest you with the courage and understanding to protect your own rights against unwarranted invasion, and to develop your own powers as an autonomous personality. If, however, you are still in the teens (as is my guess) the time is scarcely ripe for a final emancipation from parental claims of a purely sentimental and emotional kind. It will be time enough to assert a sturdy, reasoned independence of maternal parasitism when you are a grown woman—in the early twenties, say. But remember this: No worthwhile purpose is ever served, either for parent or for offspring, in the latter's submitting indefinitely to overweening parental domination of a selfish, emotional or sentimental sort. Sooner or later that so-called "silver cord" must be severed, if the child's life is not to be utterly spoiled. M. H.

Fall Vies With Spring As 'Marrying Months'

Miss Anne Child, Daughter of Late Ambassador to Italy, Completes the Plans for Her Wedding to Charles Barstow Wright Dick, Which Will Take Place in New York October 15.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

SEPTEMBER AND OCTOBER long have vied with June and January as "marrying months." They have, that is, ever since the gay Nineties when autumn first began to take the spotlight as the ideal knot-tyingtime. This season, with its flurry of weddings and nuptial plans, is very much like it has been for years and years . . . although each fall, no end of persons observe, "There never were so many marriages before!"

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER.

So far as America is concerned, the nuptial course for many eras has followed the routine engagement, entertaining and orange-blossom path with little deviation, no matter which season is selected for the ceremony.

Long ago in Norway, parents of brides-to-be didn't bother about buying wedding dresses. Each parish kept on hand a complete wedding outfit for the temporary use of village belles. Wearing the attire insured the bride "health and happiness." On the other hand, folklore tales do go on about the pagan bride whose hope chest invariably contained a shield, a sword and ax to be used, if necessary, against a husband's blows. In her case, self-preservation was the thing to be considered.

• • • •

THE ANGLO-SAXON marriage service had much in common with the modern ritual, except that the bride gave her word not only "for fairer, for fouler, for better, for worse," but also promised to be "buxom and bonny."

It's a far cry from the quainter nuptial plans of such times to those of the modern day, but some of our favorite wedding customs now still have a distinct semblance to those of the past. Back in the times of Queen Elizabeth, for example, betrothal announcements were always the signal for a round of merrymaking, and friends and relatives of the prospective bride and bridegroom kept tab on each plan for the wedding as it developed.

The ceremony itself generally wound up with a banquet, either comparatively simple or lavish, depending on whether the wedding was witnessed only by family and close friends, or by all the acquaintances of the couple.

• • • •

MISS ANNE CHILD'S forthcoming marriage to Charles Barstow Wright Dick, of Philadelphia, is one of the most important on the autumn calendar. The event, which will take place in New York, will be of wide interest both in this country and abroad. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. E. W. Pavenstedt, better known as Maude Parker, the writer, who makes her home in Washington, and the late Richard Washburn Guild, who was one-time United States Ambassador to Italy as well as a noted literary figure.

The ceremony, scheduled for Saturday afternoon, October 15, will take place at 4:30 o'clock in St. Bartholomew's Church, Park avenue and Fiftieth street. The oval ballroom of the Cosmopolitan Club will be the scene of the reception which, like the wedding, will be a small affair, limited to relatives and close friends.

Miss Constance Child, younger sister of the bride-elect, will be maid of honor, and other attendants will include Miss Phyllis Lovering, of Pinehurst, N. C.; Miss Elanor Flood, of Washington; Miss Patricia Verdi, of New York, and Mrs. William Forbes, jr., of Philadelphia. Miss Martha Bacon, duaghter of Mrs. Robert Low Bacon and the late Representative Bacon, also had been asked to be a bridesmaid but she probably will drop out owing to the recent death of her father.

William Forbes, jr., will be best man, and ushers selected are Tinsley Adams, of Washington; William Clothier 2d, William Coxe Wright, and Wistel Morris, of Philadelphia; Hugh Whittaker, of Cincinnati, and John Faggi, of New York.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Langhorne Dick, of Chesnut Hill, Philadelphia. Mrs. Dick and her daughter, Miss Hebe Dick, are still abroad, but they will return from their summer home in Buc, France, early in October especially for the wedding. Miss Child visited them there this summer while she and her mother and her sister were abroad.

Back From California

Banes Given Farewell Tea By Col. Jesse

Retiring Social Security Director and Wife Are Honored as He Prepares to Leave for Chicago.

Another in a series of farewell parties for Frank Bane, retiring executive director of the Social Security Board, and Mrs. Bane, was the tea given yesterday by Col. and Mrs. Charles T. Jesse.

The Banes will leave Washington the first of November, and will go to Chicago, where he will take over the directorship of the Council of State Governments.

At yesterday afternoon's fete the host and hostess received their guests in the drawing room banked with flowers from Col. and Mrs. Jesse's own garden.

Mrs. John J. Corson, Mrs. Yergil Reed, Mrs. Walter Weaver and Mrs. Joseph P. Harris assisted during the afternoon. Mrs. Corson wore a gown of brown silk crepe, fashioned on severe lines, relieved by a sash from which cascaded heavy silk fringe clear to the hem of the skirt. With it she wore a small turned-up brim sailor model of brown felt and brown accessories.

Mrs. Weaver wore a black and white silk print, with a white hat of the new pancake type, accessories of white and a single strand of pearls. Mrs. Harris chose a blue silk-flowered crepe, fashioned with a draped V-neckline, and a stitched gored skirt. Her high-crowned turban was of blue, as were her other accessories.

Mr. Bane will leave next week for a business trip to be gone some time. Frank Bane, jr., will accompany his parents to Chicago in November. Their daughter, Miss Clark Bane, left last Monday to enter the University of Wisconsin.

About the Town

By Dudley Harmon

EVEN the Washington tea party, where the greatest crisis that can possibly happen is apt to be the encounter of two belles wearing identical hats, is beginning to reflect the current European jitters. Noticeably tense was the atmosphere at the reception held yesterday afternoon by the Commandant of the Navy Yard and Mrs. George T. Pettingill for officers of the newly arrived French gunboat D'Entrecasteaux.

DUDLEY HARMON

Diplomats, usually a dime a dozen at Capital parties, were conspicuous by their absence. Not until ten minutes before the reception ended did the French Embassy staff dash in breathlessly, as members had been all day at the chancery, to which most of them returned last evening. Everybody was trying hard to be cheery, but for some of the Europeans it must have been rather an effort.

• • • •

THE GAY strains of the Navy Band, in a stand outside the commandant's quarters, must have fallen rather incongruously on ears which all day had been hearing of ultimatums, civil wars, and similar occurrences.

Besides the French, the only diplomats present were the German military attache, Vice Admiral Robert Witthoeft-Emden; the Netherlands naval attache, Commander Raneft, and two from the Italian Embassy, Marquis Sant'Orsola and Marquis Benedetto Capomazza. Vice Admiral Witthoeft was occupied introducing to his friends his American bride of two months.

J. Pierrepont Moffat, chief of the busy European division of the State Department, managed to grab a few moments out of a hectic day to attend the reception, but did not linger long.

• • • •

Mrs. Pettingill, who is one of the Capital's most popular hostesses, looked smart as usual in a long gown of pink crepe with a contrasting sash. In the receiving line with her and the admiral were Capt. Jean Serpette, captain of the gunboat, and Commander Pierre Benech, embassy naval attache. Mme. Benech had charge of the iced-coffee operations. She and her husband will entertain at an informal buffet supper tonight for the officers.

Yesterday's party had some of the earmarks of a college reunion. A number of people have slipped into town during the past few days after an all-summer absence, among them Mrs. John R. (Ma) Williams, who spent the summer at her home in Beverly on the North Shore of Massachusetts.

• • • •

MRS. FRANCIS WHITTE spent an original summer vacation by going South while everybody else was heading North. She has recovered from her serious illness of last summer and yesterday looked her usual chic self in a black frock and silver fox scarves. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Clark recently returned from California, and Ralph Snowden Hill were others who said they were glad to be back in Washington again.

The Navy was well represented by genial Admiral Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, and Mrs. Land; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ralston Holmes, with their daughter, Miss Sally Holmes; Commander and Mrs. Paul Mayfield, Commander Jerauld Wiltse, Mrs. Austin Kantz, Miss Christine Gawne, and Miss Carolyn Chantry, who recently returned with her mother from Cape May, N. J.

• • • •

MISS MARGARET FRASER was there, and so were the John Carter Vincents. Commander Hamilton V. Bryan was accompanied by Mrs. Lennert Nystrom, who was chic in a black frock with a gold belt and a smart matching hat with a veil. The much advertised toy hats, by the way, seemed, like the diplomats, in a definite minority yesterday. We only spotted one.

The gunboat will be here until September 23, and the ten officers can be expected to enliven Capital society quite a bit during their stay. Most of them are young and handsome and generally should cause quite a flutter among the gals. The D'Entrecasteaux has just come from Newport and from here will go to Jacksonville, Miami, and then Martinique.

Wade Ellises Return to City

Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis have returned to their home on Massachusetts avenue after a vacation abroad. Sailing from this country on the Queen Mary, July 20, they went to England.

They spent a fortnight in Rippon, in Yorkshire, the community and estate after which their country place, Rippon Lodge, in Virginia was named. While in Yorkshire, they motored more than 1,000 miles around the countryside.

Later, they went to Bournemouth and then to Torquay for a visit. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis had hoped to accept the invitation of the American Minister to Czechoslovakia and Mrs. Wilbur Carr to visit in Prague, but abandoned plans because of recent developments there.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis returned to this country on the Aquitania and came directly to Washington after landing. They will spend this week-end at Rippon Lodge and be back in Washington next week.

Mrs. Shipley To Return From Quebec Vacation

Mrs. R. B. Shipley, chief of the passport division of the State Department, will return tomorrow from the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec, where she has been for the past few days.

Mrs. Shipley, highest ranking woman in the department, has been vacationing in Canada for several weeks.

Henry R. Luces Go Back to N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Luce returned yesterday to their apartment at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York following a brief visit to Washington. They will return next week to attend the opening of "Kiss The Boys Goodby," latest play written by Mrs. Luce, who is better known as Claire Booth, author of "The Women," Broadway hit.

She will be guest of honor at the next luncheon of the Women's National Press Club.

Yugoslav Minister Due in U. S. Next Week

The Yugoslav Minister, Constantin Fotitch, will arrive in New York next Wednesday on the Conte de Savoia and is expected to come immediately to Washington. He has been in his homeland.

Mme. Fotitch and their daughter, Pola, will join the Minister later from Yugoslavia.

Miss E. W. McLean To Join Mother; Meems Also Coming

Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean will be joined next week by her daughter, Miss Evalyn Washington McLean, who has been in Colorado Springs this summer visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean. jr. Mrs. McLean, jr. is the former Miss Anne Carroll Meem, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Meem, of Washington.

Mrs. McLean is at Friendship at present, but expects to go away later this month for a rest.

Mr. and Mrs. Meem and their older daughter, Miss Eleanor Meem, will return tomorrow from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. McLean, jr. and to the West Coast. They are making the return trip by train.

Ward, Koepenick, Miss Callahan Wed

The marriage of Miss Julia Elizabeth Callahan to Ward J. Koepenick took place at 9 a. m. yesterday at St. Gabriel's Church, the Rev. William J. Sweeney officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, John C. Grace, wore a white satin gown and veil of illusion. Miss Margaret McCarrick was her maid of honor and Miss Virginia Grace served as bridesmaid. The former was gowned in an orchid satin frock and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of tea roses, while Miss Grace wore a wood violet satin ensemble and carried a colonial bouquet.

Edward L. Koepenick, jr., served as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Charles LeRoy Zink, John Stadtler, Glenn Koepenick, another brother, and James R. Ward.

After their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Koepenick will live at Devonshire Courts on Connecticut avenue. They will be at home after October 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffers Back Here From Wedding Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Parker D. Jeffers, whose wedding took place late in August, have returned from a wedding trip to Nigara Falls, N. Y., and Canada. On their journey they also visited at Watkins Glen, N. Y., and saw the State Fair at Syracuse.

After October 1, Mr. and Mrs. Jeffers will make their home at the Edwards Apartments on Rhode Island avenue. Mrs. Jeffers is the former Miss Marie Elleen Burton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion F. Burton.

Miss Lenora Gordon To Become Bride

Mrs. Charles Gordon, of Washington, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Lenora Gordon, to Nathan M. Lubar, of this city. The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Mr. Gordon.

The wedding will take place the latter part of November.

At Williamsburg

Mrs. Tully C. Garner, daughter-in-law of Vice President and Mrs. John N. Garner; Miss Genevjeve Garner, Mrs. Wales Madden and Miss Betty Smyth are among those who are guests at the Williamsburg Inn, in Williamsburg, Va.

Miss Corea Plans Bridal

Miss Lois Fleming Corea who is completing arrangements for her wedding on Saturday, October 15 to Dr. Herald Alfred Rehder, has slected her sister, Mrs. Marvin E. Fowler, the former Miss India Bell Corea, for ner matron of honor. Gerhard Rehder, of Jamaica Plains, N. Y., brother of the bridegroom, will be best man.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of the late Dr. Luis Felipe Corea, former Minister from Nicaragua to the United States. Her mother, Mrs. Corea, is the former Miss India Bell Fleming, well known in Washington society and a sister of Robert V. Fleming.

The double ring ceremony will be performed at All Souls Church at 1 o'clock in the afternoon with the Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett officiating. Luis Felipe Corea, jr., brother of the bride-elect, will give his sister in marriage. Following the rites at the church, there will be a small reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin E. Fowler, at 3737 Van Ness street.

The bride-elect has just returned from a two weeks visit to Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Rehder, parents of the prospective bridegroom, at their summer cottage on Cape Cod. Dr. Alfred Rehder, the head of the Arboretum at Harvard University, is an internationally known botanist and his textbook on trees is used by the Department of Agriculture as the standard treatise on this subject. Miss Corea attended George Washington University where she received her A. B. and A. M. degrees. She is a member of Kappa Delta Sorority. Dr. Herald Alfred Rehder, who is the assistant curator of the Smithsonian Museum, is a graduate of Bowdoin College and did postgraduate work at both Harvard and George Washington University. He is a member of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox Return Home

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Francis Cox, who were married September 3, are making their home at 306 Upshur street after a wedding trip to New York.

The bride, the former Miss Rosaria Rita Pirrone, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Pirrone, of Washington, and Mr. Cox is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Cox, of this city. Their wedding took place at St. Stephen's Catholic Church, the Rev. J. I. Bifield officiating.

The bride wore a white satin gown with a tulle veil, held in place by a Dutch cap. She carried a white prayer book with streamers of lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor was her sister, Miss Rosalie Pirrone, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Hester Watts and the Misses Margaret Cox, Rosalie Ginnfre, and Sadie Pirrone.

Justin Cox was best man, and the ushers were Austin Pirrone, Ignatius Pirrone, Alton Cox and Antonio Dispenza. A reception at Jappa Hall followed the ceremony.

Rep. Steagall Here

Lieut. Col. Vicenso Coppola, Air and Military Attache of the Italian Embassy, will return to Washington today from New York, where he has been at the Ritz-Carlton.

Lieut. C. Z. Byrd, U. S. A., of Fort Thomas, Ky., is at the Martinique.

Ghiraldos Return To Capital After New Jersey Stay

The Counselor of the Argentine Embassy and Senora de Ghiraldo have returned to Washington for the winter after a stay in Ocean City, N. J.

Senor and Senora de Ghiraldo went to the New Jersey resort directly on landing in this country after a trip to Paris, where they represented the Argentine government in welcoming the King and Queen of England on their trip there last summer.

Margaret L. Smith To Wed October 10

Miss Margaret Louise Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Murray Smith, of 48 Spencer street, Hyattsville, Md., has selected the evening of October 10 for her marriage to Frederick W. White, of Washington. The ceremony will take place in the First Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Hyattsville, at 8 o'clock.

Miss Naomi Smith, of Hyattsville, will be maid of honor for her sister, and bridesmaids will be Miss Kannie Ray and Miss Bertie Caruthers, of Riverdale, Md., Mrs. Charles Morgan and Mrs. T. Campbell Smith, of Washington. The bride-elect entertained her attendants at luncheon at the Madrillon in Washington.

Both Miss Smith and Mr. White are 1934 graduates of the University of Maryland. The former is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority and the latter of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity.

Senorita de los Rios Returns From Europe

Senorita Laura de los Rios, daughter of the Spanish Ambassador, who spent the summer in Europe, is now at the family summer home near Annapolis with her mother. They will remain until Saturday, when they will close the house for the season and return to Washington.

The Ambassador, who went to New York last Monday to meet his daughter and accompany her to Annapolis, returned to Washington yesterday.

Miss Helen May Manning Is Bride of John K. Hedler

Daughter of the Late George Manning, Press Association Head, Has Sister as Maid of Honor and Only Attendant at Nuptials in Keller Memorial Lutheran Church.

The Keller Memorial Lutheran Church last evening was the scene of the marriage of Miss Helen May Manning, daughter of Mrs. George H. Manning and the late Mr. Manning, and John K. Hedler, son of John H. Hedler and the late Mrs. Hedler. The Rev. J. Harold Mumper officiated at the 7:45 o'clock ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, George H. Manning, jr., was gowned in white marquisette, fashioned with a full skirt ending in a long train caught to the hair by a coronet of orange blossoms. Full length 20-button white kid gloves completed the costume. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Alice P. Manning, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a floor-length frock of yellow net, which featured narrow bands of yellow satin ribbon extending from the shoulder line to the hip line, from which the skirt flared voluminously. From a braided coronet fell a shoulder-length veil of matching shade and she carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses.

Martin A. Allwine was best man and the ushers were Frank H. Holt, Milton L. Henry, John H. Kroll and Henry A. Kroll, the latter two cousins of the bridegroom.

Immediately after the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's mother. Mrs. Manning was gowned in black marquisette and lace, with a large black velvet picture hat. An orchid corsage completed her costume.

When the couple left for their wedding journey to Cape Cod, the bride wore a royal blue suit with navy accessories. Upon their return they will be at home at the new house which they planned and which has just been completed for them at 4739 Yuma street.

The bride's father, the late George H. Manning, was editor and general manager of the General Press Association, and Washington correspondent of Editor and Publisher. Her brother is Washington correspondent for a number of out-of-town papers and a member of the Press Gallery. Immediately upon her graduation from Central High School, the bride entered her father's newspaper office, with which she has since been connected.

Mr. Hedler is a graduate of Eastern High School, from which he won a scholarship to Benjamin Franklin University. He is now connected with the firm of Spicer & Reese.

'Highways to Peace' P.-T.A. Yearbook Theme

Congress Meeting Here Holds Subject Is Vital to Both Parents and Teachers; Dr. W. M. Robinson, of Michigan, Is to Author Pamphlet on Problems of Rural Youth.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

"Highways to Peace" will be the title of the yearbook on parent education issued by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in 1939, it was decided yesterday by the board of managers, in annual session at the Mayflower Hotel.

The selection of peace as the current theme for the publication issued yearly by the congress was made as a result of the board's conclusion that the development of attitudes promoting international friendship and understanding was a vital problem for both parents and teachers.

Many contributors, specialists in both welfare and education, will be represented in the book, which is to be issued next spring, prepared by an editorial committee whose members have not yet been named.

The congress also will issue next season a pamphlet dealing with the problems of rural youth, of which Dr. William McKinley Robinson, of Western State Teachers College, Kalamazoo, Mich., will be the author. Dr. Robinson is chairman of the national committee on rural service.

Decision to issue such a pamphlet followed a discussion of the strategic position of the parent-teacher associations in small towns and rural areas, where they are often the only community organization and serve as a clearing house for all constructive projects in the locality.

There was also discussion of the whole problem of boy-girl relationship and education of young people for parenthood and family life. This is one of the phases of parent-teacher study which is to be emphasized by the national congress during the coming year.

The board members are devoting themselves, under the leadership of the national president, Mrs. J. K. Pettingill, to a serious consideration of all of the problems which are presented to the organization in its work of promoting co-operation between the parent and teacher and the schoolroom and the home.

It is Mrs. Pettingill's purpose to develop leadership throughout the official family of the national congress so it may be passed down to the local units and increase their service and effectiveness. The State presidents and committee chairmen who are here this week will carry back to their States a definite program plan which will be adapted to their needs.

Three vacancies on national committee were filled yesterday. Mrs. Andrew J. Ayer, New Hampshire State president, was appointed a member of the nominating committee and Mrs. Frank E. Dorsey, of Kansas City, president of the Missouri congress, and Mrs. Chris. Hirning, of Mitchell, S. Dak., national vice president, were named as members of the budget committee.

Soroptimists Meet Saturday

Mrs. Agnes Newman, president of the Soroptimist Club, will entertain the members Saturday night at a supper party at her home, 4315 Argyle Terrace. She will welcome them at her Washington residence instead of at her country home where she had originally planned to entertain them, she announced at the weekly luncheon of the club yesterday at the Willard.

The civics committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Edna Hoffman, assisted by Mrs. Edna Knight Gasch, is collecting books for a library to be installed in the Florence Crittenden Home before the first of the year.

THE WASHINGTON WELLESLEY CLUB will entertain at a tea Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Edar Fleming, 7210 Fairfax road, Edgemoor, Md., in honor of four local girls who will enter the college as freshmen next Tuesday.

Underwood & Underwood.
BRERETON STURTEVANT.

Jane Denton, daughter of Col. and Mrs. William Denton, and Mary Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Gray.

Miss Sturtevant is winner of a national scholarship based on the college board examinations and was an honor student at Holton Arms School during her whole 12-year course there. She was a scholarship girl at Holton during last few years, and was graduated magna cum laude . . . one of the few in the school's history to receive this honor. She served two years on the board of the "Scribe," the school yearbook, and, in her senior year, was its business manager. She was also especially interested in the military drill, served as a junior tutor and assisted in correction of the first year college algebra papers. Chemistry will be her major in Wellesley.

Miss Gray is a graduate of Madeira School and plans to take a pre-medical course at Wellesley. Miss Denton was a Western High School and Miss Cole a Roosevelt High School graduate.

Miss Fleming, at whose home the party will be, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Fleming, and was graduated from Wellesley last June. She will be assisted by the club president, Mrs. Walter D. Brookings, Mrs. Donald F. Roberts, Miss Cary Milholland, Mrs. Harry B. Caton, past president; Mrs. James Newell Blair, Miss Barbara Patterson, Mrs. Joseph D. White, Mrs. George D. Brabson, Miss Alice Richardson and Mrs. Beveridge Mair.

MARY HORNADAY, past president of the Women's National Press Club, leaves September 26 for Indiana, to spend a month's vacation, helping her uncle, Raymond E. Willis, in his campaign for the United States Senate.

Mr. Willis, editor of the Steuben Republican at Angola, Ind., defeated former Senator James E. Watson for the Republican nomination and is now opposing Senator Fred Van Nuys, Democratic incumbent, for election.

THE ZONTA CLUB, at its luncheon meeting at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday, discussed a memorial to the late Malinda Havey, one of its past presidents, who was distinguished for her Red Cross service during the World War. Decision has not yet been made as to the form it will take.

Miss Emma T. Hahm, the club president, will go as delegate and Mrs. Elizabeth Cox, vice president, as alternate to the regional conference in Hagerstown October 8 and 9.

City Clubwomen Arrange Fete

Washington's official street cleaners and members of the Women's City Club will work side by side tomorrow evening scrubbing the alley behind the clubhouse, 726 Lafayette place, for the club's second annual alley fete, "A Night in Paris." Club members are all hoping for clear skies and a large crowd at their first fall benefit party, which starts at 8 p. m.

Miss Clara Saunders and Mrs. Anna Goodhart Howland, who are among the city's foremost women artists, have charge of the decorations, assisted by Miss Nell Price, Miss Jessie Lane, Miss Marie Saunders and Miss Carol Cox, chairman of the new Junior Guild of the club.

Not until the scrubbing is completed and the alley roped off for the fete at 6:30 tomorrow night, will the posters, patchwork quilts, clotheslines and other properties be put in place to give a real French setting.

The "Thieves Market," with a rare collection of wares, is planned as a feature of the "street," and, within the club garden will be the "Cafe du Jardin" in charge of Miss Cox. Assisting as waitresses will be the Misses Catherine Eckart, Martha Benton, Marguerite Detterer and Mrs. Annette Clayton, of the guild.

The juniors have their opening meeting tonight at the clubhouse, to discuss final plans for the fete and also the program for their winter season. Miss Marjorie Webster, club president, will greet new members; Miss Price will talk on the fete; Mrs. Edmond Kochersperger will tell of plans for the French group, and Mrs. Nadine Lane Gallagher will present program plans for the next three months. The drama chairman, Mrs. Sylvia Zeskind, will outline plans for her department and entertain with readings.

Bedtime Stories

By Thornton W. Burgess

The Tunnel.

Under water, underground,
Secrets are but seldom found.
Jerry Muskrat.

Jerry Muskrat and Mrs. Jerry had completed the foundation for their new house. It was what we might call made land. It was an island, a small island, just big enough for the house they would build. They had made that island by digging around three clumps of cattails after cutting off the plants just below or level with the water and then piling on and around the roots the material they dug up in digging a wide and deep channel around those clumps. Now it was above water, and on it they had piled some rushes and grass.

"What do you think, my dear?" asked Jerry as he surveyed what they had done.

"I think it is time," replied Mrs. Jerry.

"I think so, too," agreed Jerry and led the way to deep water.

They dived, and they were down for a long time. At least, it was a long time to be under water with no fresh air to breathe. When they came up to the surface both looked satisfied.

"The water is deep enough here so that it will never freeze to the bottom. I think we may as well begin work at once," said Mrs. Jerry.

Jerry nodded in agreement. "Then we can finish the house when we have finished this job," said he.

Are you wondering what Mrs. Jerry meant when she had said that she thought it was time? She meant that it was time to stop building on that island, although the house itself was little more than begun. She meant that the time had come to do another important job, and that job was to dig a tunnel that would lead to an entrance to the house, an entrance that could be reached only by diving and swimimng. It must be an approach that could be used only by a diver and swimmer who could hold his breath for some time.

Ever and ever and ever so long ago the Muskrats learned that for them a house with an entrance above water is little better than no home at all. It is just an open invitation to enemies to enter. A Muskrat house has no outside door, no window. No way of getting in and out is to be seen. It took the first members of the family a long time to find a way to have an entrance that only they or someone who could swim and dive, like themselves, could find and use. Perhaps they finally got the idea from the Beavers, or it may be that the Beavers got it from them. Probably both worked it out for themselves. Anyway, Jerry Muskrat and Paddy the Beaver build houses very similar in design, although using different materials, and they have the same plan for an entrance. Both use a tunnel with one end opening from the floor of the house and the other end out in deep water.

"I'll start the work," said Mrs. Jerry and at once dived. Jerry waited and rested and wondered about the hint that Longlegs the Heron had dropped. He had said that once there had been many Muskrats in that slough, and then all had disappeared, and had warned Jerry and Mrs. Jerry not to let any of the two-legged folks called men see them. Longlegs had plainly hinted that they had had something to do with the disappearance of the Muskrats who once had lived there.

Bubbles came up to the surface at a certain place. Jerry knew that they came from Mrs. Jerry, right below. Presently she popped her head out, and at once Jerry dived. He found where she had been digging and, without waste of time, began to dig there. So the tunnel was begun out on the bottom of the pond. Taking turns, Jerry and Mrs. Jerry dug and dug. It was hard work, for all the time they were digging they could not draw a breath of fresh air. Try holding your breath and see how much work you can do.

So they worked day after day or night after night. At last they reached the island they had made and on which they had begun their house. They tunneled into this just a little way and then began to dig upward. Jerry was digging when finally fresh air reached him. He dug a little faster, for he no longer had to go back through that tunnel and up to the surface to breathe. A few minutes later he was in the middle of that little pile of rushes and grass that was the beginning of his house. The tunnel was practically finished. It was a good tunnel. Now for a good house.

Federal Order Keeps Dog Guide Home

George E. Ramey, blind man who operates a stand in the lobby of the Alexandria postoffice, shown with his seeing-eye dog, Mack, which owing to a Federal regulation keeping animals from public buildings, must stay at home.

Blind Man Parted From Dog In Alexandria Postoffice

Blind George E. Ramey tended his candy and cigarette stand in the Alexandria, Va., postoffice without the company of his seeing-eye dog, Mack. The dog was at home at 1109 Duke street because of a Federal regulation prohibiting animals from Government buildings.

Ten days ago popular Ramey returned from New Jersey, where he had been trained with Mack, a German shepherd, for a month. Carrying out instructions to keep the dog constantly with him, he kept Mack at his stand.

But Postmaster J. Owen Lynch, who had helped secure the stand for Ramey, knew of the regulation. Not able to grant exceptions to the regulation, Lynch made a personal visit to the Postoffice Department in Washington to urge that the dog be allowed to remain with his master.

Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Smith W. Purdum, in charge of all postoffices, replied that he could not go against the consistent policy of the department and set a bad precedent by allowing Mack to stay with his master.

So yesterday for the second day Ramsey left his dog at home and depended upon members of his family to bring the dog to him. Ramsey, who is 27, has been blind for nine years. The day after he saw Hoover inaugurated he felt a pain in his eyes. He bathed them with cold water. The next day he was stone blind when he awoke. He has little chance of recovery.

Ramey wrote a personal appeal to the Postmaster General, but Farley was out of town yesterday and the letter has not been answered.

Turkenton Dies; Was Navy Supply Chief

Funeral services for Capt. William James Turkenton, World War head of the naval supply division who died Tuesday, will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow in Holy Trinity Catholic Church. Burial will be private.

Pallbearers will be Commander Chandler Smith, Maj. R. Ross Beebe, Maj. Edwin A. King, Carl F. Ernst, Rodney McCathran, S. J. McCathran, W. Kenneth Lyons and Max Winters.

As civilian head of the supply division, Capt. Turenton was closely associated with former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, now Ambassador to Mexico. He also served as chairman of the general supply committee of the Navy. He held the rank of captain in the Army Engineer Reserve Corps.

Capt. Turkenton had lived all his life at 1513 Thirty-third street northwest, and he died in the room where he was born. He was graduated from Western High School and received the bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from George Washington University. He was president of the George Washington Chapter of Theta Chi fraternity for two terms, and was captain of the track team.

He was a member of the Columbia Country Club, the University Club and the Pyramid Society.

Rites to Be Held Today for Moses Goldberg

Funeral services for Moses Goldberg, 48, who died Tuesday, will be held at 1 p. m. today at his home, 1321 Randolph street northwest. Burial will be in Ohev Sholom Cemetery.

Mr. Goldberg for the past six years had operated a second hand store at 919 D street northwest.

He leaves his wife, Rose Goldberg; a son, Stanley Goldberg; his father, Simon Goldberg; two sisters, Mrs. Samuel M. Flax, and Mrs. William R. Fischer, and four brothers, Max S. and Norman Goldberg, of Washington; Jacob Goldberg, Philadelphia, and Leo Goldberg, of Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. Krock, Wife Of Newsman, Dies

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Mrs. Marguerite Polleys Krock, 49, wife of Arthur Krock, chief Washington correspondent for the New York Times, died today in her Park Avenue apartment. She had been ill more than a year.

Mrs. Krock was born in Madison, Wis., the daughter of Thomas A. Polleys, secretary and tax commissioner of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad. She and Krock were married in St. Paul, Minn., in 1911.

Funeral services will be tomorrow morning at Campbell's church. The body will be cremated at Ferncliff, N. Y.

With Walter Haight

Subbing for Povich

It was a dull afternoon in the sports department. Arch McDonald, Goldie Ahearn and I were sitting over in the corner matching odd-man for chins. Without warning, Shirley Povich yelled, "They are coming out!"

Remembering his show parlay, Arch asked, "At what track?"

"I'm not kidding, you big Wheatie cruncher," replied Povich, "I'm serious. They are coming out!"

"Oh, you're talking about debutantes," came back Arch.

HAIGHT.

"No, I'm talking about my tonsils," shouted Povich.

Arch, game leg and all, hopped over three desks, grabbed a phone and tried to sign a sponsor for a scalpel-by-scalpel broadcast.

(Don't scowl at your wife, friend. This stuff I'm writing will thin out tar, let alone coffee.)

Get In and Swing!

"Haight," said the boss, "I want you to get right in there and swing. You're batting for a great guy. Now don't be a softie. I want you to have a lot on the Baugh—I mean ball. You've been eating your Wheaties regularly and there's no reason why you can't give us something big. Get some of the old Haight humor in it. Boy, I'm still laughing at that one you pulled last week when Sammy Baugh was sitting in front of the typewriter and couldn't think of anything to write and you yelled across the room, 'Hey, Sammy, why don't you just write I PASS and take the night off?' Get some punch in it. Povich—hospital—operation—say, you can't sit there and tell me that for once a setup like that doesn't remind you of a Haight story!"

My friends, at this point, I suggest that you hold your hats—here we go again!

Some Trick Play

Last Sunday, the Redskins pulled their game with the Philadelphia Eagles out of the fire by some quick shifting that made a tackle eligible for a forward pass. The Eagles were caught like so many flatfoot floogies and a touchdown resulted.

But let's go back to October, 1914. The Kaiser was trying to make 60 miles to Paris in one down. And at Fifteenth and H streets northeast (Old Union League Park) Business and Central Highs were locked in a game of football.

It was the last quarter. Central had a six-point lead against us. We had the ball in the center of the field with the Business rooters chanting "We want a touchdown!"

Business had one more trick in the bag and Coach Paul (Doc) White signaled Harry Harris, our quarterback, to use it.

Getting the ball, Harris ran straight for the sideline, away from the Business bench. When he arrived at the proper position near the side of the field, he slowed down and allowed himself to be tackled. But on the play, our left end, Pedlow, was knocked to the ground and lay there, moaning and holding his leg. It looked like the hospital for him. (There's that hook-up for you, boss.)

Remained on Field

Time was taken out and Pedlow, wrapped in a blanket, was carried by substitutes over near the Business bench. But, unknown to Central, he was placed just inside the line on the playing field and on side. Wrapped in the blanket, Pedlow lay still. Our coach sent in Buck Wise, apparently as a substitute for Pedlow.

However, Wise did not report to the referee. Instead he lined up with our players. Now the ball had been so placed that our left tackle was right against the line. Wise, the "camouflage" substitute left end, was in a position on the outside of the line and, thus, not on the playing field.

This left us with 11 men, counting Pedlow in the blanket, on the field. When the ball was snapped, Wise stood out of bounds. The ball went back to Harris. Pedlow bounded out of the blanket and raced down the field. Harris tossed him a pass and Pedlow simply jogged to a touchdown. The extra point was good and it was Business' game.

But the next day, the Board of Education, or somebody ruled out the score as unsportsmanlike, or something.

Bob Klinger Lost To Bucs; Has Sore Arm

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—The league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates suffered a severe blow today when Bob Klinger, star rookie pitcher, was lost to the club indefinitely with a sore arm.

Klinger, due to pitch the opener against the Giants, whom he had beaten four times this year, warmed up for about ten minutes, but could barely lift his arm, and Cy Blanton was given the assignment.

Klinger was out for about three weeks in midseason with the same arm ailment. He has won ten games and lost five this season.

Mrs. Walper Victor Over Mrs. Kilhkin

Mrs. Meckley Defeats Mrs. Simcoe, 4 and 2; Rain Soaks Course And Mars Play in Tourney at Manor.

Play in The Washington Post Cup golf tournament at Manor Country Club reached the quarter-final rounds yesterday in a deluge that left pools on the greens and made marshes of the fairways. High spot of the eight first flight matches was the victory turned in by Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., of Chevy Chase, who took advantage of a six stroke spot given by Mrs. George Hussey of Army-Navy to win by a close, 1-up margin.

Today Mrs. Blair runs into another favorite, Mrs. Leo Walper, wife of the driving range professional, and with the seven-stroke spot she will receive should make it a close contest.

Of the eight quarter-finalists who were able to overlook the continuous rain yesterday, Mrs. Walper scored the most one-sided triumph. Her 7 and 6 defeat of Mrs. L. E. Kilhkin, of Indian Spring, constituted a fine bit of golf, rain and condition of the course considered. She gave up 11 strokes to her opponent.

Mrs. Meckley Wins

Mrs. Betty Meckley, medalist, continued her fast brand of golf in turning back Mrs. H. L. Simcoe, 4 and 2. Mrs. Meckley struggled under the 14 strokes she allowed as well as the fact that Mrs. Simcoe was playing over her home course.

Making the turn a single hole in the lead, and with the prospect of giving up 7 strokes on the final nine, Mrs. Meckley turned on the heat to close out the match on the sixteenth, 4 and 2. Her out-going score was 41, compared to Mrs. Simcoe's 49. Mrs. Meckley took the tenth and twelfth holes with pars, but was only able to halve the par 3 eleventh when she blew a second shot from high grass.

One long putt dropped for Mrs. Simcoe and though Mrs. Meckley rimmed the cup and perched on the edge several times, she failed to lay any of the long ones in.

Mrs. Meckley is expected to have her hands full today when she must play Mrs. Earl Amick, the only remaining entry from Columbia. Mrs. Amick was a finalist in the tourney in 1937, and will be abetted by a 9-stroke handicap allowance. Yesterday Mrs. Amick defeated the steadiest player in the tournament, Mrs. H. A. Knox, of Congressional, 5 and 3.

Mother, Daughter Lose

A defeat of the Simons family, mother and daughter, was completed by Mrs. Arnold McNitt of Congressional yesterday. Mrs. McNitt advanced to the quarters with a 6 and 4 victory over Mrs. Howard Simons of the home club, and previously won over Miss Barbara Simons in a first round match. It was Mrs. Simons who won the net score qualifying medal.

Two fair golfers who failed in first round matches, Mrs. Walter Stokes, of Indian Spring, and Mrs. L. G. Pray of Manor, went into the quarters of the consolation flight with ease, defeating in both cases Kenwood players. The losers were Mrs J. C. Dale and Mrs. Chester Morrill. Miss Simons, leading the lower flight draw, won from Mrs. W. M. Moses, 7 and 6.

Giants Take Double Bill From Bucs

Win Opener, 3-0, and the Nightcap, 10-3; Gain Tie for Third Place With Reds; Blanton And Brandt Hit Hard.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 14.—The Giants tossed a large monkey wrench into the already tangled National League pennant race today by whipping the pace-setting Pittsburgh Pirates in both ends of a double-header, 3 to 1 and 10 to 3, before a crowd of 28,185 at the Polo Grounds.

DANNING.

The net result of this development was to slice the Pirates' league lead to 2½ games over the Chicago Cubs, and raise the Giants to a tie for third place with the Cincinnati Reds, a game back of the Cubs.

Hal Schumacher, coming off the sore-arm list, "inker-balled" the Bucs to defeat with seven hits in the opener. His mates climbed aboard Cy Blanton for two runs in the first frame and added the third when Alex Kampouris cracked a homer against the scoreboard in left in the fourth.

Obviously pressing, the Bucs were outclassed right from the start in the nightcap. Dutch Brandt gave up a run in the first inning and then he and Bill Swift were blasted for seven more in the second as the Giants climbed back into the thick of the pennant fight. Harry Gumbert was touched for ten hits by the bucs in the afterpiece, but after he was treated to an eight-run margin he was never in trouble.

The big man at bat for the Giants throughout the afternoon was Hank Danning. He caught both ends of the twin bill, collected three singles in the opener and added a homer and a single in the afterpiece. His two hits in the nightcap drove in four runs, three of them coming when he walloped his homer with two aboard during the big Giant second inning. Johnny McCarthy also hit for the circuit in the second game.

Brownell and the Man He Beat

Charlie Yates Loses In National Amateur

Atlanta Youngster Who Won British Amateur Title Misses a 30-Inch Putt to Bow to Ed Kingsley; Bud Ward, Freddie Haas, Ray Billows, Reynolds Smith Are Other Walker Cup Members to Be Beaten.

By the United Press.

Oakmont, Pa., Sept. 14.—A 30-inch putt that any duffer could have sunk, blasted Charley Yates' hopes of adding the United States amateur golf title to his British crown and sent him to the side lines as 16 of his fairway companions marched through the muck and rain of Oakmont into the third round of the forty-second National Amateur turnament.

Yates, the wise-cracking Atlanta boy who used to watch Bobby Jones in action instead of spending his afternoons at the movies, was licked, 2 and 1, by Ed Kingsley, a Magna, Utah, copperworker, in the second round. After eliminating Ven Savage, a clubmate of Kingsley, 3-2, in the opening round of terrifying "Black Wednesday," Yates' putter failed him in the clutch and he joined 48 other golfers who will try again next year.

One down marching to the seventeenth green and needing a half to keep the match alive, Yates was past the cup in two. Kingsley was too—10 feet from the pin. Yates' approach putt curled 30 inches beyond the cup. Kingsley's stopped a few inches short of it.

Five Cuppers Lose

Yates lined up this important putt, stepped jauntily up to the ball—and missed. Kingsley holed his ball for a par four and victory. They had rounded the turn all even and Kingsley went one up with a sizzling deuce on the thirteenth.

Moving out of the tournament along with Charley were four other of his Walker Cup mates—Reynolds Smith, of Dallas; Marvin (Bud) Ward, Olympia, Wash.; Freddie Haas, New Orleans, and Ray Billows, Poughkeepsie, runner-up last year to Johnny Goodman in this tournament.

The survivors, in the order they will play tomorrow when two more quick 18-hole rounds will trim the field to four semifinalists, were:

James E. Fraser, Absecon, N. J., and Pat Abbott, Altadena, Calif.; Walter Blevins, Kansas City, and Joe Thompson, Hamilton, Ontario; Goodman and Jim French, San Francisco; Dick Chapman, Greenwich, Conn., and T. Suffern Tailer, Westbury, N. Y.; Kingsley and Wilfred Crossley, Dedham, Mass.; Gus Moreland, Peoria, Ill.; the tournament medalist, and Melvin Harbert, Clay, N. Y.; Chris Brinke, Birmingham, Mich., and Frank Strafaci, Great Neck, N. Y., and Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati, the 1936 winner, and Willie Turnesa, Briar Cliff Manor, N. Y.

CHARLIE YATES.

On the form they showed today, Goodman, of Omaha, and Fischer were favored to reach Saturday's finals but out on that punishing course where par is tougher to break than a chorus girl's heart, anything can happen.

Goodman walloped Sid Richardson, of Prairie View, Ill., 4 and 3, in the first round and then polished off Harry Givan, of Seattle, a former

D. C. Player Outdriven by Dallas Star

Harbert Hits Ball 50 Yards Farther Than Manor Club Youth; Erratic Putter Also Hindered Bobby.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Oakmont Country Club, Oakmont, Pa., Sept. 14.—Melvin "Chick" Harbert, former Michigan Open champion, now of Clay, N. Y., knocked Bobby Brownell, the Manor Club star from Washington, out of the National Amateur Championship in a second-round match, 4 and 3, here this afternoon over the Oakmont course, after Brownell had featured the first round with a sensational triumph over Walker Cupper Reynolds Smith, 2 and 1.

Brownell, about to enter his sophomore year at Duke University, had turned in the biggest upset of the 32 initial round encounters after being 2-down and seven to play to Smith, the Dallas, Tex., stroker. He won four of the next seven holes and ended the match with a great birdie on the seventeenth.

Brownell started and ended the Smith match with birdies. He dropped an 8-footer on the first hole to halve Smith. They halved the second in pars, but Bobby went 1-up on the third as Smith was short in two and chipped poorly.

In two traps, and taking a 7, Bob lost his head on the fourth and went 1-down on the fifth, where he three-putted from 35 feet and Smith knocked in an 8-foot birdie putt.

A perfect trap shot by the Texan gave him a 2-up lead on the sixth, the Washington youngster won a hole back with a great second shot on the seventh, as Smith three-putted this time.

Played in a Downpour

They halved through the tenth hole, but on eleven Bobby's high approach shot barely caught a trap and he went two down, missing a 4-footer to halve. Trapped in two, Smith lost the next and the match was even in the short thirteenth as Brownell parred the hole.

They halved fourteen and fifteen, playing in a downpour, and then Brownell fired a 3-3 finish, a par and a birdie for the match. Smith three-putted the sixteenth and seventeenth and on the next hole Brownell threw an approach 3 feet from the cup, knocked it in, and was the hero of the morning round.

Brownell had an opportunity to start the Harbert match with a birdie, as he reached the par five first in two ponderous wood shots, but he three-putted and halved the hole. Bobby was trapped from the tee on the third to go one down, and then lost a chance to win it back on the fourth when they each took sixes.

Bobby Out-driven

Harbert, his hair and shirt-tail flying, was hitting the ball from 30 to 50 yards farther than the Manor youngster on virtually every hole but he was wild, and often in trouble.

A wide tee shot cost him the seventh hole and again on the par-three eighth he knocked a brassie way to the left of the green, and went one down. He won it back with two perfect woods on the ninth for a birdie, and it looked like a possible extra-hole match.

But Brownell's steady pace hit a snag, he took three to get down from the edge of the tenth green and on the twelfth hole sliced a wood shot in a ditch and ended up with a 7. He was trapped from the tee on the five-iron shot thirteenth, went 2 over par on the fourteenth, where he was in trouble from tee to green, and lost on the fifteenth, with a halve in bogeys.

Harbert won the Michigan Open last year with a record score in an open tournament over a 6,600-yard course, 268. He is the longest hitter in this event, by several yards, and earned the moniker of "War Admiral" from his prancing, fancy efforts on the tee as he waits impatiently to hit each shot.

Brownell had no alibis to make after the match was over. "I guess I'll have to practice putting," he said. "And I was tired this afternoon. Several times during the afternoon I was wishing the match was over. That's the first time I ever did that.

"But Harbert played a great game. You can't take that away from him. Next year maybe I'll try again."

(Picture on Page 23.)

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Sports Writer.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, hard luck kid of the 1938 tennis season, got a big smile at last from Dame Fortune today, and he turned in a thundering upset victory over Adrian Quist of Australia in the fourth round of the National Singles championships.

GRANT.

Plagued by illness that caused poor showings in four successive tournaments this summer, the little Georgia "giant killer" was so certain of being beaten by Quist, second seeded foreign star, that he had his trunk packed, ready to return to Atlanta tonight.

Instead, this Southern Grant went out on the No. 3 court of the West Side Club's stadium and trounced the Australian Davis Cupper, 6—1, 4—6, 6—1, 7—5. "Bitsy," smallest performer in big-time tennis, was more surprised at his victory than the gallery of 7,000.

As he walked off the court, he said, "Kick me, somebody. I must be dreaming."

Today's victory elevated "Bitsy" to the quarter-finals, along with Defending Champion Donald Budge, Sidney B. Wood, of New York, and Harry Hopman, of Australia. These four in the upper bracket advanced after a day's postponement because of rain and completed the round of eight in the men's division.

Meanwhile the women's round of eight also was completed as four lower-bracket lasses moved into the quarter-finals: Alice Marble, of Los Angeles; Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, of Poland; Kay Stammers, of England, and Mrs. Sarah P. Fabyan, of Cambridge, Mass.

The girls provided no surpise such as Grant's upset or Harry Hopman's unexpected triumph over Donald McNeill, of Oklahoma City, America's ninth ranking player. Hopman, 32 years old and now playing captain of the Australian Davis Cup team, beat McNeill 6—4, 6—3, 7—5. The unseeded Aussie had been a distinct underdog before the match.

Red-headed Budge won with ease over Charley Hare, of England, 6—3, 6—4, 6—0. Budge now is but three victories away from his second successive American championship. Sidney Wood defeated Franjo Kukuljevic, of Yugoslavia, 6—, 6—4, 6—3. Husky, black-haired Kukuljevic is No. 6 among the visitors.

Alice Marble, streamlined blonde from Los Angeles, who is America's chief hope in the women's division—now that Helen Jacobs has been eliminated—turned back Dorothy Stevenson of Australia, 6—1, 6—4. "Ya-Ya" Jedrzejowska, topped seeded foreign gal, won over Dorothy Workman, of Rosemead, Calif.; pretty Katharine Stammers, of England, No. 3 among the visitors, eliminated Barbara Winslow, of Hollywood, Calif., sixth American, and Mrs. Sarah P. Fabyan, of Cambridge, Mass., fourth American, beat Thelma Coyne, of Australia, fifth visitor.

'13' Haunts Gus Welch; Maybe It's Lucky

He was graduated from Carlisle in 1913.

This is American's thirteenth football season.

Thirteen letter men were returning to school this year, but one of the best players became ineligible because his scholastic average was 13 points too low.

Oh, yes; Welch began practice Tuesday—September 13.

Nowaskey Shifted to Wing Post

By Jack Munhall.

First indication that George Washington expects Ken Batson and Fred Sartore, sophomore backfield threats, to show more than mere promise was given yesterday when Coach Bill Reinhart shifted Bob Nowaskey, versatile back of 1937, to an end position.

The transfer, to bolster the Colonials' end department depleted by the graduation of Lloyd Berry, Tippy Holt and Pete Yurwitz, leaves two backfield spots definitely open. Only Vic Sampson, midget halfback, and Frank Merka, who can play halfback or quarterback, are reasonably certain to be in George Washington's starting backfield. Thus Batson and Sartore will have every chance to make good.

Reinhart's decision to shift Nowaskey to a flank was not a shot in the dark, for it simply returns Nowaskey to the position he filled as a freshman. A speedy runner, a fine pass-snatcher and a ball-carrier of experience, Nowaskey should make an ideal end, according to Reinhart, who considers him one of the best all-around players on the squad.

Last year Nowaskey was used at fullback and then at halfback and late in the season impressed Reinhart by his ability to smash a line.

The arrival of Guy Renzaglia yesterday reduced the Colonials' absentees to two, Faris and Merka. There now are 34 players working out twice daily on the Polo Field. Merka arrives tonight and Faris reports Monday.

Renzaglia, a senior, though he is only 20 years old, showed up with plenty of excess avoirdupois and will have to shed 10 pounds before he reaches his best playing weight of 186.

Bob Brand, a local boy, apparently has clinched himself a spot in Maryland's starting backfield against Richmond, September 24, it was announced yesterday. Brand, a product of Eastern High, has been filling in for Frank Skotnicki, who cut his lip several days ago, and doing such a fine job that he may retain the position even if Skotnicki recovers in time for the opening game.

Rip Hewitt, who has been shifted to utility back, also has been impressive in recent scrimmages and Coach Frank Dobson is satisfied that the speedy ball toter is just the man for the job.

Mellendeck did most of the booting last season, but with the possibility that two backfields will alternate this year, Hagerty is searching diligently for another kicker of the Mellendeck caliber.

The two lads who showed the most ability to spiral the pigskin for distance yesterday were Checas and Meglen, brother of Joe Meglen, G. U. captain and fullback in 1935.

Catholic University held its first scrimmage yesterday and Coach (Dutch) Bergman, pleased to report no serious injuries, scheduled a stiffer session Saturday. In the interim the boys will engage in calisthenics to limber up possibly sore muscles and polish up plays and detail work which Bergman intends to use Saturday. Punting, passing and formation drills also will be a daily part of practice.

World Series Meeting Called

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—Kensaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, today called a meeting of club representatives and league officials for Friday morning at the Roosevelt Hotel, New York City, to make World Series arrangements.

The commissioner said representatives of five teams have been invited to appear. The teams named were the New York Yankees, New York Giants, Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds.

President Ford Frick of the National League and President William Harridge of the American Circuit also will be present. The meeting is scheduled for 9:30 a. m. (Eastern standard time).

Macks Trim Browns, 4-3

Newsom Loses 13th Tilt Of Year; Moses Gets Homer; 2d Game Is Ended by Darkness.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Sept. 14.—Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics slipped into seventh place in the American League today, handing big Buck Newsom, of the Browns, his thirteenth defeat of the season, 4 to 3.

The game, first of a double-header, was strictly a cellar contest, as it sent the Browns to the bottom by one percentage point. Darkness cut the second contest off in the second inning with no scoring.

In the first game the Mackmen completed four double-plays and Wally Moses, Athletics' rightfielder, hit a homer in the ninth to break a 3-to-3 tie.

Rain Halts Yanks And Indians Tilt

Cleveland, Sept. 14 (AP).—The New York Yankees' final meeting with the Indians this season was rained out after two innings of scoreless play today.

Lefty Gomez had retired the six Indians to face him, and Al Milnar had allowed only one hit—a double by Joe DiMaggio in the second inning—when rain, which had delayed the start of the game for half an hour, forced the umpires to call a halt.

Since the two teams do not meet again this year, the game was canceled.

Stars Beat Shamrocks

By the United Press.

Boston, Sept. 14.—The Eastern College All Stars defeated the Boston Shamrocks 7 to 6 in a charity game tonight before 15,000 at Fenway Park.

Rightend Jack Daly, of Manhatten, scored the All-Stars touchdown midway in the second period after recovering a Shamrock fumble and running 18 yards for the score. Vic Fusia, a former teammate, kicked the winning point.

The Shamrocks' touchdown came after a 60-yard march in the first period and a fourth down pass from Indiana's Bill Anderson to Quarterback Joseph Zapustus, who received it on the 20 to score standing up. Anderson's try for a point was blocked.

Both sides resorted to frequent passing with little success in the last two periods.

G. W. Grid Ticket Sale Opens Today

George Washington University's annual sale of season football tickets will open today at the cashier's office, Corcoran Hall, 725 Twenty-first street northwest. The sale will continue for one week. Mail reservations must be taken up during this period.

Tickets are priced as follows: Grandstand and lower boxes, $1.65 per game, $9.90 for the season; upper boxes, $2.20 per game, $13.20 for the season. Fans can assure themselves the same seats for each game by securing season tickets.

George Washington's home schedule includes Furman, Butler, Davis and Elkins, Ole Miss, Kansas and West Virginia.

Fred Perry and Wife Visit U. S. Attorney

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Fred Perry, the British professional tennis player, and his actress wife, Helen Vinson, had an unexplained two-hour visit today with John F. Dailey, jr., chief assistant United States attorney.

Also in the conference were Gregory F. Noonan, chief of the criminal division of the United States Attorney's office; Chief Postal Inspector James J. Doran and a man who identified himself to reporters as Miss Vinson's father.

"All I will say is that it was about a matter in which the Government is interested at this time," Dailey said, refusing to answer questions as to whether the couple had received any threatening letters.

Mason and Scott Win In Best-Ball Event

Rain limited the field of the Maryland State Best-Ball Handicap tournament yesterday at Indian Spring to five pair of amateurs, though the winners turned in a below par score. Thomas Mason, of Rodgers Forge, and Reid Scott, of Hillendale, combined to card a 70, two strokes better than the nearest competitors.

A Beaver Dam duo, R. K. Thompson and D. E. Mattison, turned in the second best total, 72. Ray Fleming and E. B. Heimer were tied with Henry Hamp and Charles Eck of Hillendale with 73's, and a pair of Bonnie View Club players, L. T. Powers and H. M. Oliver, brought up the rear with 76.

Grid Battle Postponed

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14 (AP).—Threatening weather caused the postponement today of a National League pro football game between the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Philadelphia Eagles, scheduled for tonight. The game will be played Friday night.

Dodger Pros Will Start Six Rookies on Sunday

Reports that Brooklyn would throw an unusually young and inexperienced team against the Redskins in their National Professional Football League at Griffith Stadium Sunday were fully substantiated yesterday when the Dodgers released a tentative starting line-up containing the names of six rookies.

Coach Potsy Clark, disgusted with the tendency of his veterans to emulate the baseball Dodgers, has soured on the vets and will stake his hopes for an upset victory on a combination that will place five freshmen in the line.

At the tackle spots Clark will put "Bruiser" Kinard, Mississippi's '37 All-America, and Leo Disend, '37 graduate of Albright. The guards, Edward Merlin, Vanderbilt, and Ralph Sivell, Auburn, both are new in the pay-for-play game as is John Druze, Duquesne All-America, who will hold down right end.

Thus Jim Austin, right end, and Center Norman Cooper will be the only linemen with previous professional experience and each is just two years out of school.

The backfield will be flavored with more seasoning, for only William Ressig, left halfback, is a newcomer. Ace Parker, Duke All-America in 1935, will be at quarterback; Ralph Kercheval, the league's longest punter, at right halfback, and Joe Maniaci at fullback.

The backfield has been built around Parker, an overnight sensation in the Dodgers' last three games in 1937.

Meanwhile the Redskins' outlook for Sunday took a rosy turn, for both Riley Smith and Don Irwin appeared in better shape than at any time since the Chicago All-Star game. Both missed the Eagles' opener. Irwin, however, is in shape now and able to start against Brooklyn, if needed, Dr. Moran, club physician, announced yesterday.

Smith, though he is walking normally on his injured leg, will be held out for another week, at the end of which time he is expected to be able to resume his quarterback position.

Jay Turner, the George Washington boy, who made a favorable impression on Coach Ray Flaherty with his defensive play against Philadelphia will definitely be in the line-up against Brooklyn, and probably will hold that position until the recovery of Sammy Baugh.

National Football League statistics released yesterday show Max Krouse, Redskin back, is pacing the loop ground-gainers with the amazing total of 132 yards for six attempts, or an average of 22 yards per run. Whizzer White, the Pirates' costly rookie, is second to Krause with an average of 2.7 yards.

Charley Malone, Redskins end, is tied with Don Hutson for number of passes received. Each has six, or one less than Joe Carter, Eagles, the leader.

Joe Dusek Meets Garibaldi In Arena Mat Feature Tonight

Promoter Joe Turner, tonight for the third straight week, will feature fugitives from housemaid knee on his wrestling card at the Arena where Dolly Dalton and Babe Murphy are down for a co-feature hair-pulling exhibition.

In the other half of the co-feature, Joe Dusek, youngest member of "the Dusek Riot Squad" tackles Gino Garabaldi, stop-gap of the vanishing Italian wrestling clan.

The winner of the woman's fuss probably will be matched with Clara Mortensen, 135-pound female title claimant who is scheduled to appear here in the near future. Miss Dalton, whose chief claim to fame are her triumph over infantile paralysis and the fact that once she pinned Joe Themes, the box fighter, in ten minutes, will be a heavy favorite over Miss Murphy.

The girls are survivors of an elimination tournament held last week. Miss Dalton threw Billy DeWitt in impressive style while Miss Murphy had considerable trouble downing Jean Rogers.

The remainder of the card includes John Katan and Eddy Kibbons; Bibber McCoy vs. Ed Newman; Ed Cooke vs. Ed Meske, and Hank Barber vs. Red Ryan. All are 30-minute time limit matches.

Ferebee Will Play 576 Holes of Golf In Plane Marathon

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—J. Smith Ferebee, the 31-year-old broker who started the golf marathon craze by playing 144 holes August 5, decided today to play 576 holes from coast to coast in four days "to end this marathon golf business."

Ferebee, with the aid of an airline sleeper plane chartered for him by Reuben Trane, La Crosse, Wis., sportsman, plans to play 144 holes a day on four successive days over courses in eight cities. He will play 72 holes on two courses in different cities each day.

Down In Front

—By Richards Vidmer

There is no use pretending that the concrete stands and sheltered marquee at Forest Hills are being shaken loose from their foundations by the quivering excitement of the tennis fans who assemble these days to see the men's and women's national championships played out to their inevitable conclusions. There is an undeniable lack of tenseness in the air.

VIDMER.

Not that the matches fail to provoke interest, but the devotees of the courts are forced to substitute admiration for the more thrilling sensation of uncertainty. They are convinced that Don Budge will win all his matches and retain his title, just as they feel certain that Jack Bromwich, the two-fisted Australian, will move along to reach the unsatisfactory position of runner-up. Yet they find enough enjoyment in merely watching Budge play to make up for any missing thrills caused by an acute awareness of the result.

Of course there is an upset once in a while, such as the defeat of Bobby Riggs by Gil Hunt and Helen Jacobs by Margot Lumb of England. But approximately 99.99-100 per cent of the matches run true to form, leaving the crowd so unemotional at the conclusion that you can hear a ball bounce.

However, this state of affairs is not entirely inevitable. There seems to be an obvious remedy which would retain all the cultured atmosphere, enhance the admiration and inject a few thrills of speculation into the events.

It isn't an original thought with me; in fact, it has been suggested and advocated for several years, but for some unexplained reason the reigning dynasty in amateur tennis refuses to sanction or even discuss an open tournament which would bring together the professionals and the amateurs.

Overnight Outcasts

They might argue that such an open tournament would inject an undesirable element into the game. But this excuse hardly would stand up in view of the fact that most of the pros today, and certainly all of the leading performers, were accepted socially as amateurs only a few years ago. In fact, they were so acceptable that they were entertained in exclusive homes, presented to royalty and moved at ease in the best circles at Newport, Palm Beach and Hot Springs.

Just why they should be frowned upon now and hustled around to the tradesmen's entrance by the little men who wear big badges is rather difficult to understand. Especially as some of the amateurs who are ushered in the front door by beaming officials began their social careers as ball boys and by delivering laundry.

Just why Ellsworth Vines, Fred Perry, George Lott, Lester Stoefen and the others whom the dignitaries of the U. S. L. T. A. were only too glad to have as their guests in the past should be considered objectionable elements needs a little explanation. And I can't see why Don Budge shouldn't be just as pleasant a playmate next year as he is this, even if he does start taking checks for his performances in public.

Profit-Sharing Plan

The natural supposition is that the rulers of the amateurs are a little frightened to acknowledge the existence of any professional players worthy of consideration. After all they built amateur tennis into an international good thing and they can't be entirely blamed for wishing that such mercenary-minded promoters as C. C. Pyle, Bill O'Brien and Francis T. Hunter never had mixed in with their affairs. They were getting along quite splendidly without these gentlemen pointing out to the players that they could make more than their expenses out of the huge gates which roll in for top flight tennis.

However, it seems a propitious time for the amateur aristocracy of the courts to accept the fact that professional tennis could be turned to a tremendous advantage instead of being a constant threat to the game. As far as I know there is no organization of professional promoters and therefore no reason why the United States Lawn Tennis Association in all its glory should it walk right in with an open hand, and an open mind, and take over the enterprise themselves. They have the facilities, the following and the experience to increase the profits and interest not only of the professionals but they would be putting new life and excitement in the amateur ranks at the same time.

The sponsoring of an open tournment in which the amateurs and pros mingled wouldn't necessarily interfere with the National championship, the Davis Cup matches and the socially sponsored invitation affairs. In fact, I have a deep suspicion that those invitation affairs quickly would be thrown open to professionals too.

National Boxing Association Awards D. C. 1939 Meeting

Ring Body Votes Site Unanimously

[The National Boxing Association, meeting in Montreal, Canada, yesterday, unanimously voted the 1939 convention to Washington. The following article was written for The Washington Post by Charles F. Reynolds, president of the association.—Editor's note.]

By Charles F. Reynolds,
President, National Boxing Association.

Montreal, Sept. 14.—By unanimous vote, the National Boxing Association selected Washington, D. C., for its twentieth annual convention in 1939. While the District of Columbia is our baby member we appreciate the fact that Washington is the Nation's Capital and we are trying to do our part toward increasing the national and international athletic prestige of the Capital City.

Neither are we unmindful of the highly efficient manner in which boxing is being conducted in Washington. The creditable and thorough manner in which the N. B. A.'s championship ratings have been released quarterly from Washington during the past two years has reflected great credit upon the organization the world over and occasioned a rising vote of thanks and appreciation from our entire convention, followed by the unanimous election of Lieut. Col. Harvey L. Miller as first vice president. This is also the third year he has been reappointed to head the championship ratings committee.

It is significant that the final speaker before the convention today was Commissioner Claude W. Owen, of Washington, who spoke at length on the successful operation of the injured boxers' relief fund in the District. All States asked for complete details and will model after Washington in inaugurating such funds in various States.

We were glad to note the re-election, for the third year, of Maj. Ernest W. Brown to the board of governors.

The N. B. A. today concluded the most productive and enthusiastic convention in its history and all delegates feel that the 1939 convention in Washington will surpass anything that has gone before.

The convention closed with a series of international golden glove bouts featuring New York City versus Montreal. These contests were most efficiently refereed by Al Foreman, former Washington, D. C., boxer.

Driving Contest Set

Brooke Grubb's range beyond Silver Spring will stage a slugging contest Saturday night at 10 p. m., open to all amateur women golfers. Three valuable prizes will be given.

Mathias, National Amateur Champ, Turns Pro

Mathias, who, as a member of the National Guard amateur team, gained for himself a national reputation, embarks on his pro career in a six-round semiwindup bout with John Tejera, of Richmond, a former Virginia Golden Glove titleholder.

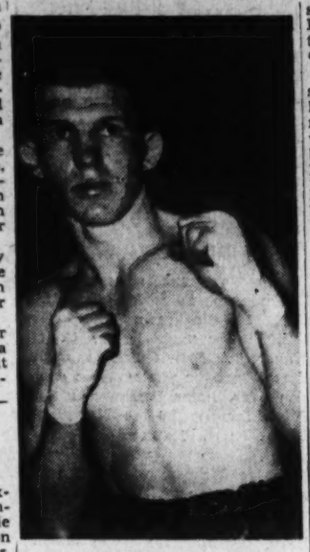
This is quite an assignment for Bob come Monday night. Tejera has professional experience. But Mathias is fit and ready. The announcement that he will turn pro comes as a distinct surprise inasmuch as he announced not long ago that he had retired from the ring.



Sharing interest with the decision of Mathias to turn pro was the announcement from Turner-Ahearn fistic headquarters that Quarles would arrive in Washington tomorrow morning to complete training for his joust with Gevinson.

Quarles, who won honors in Southern Conference competition as a member of North Carolina University's team, has been training in Richmond, but will shift his camp to Washington to drill at the Northeast Gym, 519 Morse street.

The public has been invited to the workout, which will be at 2 p. m.

Meanwhile Gevinson continued his drills at the National Guard Armory in the afternoon and his early morning jaunts around the East Potomac course.

Armstrong-Zivic Bout Sought for Newark

Newark, N. J. Sept. 14 (AP).—Boxing Promoter Bill Patterson announced tonight he had wired Eddie Mead, manager of double-champion Henry Armstrong, in Los Angeles, Calif., an offer for the fighter to meet Fritzie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, in the Newark Armory this winter. The drill shed has a capacity of 16,000.

For a welterweight title match, Patterson said he would guarantee Armstrong $15,000 and give him a percentage of the gate receipts, while for a non-title bout he would guarantee the Los Angeles Negro, $7,500.

District Pin League Opens September 25

The District League, Washington's largest bowling loop, will open its season, Sunday, September 25, at 7 o'clock, it was announced last night.

Eight teams are entered and more are expected. The team franchise has been boosted to $75. A trophy will be given to the championship team and another to the bowler with the highest average.

International League Games Rained Out

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Rain today forced the postponement of the second games of the International League's semi-final playoff series, scheduled for Newark and Syracuse tonight.

All the Keen Young Men are CRAZY OVER CREPE

CREPE RUBBER soles are standard equipment—campus "musts"—for the young men going back to school this Fall. They look heavy, these new shoes. Actually, they are lighter than if their soles were leather. And they are designed over such comfortable lasts, give so much toe freedom, that they are grand to wear, apart from their swashbuckling, man's-man style appeal. Come into John Ward's and see all of the new shoes. We've never offered, in our forty-seven years, such a world of style and value at such opportune low prices.

Dodgers Win First, Lose 2d to Reds

Fred Fitzsimmons Has Good Day on Mound; Sington, Hockett and Lombardi HitHomers In Closing Contest.

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, Sept. 14.—The Cincinnati Reds fell into a tie for third place in the National League race today by splitting a double-header with the Dodgers.

SINGTON.

Freddy Fitzsimmons' steady pitching and Ernie Koy's hitting gave the Brooklyns a 6-to-2 decision in the opener. In the nightcap, Ernie Lombardi belted his fifteenth and sixteenth homers of the year and drove in five runs, to lead the way to an 8-to-4 Cincinnati victory.

By splitting, the Reds were deadlocked for third place by the Giants, whon won both ends of a double-header from Pittsburgh.

Cookie Lavagetto hit a homer in the opener and Koy connected for two doubles, driving in three runs. Horace Hockett and Fred Singion whacked homers in the nightcap, but Bucky Walters was otherwise effective until the ninth, when Jim Weaver had to relieve him.

Match Point Nosed Out In Thriller

Special Dispatch to The Post

Timonium Fair Grounds, Md., Sept. 14.—Staging a great rush through the homestretch, G. G. Waugh, jr.'s, Sally Quick was up in time to get the photographic decision over Victor P. Noyes' Match Point, favorite in the Merryland Farm Purse, feature 6½-furlong sprint.

George Witmer, who had previously won the day's first three flat races, running his string to ten, sent Match Point to the front at the break. Turning for home Match Point bothered Sally Quick, but the latter quickly recovered and came up fast to win in the final stride. Another nose away and going fastest of all came Michael Seth's Toothpick. The winner paid $12.60.

kegal Frolic Pays $8.20

Regal Frolic, black gelded son of Prince of Wales and Rollicking Princess, racing for Mrs. Dion K. Kerr, of Washington, ped 6½ furlongs through a light rain and over a muddy track in 1:23 2-5, to capture the day's opener. The gelding came from behind to win by a head going away. He paid $8.20.

John Bosley's Senora, backed into odds-on favoritism, justified that confidence by leading throughout the Brooklandville Steeplechase, final jumping event of the meeting, which ends tomorrow.

The daily double of Regal Frolic and Senora paid $12.10.

George Witmer ran his total of victories to ten when he won the third and fourth races. Witmer made every post of the 6½ furlongs of the third a winning one with Mrs. A. A. Gray's Green Water. Then he came from behind in the 6½ furlongs of the fourth with H. O. Wilt's Lead Pleasure, to score by three lengths and net his backers $25.80.

Assured of Crown.

Witmer's trio of victories in the day's first three flat races insure him the riding crown for the Maryland State Fair and Agricultural Societiy's meeting, which ends tomorrow.

The inconsistent Justa Giro, owned by Mrs. Helen Horst, made every post of the mile and one-sixteenth of the sixth a winning one. She paid $11. Ladogan, heavily backed favorite, was miserably ridden by Webb Snyder to finish fourth.

Wheat Prices Advance With New War Fear

Wildest Trading Since Last Conflict Lifts Price 7⅛ Cents Above Recent Lows

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—In tumultuous speculative pits crowded as never before since the World War, wheat prices today shot skyward 7⅛ cents above recent five-year bottom levels.

Feverish extreme upswings of values came after reports of bloody clashes between 2,000 Sudetens and hundreds of Czech soldiers, together with Czech extension of martial law in Sudeten German areas. The reports of an outright battle were later denied officially from Prague, but not until trading in Chicago had long been over with.

At the finish, Chicago wheat futures were ⅞@1⅛ cents above yesterday's latest figures, September 68¾@68⅝; December, 67¼@67⅝; corn, ⅛@1½ up, September, 53¾@53⅞; December, 51⅝@52; oats, 58 to 1 cent advanced; rye showing 2⅛@2½ jump, and provisions unchanged to 35 cents bulge.

Hulfe Is Named Assistant Cashier

At the regular meeting of the board of the Hamilton National Bank yesterday, Kenneth O. Hulfe was elevated to the position of assistant cashier. Hulfe started his banking career in 1920 as a messenger and has since filled every clerical job in the bank.

He is a holder of the standard certificate of the American Institute of Banking, has completed the course in credits given by the institute, and for the past two years has been in charge of the personal loan department. At the same meeting, the title of W. G. Baden, assistant branch manager of the Dupont Circle branch, was changed to assistant cashier.

Commodities

Exchange

Higher; Great Britain, $4.79⅛; France, 2.69¼ cents.

Cotton Higher; December 7.88

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Despite continued unsettling European developments cotton was steadier today as offerings from the South dried up and shorts covered. December, which had eased from an early high of 7.91 to 7.80, recovered to the high and closed at 7.88. Final prices were 3 to 8 points net higher.

The market opened 5 to 9 points higher on trade and foreign buying and on a more hopeful view of conditions abroad. The list soon sold up to net gains of 9 to 11 points, but as stocks eased on more alarming news from abroad, cotton sold back to previous closing levels. Light Southern hedge selling was attributed to reports growing were more inclined to pledge cotton to the Commodity Credit Corporation owing to unfavorable prices in some parts of the belt.

Futures Price Range

	High.	Low.	Last.
October	7.87	7.75	7.83
December	7.91	7.80	7.88

May	7.84	7.73	7.81
July	7.85	7.73	7.79

Spot steady; middling, 7.95.

Cottonseed Oil

Cottonseed oil was active and firmer today on increased covering and buying by Eastern interests, promoted by the unfavorable European political news and the strength of grains and lard. There was considerable realizing at the extreme advance of 21 to 27 points, however, and partial reactions followed with final prices 8 to 19 points net higher. Sales were 394 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal: September closed 7.99; October, 8.00; December, 8.04; January, 8.05; March, 8.12.

Business Up, Stores Report All Over U. S.

Levels of September, 1937, Exceeded or Rapidly Are Being Approached Cool Weather Factor.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 14.—A striking upturn in retail business was reported today by several score of the Nation's leading department stores.

In all parts of the country big stores, with few exceptions, told the Associated Press their sales so far in September were rapidly approaching or had already broken through the levels of September, 1937, which averaged the highest of last year, allowing for seasonal factors.

The sharp and partly unexpected rise, which began around Labor Day, marked a complete reversal of the downward trend of last winter and was heralded in some quarters as the forerunner of the autumn business upturn predicted by many economists.

Increases Marked

Estimates of the increase of post-Labor Day business, compared with that in the same period in 1937, ranged up to 30 per cent or more in a few instances. A considerable number of those reporting indicated increases of 10 to 15 per cent.

Big Chicago mail order houses said they were now doing business equal to the September, 1937, peak, whereas they had expected to be not less than 10 per cent under that figure at this time.

Those stores who did not yet show an increase over 1937, again with few exceptions, reported a swiftly declining rate of losses, and encouraging prospects for coming weeks.

While a majority of the stores said they expected much better fall business, many pointed out the important part that weather plays in department store buying especially at this season.

Cool Weather Helps

In the heavily populated northeastern part of the country especially, where the customary Labor Day hot spell didn't come this year, and cool weather was fairly general, mercantile business jumped with a roar in the past fortnight, as shoppers hastened to buy warmer clothing and school outfits.

The railway express agency reported difficulty finding conveyances to handle the rush of mercantile packages suddenly thrust upon it, with women's ready-to-wear clothing seemingly prominent. Express officials said they could see no sign of abatement.

In those sections of the country where hot spells have been felt during the past week or so, sales have held off, but many stores said there are plenty of indications that cool weather will bring a rush of buying orders.

In one or two cities where special local conditions prevailed, reports were not especially encouraging for the immediate period.

The Market

By C. Norman Stabler, Special Correspondent.

Market Reflects Conflicting Rumors of Possible War as Prices Gyrate With Each New Report; Late Rally Saves the Day.

New York, Sept. 14.—Financial markets throughout the world braced themselves for the shock of war in Central Europe today and prices gyrated violently with each new report flashed from the capitals of the countries which may be involved.

Wall Street's brokerage offices were jammed with tense, tired men who said little but showed in the lines of their faces the strain which is universal.

At the height of the selling in midafternoon the floor of the Stock Exchange was near bedlam and the posts around which such active issues as Steel, Chrysler and Rubber are traded in were the center of milling crowds of brokers fighting to execute the orders of their customers.

Thanks to a partial recovery shortly before the close, net declines on the big board were not as sensational as on Tuesday, although the high priced Allied Chemical dropped 9⅛ points. Many of the more active pivotal leaders ended the session with declines of 1 to 4 points and the average loss for the list was ¾ point.

Chamberlain Flight Helps

The recovery came just before the announcement that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain will fly tomorrow to Berchtesgaden to meet Adolf Hitler in an effort to stem the tide of war. This also brought a brisk recovery in sterling after Britain's currency had sunk to a new low of $4.78⅝. It closed here at $4.81¼.

An upward trend characterized the markets in virtually all commodity futures, especially wheat. In Chicago, after an early drop of more than 2 cents, wheat futures shot up 5¼ cents. The gain was cut down by profit taking but the close was ⅞ to 1⅛ cents higher. In Winnipeg wheat soared the 5-cent allowable limit. Copper was advanced ⅛ cent and copper futures added 19 to 27 points. Gains in other commodity futures included cotton, 3 to 8 points; rubber, 8 to 16; hides, 15 to 21; tin, 20 to 25; sugar, 2 to 4; coffee, 12 to 23; cocoa, 15 to 17; and cottonseed oil, 8 to 19 points.

Wall Street went home with more of a feeling of encouragement than it had felt earlier in the day. Hope was pinned to the meeting tomorrow between Chamberlain and Hitler and local firms with foreign connection reported that foreign investors were not taking as bearish a stand as are domestic investors.

One firm reported its foreign customers bought ten times as many American shares as they sold and another said foreigners were switching out of wheat and into securities. It was also learned after the close that at least a few of the earlier reports of trouble in Czechsoslovakia were exaggerated, notably the one of a battle between Sudetens and Czechs at Habersparirk, near Falkenau.

All foreign currencies rallied with sterling on word of the Chamberlain visit. The major European rates had made new lows before this announcement, sterling at one time being its cheapest since March 30, 1935. It closed up 1¼ cents on the day, while the French Franc was plus ¾ point, at 2.70 1-16 cents after being at 2.68⅝ cents. The Belgian currency advanced 5½ points, and Swiss franc 5 points.

Pressure continued against the United States Government bond list. Among stocks the motors were the most active, General Motors and Chrysler leading the list. Motors came back to 43½ to close unchanged after being at 41¼ while Chrysler closed down ⅛. Leaders to show small gains for the day included Steel, Anaconda, Yellow Truck, United States Rubber, Standard of New Jersey, Republic Steel and Texas.

International Nickel jumped 1¾, the metals being buoyed by the advance in copper and the prospect of war orders. American Telephone was a heavy loser, giving up 4⅝. Union Pacific was down 3 and Peoples Gas 3⅛. Losses of a point or more were sustained by General Electric, Goodrich, American Can, Coast Line, Bethlehem, D. & H., Du Pont, Sears Roebuck and Great Northern preferred.

Bonds Suffer Declines

Along with other markets, listed bonds tumbled today as the reports from Europe became ever more ominous. Sharp recessions were recorded in the formal trading in Treasury issues, corporate bonds and foreign obligations. There was a modest recovery in United States Treasury bonds over the counter late in the day, when it appeared that Mr. Chamberlain would journey tomorrow to Germany for conversations with Chancellor Hitler. But this development did not affect the trading to the closing gong. Turnover was $10,850,000, with all groups more active than in recent weeks.

U. S. Government Issues Dip

United States Government bonds drifted lower by 2/32 to 22/32 point in fairly active trading. The extreme loss was not indicative, however, as the average drop was only about ¼ point. In the final hour of counter dealings, recoveries of a few thirty-seconds offset some of the earlier losses. Guaranteed bonds of the Farm and Home corporations were quiet and fractionally lower.

Money market obligations in the corporate section followed the Treasury issues downward. Fractional losses appeared in best rated utility, railroad and industrial bonds. Market pressure on such bonds was relatively mild, however, and losses of no great importance. The general uncertainty occasioned a delay, however, in announcement of large new issues.

Transit Unit Ready With Free Advice

The newly formed Federal Transportation Association announced yesterday, through its secretary, Gilmer B. Randolph, that all Government establishments might have the benefit of the combined knowledge and experience of its transportation specialists.

Free consultation service, Randolph explained, is offered to any Federal agency or official. Attention to the free service was called in a letter from the association's president, A. D. McClellan, to the head of each Government department or independent establishment. James Roosevelt, the President's secretary, and certain Congressional committees dealing with transportation or allied subjects.

Republicans Plan Dinner Saturday

More than 300 Republicans have bought tickets to the District of Columbia Republican Constitution Day dinner, to be held Saturday night at the Willard Hotel.

John Hamilton, chairman; William R. Castle, assistant to the chairman, and Franklyn Waltman, director of publicity for the party's national committee, are to be present.

The gathering, marking the start of the 1928 campaign for local Republicans, will be addressed by Frederick H. Stinchfield, of Minneapolis, former president of the American Bar Association, and George R. Farnum, of Boston, former Assistant Attorney General.

Clyde D. Garrett is chairman of the local Constitution Day committee.

Dive in Stocks Brings Prices Back to June

Wall St. Closes Too Early For News of Briton's Visit to Hitler, Which Cheers Coast Traders.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 14.—Stock market prices again took a resounding crack from nervous selling today on Wall Street in a whirlwind change of attitude toward the likelihood of war in Europe.

Successive waves of a selling attack washed over the market from noon onward, only partly relieved by buying—much of it in issues that might benefit from war orders—in the final minutes of dealings.

The selling blows hit the share list after it had received strong support throughout the morning as many in the financial district thought they saw better prospects of a peaceful way out in the Czech controversy.

This hope waned, and was replaced by an active selling urge that left the reporting machinery as much as six minutes behind, when word was received of further bloody clashes in Sudeten territory and the abandonment of conciliation machinery. News of the British Prime Minister's trip to confer with Chancellor Hitler came too late to affect the market.

Some buying orders placed before the opening, helping along the initial rise which lifted many stocks $1 to $3 or so as big blocks changed hands, was evidently prompted by a rally in prices in Paris and London. But the upturn abroad failed to hold and as the New York market opened, prices in London and Paris were slipping.

Foreign Dealing Small

Foreign participation in the New York market, however, was reported small by brokers with European connections. Such selling as appeared in volume was mainly from United States holders.

Today's selling, coming atop the last-hour deluge of liquidation Tuesday, brought losses since the decline began sufficient, on the average, to wipe out almost exactly half the rise scored by stocks in the "bull market" of late spring and early summer. Prices are now back to about where they were in late June.

Some of the losers which benefited only a little, or not at all, from the buying counter-attack near the finish included American Telephone, off $4.62, at $135.25; Allied Chemical, $169.50, down $9.50; Liggett & Myers "B," $95, off $4; Sears Roebuck, $65.75; General Foods, $32; American Tobacco "B," $82.12; American Rolling Mills, $15.87; Goodrich, $19.50; Philip Morris, $118; Great Northern preferred, $16.12; Du Pont, $127; J. C. Penney, $78.15, and Owens Illinois Glass, $65.50, all of $1 to $3 or so.

Among those, however, which came back from sharp early declines to break even or show small changes either way were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corporation, American Smelting, Kennecott, Anaconda, Chrysler and General Motors.

Bonds in all divisions followed stocks on the decline, but failed to imitate them in the slight improvement at the finish.

When traders were more hopeful, in the morning, grains at Chicago slumped, following Tuesday's rise. When the outlook became gloomier, they were bought eagerly, though best prices were not quite held. Wheat ended ⅞ to 1⅞ cents a bushel higher, and corn ⅞ to 1⅞ up. Cotton moved uncertainly, finally to close 30 to 50 cents a bale higher.

Climb in San Francisco

San Francisco, Sept. 14 (AP).—Stock prices climbed briskly in San Francisco trading today the first two hours after the close of the New York Stock Exchange.

Chrysler rose to $68.50, nearly $3 above its Wall Street finish. Southern Pacific, U. S. Steel and General Motors rose $1 or more from New York closing levels and a long list of issues traded actively here made smaller gains.

The turn in sentiment appeared to come from the news flash that Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain would fly to Germany for a conference with Fuehrer Hitler over the Czech-Sudeten crisis.

Stocks Drop in London.

London, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—The London Stock Exchange today experienced one of its most disastrous sessions in several years and prices were marked down all around, especially in the premier investment mediums—British government bonds.

Foreign bonds were almost unsalable even at price reductions which ranged to 6 points in the case of Czechoslovak 8 per cent bonds.

Meanwhile, the gold price spurted to a new high since May 1, 1935, at 144 shillings, 11 pence ($34.75) per fine ounce, and the pound sterling sagged to a new low for more than three years.

Sterling was supported by the control fund and it rallied from the low. Gold on the market amounted to £1,412,000 ($6,773,082). Most of it was taken by the authorities since arbitrageurs withdrew because of a dearth of fast ships sailing for New York.

Steel Activity Advances to 45.5 Per Cent

Fourth Quarter Prices to Remain Same With Change Expected for Plate Tin and Rails.

New York, Sept. 14.—Announcements of fourth quarter steel prices probably will be made this week or next. No changes are expected except possibly on tin plate and heavy rails. Pig iron producers generally have made no formal announcements, but some of them will accept business for fourth quarter delivery at current quotations, says Iron Age today in its weekly survey of the industry.

"Steel ingot production has rebounded after the holiday week, being estimated at 45.5 per cent, one and a half points above the preholiday week. Meanwhile, the slow rise in new business in the first half of September has been less than was optimistically hoped for, based on the sharper upward curve in July and August. A continuing improvement is expected during the next four to six weeks, but some opinions as to the extent of the rise have been modified owing to factors in which no favorable turn can be looked for in the immediate future.

"First of all, it is now recognized that the Government spending program will not bring the results that were expected within the time that was scheduled, namely, before the fall elections. While many contracts have been awarded, the effects are only beginning to filter down to secondary suppliers. Even so, publicly financed construction projects offer the most assured prospect of improving steel and equipment business.

"But aside from Government spending and the still somewhat nebulous prospects of the automobile industry, there is little large tonnage in sight. Railroad buying on a generous scale is still some time in the future, the situation being further complicated by the complete breakdown of wage negotiations. The farm machinery industry is hampered in making production plans by the unfavorable outlook for purchases owing to low prices for crops.

"A better business psychology has been created in the domestic scene by the success of anti-New Deal candidates in recent voting, but this has been offset to some extent by apprehension over the European situation. Steel export trade is extremely dull both here and abroad, but if danger of a European war continues to be a dominant factor during the next few months, American exports of steel may show an increase owing to fears in neutral areas that the outbreak of hostilities would shut off shipments from Europe.

"The scrap markets are not following the trend of higher steel operations, mill buying being at a minimum. A few minor grades have shown some weakness, but heavy melting scrap is unchanged in principal centers, except at Youngstown, where it is 50 cents lower. The Iron Age scrap composite price is unchanged at $14.42.

"Most important development in the railroad field is the reopening of New York Central car and locomotive repair shops, which will be accompanied by some buying of material. Otherwise railroad activity is still at low ebb."

Airline Reports Traffic Increases

Revenue passenger traffic over Pennsylvania-Central Airlines in August were 18 per cent ahead of last August, 11 per cent over July and 24 per cent over June, J. J. O'Donovan, vice president in charge of traffic, announced yesterday. Two cities reported new all time records and every city except two served maintained steady increases.

On the Washington-Detroit division, traffic was up 20 per cent at Akron, 8 per cent at Cleveland and 14 per cent at Detroit. Washington-Buffalo gains were 20 per cent.

AT DISHPAN COVE WE FOUND TH' BEST HOTEL ON TH' WHOLE TRIP
TH' MOTOR IS AS GOOD AS TH' DAY I GOT IT THOUGHT
EVER BEEN TO DISHPAN COVE?
UH-ER-OH, YES. YES INDEED. I CERTAINLY AGREE WITH YOU, BUT WE NEEDED THE RAIN

Bob Burns Says—

I believe there's more good energy wasted in arguments than in any other thing in the world. It was my Uncle Orchie who called my attention to the fact that most people who argue a lot are thin, but he couldn't tell me whether thin people jest liked to argue or whether it was the argument that made 'em thin.

Anyhow he said the reason he was so healthy, he thought, was because he and his wife never had an argument in their lives. I says, "Well, you and your wife must differ in opinions on some things!" and he says, "Yes, I differ with her on pret near everything she says, but she don't know it."

Adams, Here, Predicts More Senate Liberty

Freedom of Opinion, Not New Deal Opposition, To Mark Next Session, Purge Beater Says.

By Robert C. Albright.

Senator Adams, of Colorado, who campaigned in the shadow of a purge threat never uttered, returned to Washington yesterday with his nomination and a declaration of political independence both neatly done up in a package.

General collapse of purge efforts in other States he interpreted as a victory for independent voting. He predicted the next Congress will be marked not by opposition to the Administration as such, but by freedom of members to vote their own views.

"The primaries have demonstrated that even Roosevelt supporters do not want to be told how to vote," he said. "That is a matter of individual choice. It should make a tendency next session to vote with the President when he reflects the views of the people, but for less hesitation to vote against him when it is apparent that he does not."

Purge Never Came Off

The President made a strictly neutral trip through Colorado. Adams was marked for elimination by the New Deal inner circle, but the purge order was never delivered. The Senator, who opposed the court plan, the reorganization bill and other measures, was left to fight it out without indorsement or overt opposition.

When Adams Tuesday won formal renomination, the fight already was long since over. His New Deal opponent previously had met defeat in a State Democratic assembly showdown.

Not until the President's train entered Colorado was the Senator sure the President would not oppose him. At that time Mr. Roosevelt confided he would have no opposition. If the President had attacked him, friends said the Senator would have left the train and immediately opened his campaign on that issue.

Thinks Purge Is Over

Adams is convinced the Presi- has had the opposite effect from that intended, and that the purge to all intents and purposes is over. He thinks Mr. Roosevelt's trip to Kentucky for Senator Barkley actually cost the Senate leader votes, and the Maryland indorsement of Representative Lewis, aided Tydings instead.

Like Senator Logan, of Kentucky, Senator Adams believes the President made a costly mistake in opposing Senator George. He said the Georgian would have made a valuable Administration ally.

The wiry Coloradan, who as chairman of the Senate's relief appropriations subcommittee holds a key position in emergency aid policies, reflected no ill will against the Administration which failed to support him. Instead he discounted forecasts of a strong Demoratic opposition front at the next Congress. He predicted a session following largely the pattern of the last one, but with increased independence in voting.

Goes Back Today

Adams will leave for Colorado today without contacting WPA officials on the status of relief appropriations. He said relief funds should be adequate to carry the WPA over until Congress returns despite the recent rise in work-relief rolls to a peak of 3,066,953. He pointed out that Congress had made flexible provisions for spending the 8-month $1,425,000,000 relief appropriation in seven months if need arose.

He said he had "hopes" that business improvement will permit an easing of the relief load as the season advances and making possible a lightening of the relief budg next year.

Guinea Pigs Kept In Bathtub, Says Mrs. Reynolds

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Mrs. Helen Fortescue Reynolds, 24, a member of Long Island's smart set, complained today in an alimony application filed in State Supreme Court that her husband sometimes kept guine pigs in the bathtub of their apartment. She asked $1,500 a month and $10,000 counsel fees pending trial of her separation suit, and an additional $2,000 for the custody battle over their son, Richard Roland Reynolds, 1 year old.

Gartside to Attend Meeting on Parks

Frank T. Gartside, assistant superintendent of the National Capital Parks, will leave here this morning for Milwaukee to attend the annual convention of the American Institute of Park Executives, beginning Sunday.

En route he will stop at Pittsburgh and Akron, Ohio, to study park systems in those cities.

Gartside, who is one of the five directors of the institute, will submit a report at the convention on fees and charges in use in park systems throughout the country. He also is vice chairman of the educational committee of the institute.

Police to Send 6 to Maryland Traffic School

University's Engineering College to Work With Police Chiefs' Body in Two-Week Courses.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

To increase traffic control efficiency and provide Washington with new scientific methods of curbing highway casualties, the Metropolitan Police Department will send six men to the University of Maryland traffic officers' training school opening Monday, it was learned last night.

One captain, two lieutenants, two sergeants and one private will attend the university's second annual series of accident prevention courses, according to Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, assistant superintendent of police.

Conducted by the university's college of engineering, in co-operation with the safety division, International Association of Chiefs of Police, the traffic training school will offer two weeks of intensive study in methods of coping with traffic problems.

Yesterday, two accused of being rum runners were held responsible for the crash deaths of a young man and child following a wild chase by Federal officers on Nichols avenue southeast September 2.

A coroner's jury held Charles Henry Lee and Worster Dorey, both colored, for Grand Jury action at an inquest in the District Morgue.

The "long-range" traffic planning report, submitted to the Commissioners' by a special citizens advisory committee last week, was sent yesterday to various District department heads for action.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen lauded the report as "an excellent piece of work" and said recommendations of the committee would be "carried out to the letter."

After the department chiefs have had sufficient time to study the report, Commissioner Hazen indicated, they will be called together to map comprehensive plans of attack on future traffic problems.
